

Lausche May Face Trouble With Labor In Quest for Democratic Nomination

By LYLE C. WILSON
 United Press Correspondent
 Washington (U.P.)—Ohio's Gov. Frank J. Lausche will have labor trouble if he is serious about seeking next year's Democratic presidential nomination.

Labor leaders blame the governor for at least two unforgivable sins. If he actually goes for the nomination, they will get a long-sought chance to cut him down to size. Lausche announced this week that he would enter Ohio's presidential primary as a favorite son candidate. That should shoo all other Democratic hopefuls away from the state. Labor cannot lick Lausche on his home grounds. He's been elected governor five times by now, never with more than grudging labor admission that he might do, and more often without even that. There are Democrats who argue that Lausche is no Democrat but a disguised Republican. There are even more Ohio labor leaders who will insist now that the governor is no pal of the unions. Lausche, nevertheless, has been unbeatable in Ohio. It is considerably more than likely that Lausche will win the Ohio presidential primary.

Democratic Party. But of them all, the aggressively left-of-center labor leaders have been the most powerful. They have vetoed Democratic candidates before this and the odds that they will be able to repeat next year are 100-to-1 or longer. All of this may be why Lausche hesitates to enter primaries outside Ohio.

Quotes From the News

- Bremen, Germany—(U.P.)—The Bremen Ladies committee in a protest against plans of city businessmen who plan an "amusement center," including brothels, for sailors: "Sailors are much more interested in cultural activities and congenial society."
- Hendersonville, N.C.—The Henderson County Board of Commissioners on the crumbling statue of Daniel Boone which will have to come down: "Most of the kids figure it's Davy Crockett anyway."
- Chicago—Bruce Bergun a reserved graduate psychology student, on talking but finally agreeing to try to walk a straight line after drinking six ounces of bourbon in the interests of science: "Well, if it may save a life."
- San Antonio, Tex.—Clarence Cecil Flint, a former Marine, on narcotics when questioned by a congressional investigating committee: "It's the worst thing on God's green earth."
- Tokyo—Richard Tenneson, turncoat former G.I. who cast his lot with the Communists, on why he refused repatriation during the Korean war prisoner exchange: "I did only as my conscience directed me. I betrayed no one."
- Berlin—(U.P.) Ed Edmondson (D-Okla.) who drove a radio-telephone equipped sedan through East Berlin in a successful test of American rights to travel anywhere in the city: "There was no incident of any kind. We passed people's policemen along our route and they all saluted. We got many friendly waves from young people we passed when they recognized our olive drab sedan an American Army automobile."
- New York—Mile star Wes Santee, on the new investigation of his amateur status by the National AAU: "It'd be heartbroken if not allowed to run for the United States in the Olympics. But I'm not worried, because my conscience is clear. I never made demands on meet directors. I have always accepted expenses in good faith and made full reports on them."

Crater Lake Fame Evidence Received

The employees of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce are convinced the fame of Crater Lake is worldwide. They have evidence to support that conclusion, too.

In the mail this week they received the following card:

"Dear Sirs:
 I shall be to you very obliged if you will be so good to send to my some cards or photo where it is illustrated the "Lake of the Crater" of your famous country—
 It is for one study of comparison with the craters of the Moon. (Self****I revolve to the C. of C. of the "Winslow City" for the Meteors Crater.)
 I thank you, for now, very very much and remain your

 "Via Pier Lombardo, 9
 "Milano, Italia."
 The**** represents one word which no one at the chamber or newspaper offices could make out, but it is believed the young Italian is writing to Winslow, Ariz., to obtain pictures of the meteor crater there, as well as pictures of Crater Lake.

The chamber here has supplied him with several of the pictures he requested.

Explosion Damages Building at Eugene
 Eugene (U.P.)—An explosion, believed caused by seeping gas fumes, shook a neon sign building here yesterday causing damage estimated by the fire department at several thousand dollars.

No injuries were reported, although employees who were eating their lunch inside were shaken up. Part of a brick fire wall was destroyed. Some small fires were started. Firemen said another blast occurred here late Wednesday, also from gas fumes. The latter blast occurred when gas leaked into a catch basin and a railroad flare ignited it. No damage was reported.

Michigan's supply of salt is estimated at 71 trillion tons.
