THE MENOPAUSE

Hundreds of women ask about the menopause; some fear it more than they should. Some wonder if they will become depressed or lose their mind.

Every woman should remember that if she is mentally sound, she should go through the menopause without much trouble.

If a woman has always had good strong nerves she may have these symptoms for only a few months, but if she has always been sensitive and nervous, she may go on having flushes for ten years or more.

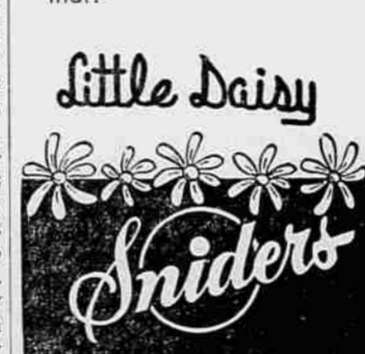

Some women who have always had a tendency to sadness may get depressed at this time; only a few get so depressed that they cannot work and have to have electroshock treatments.

can be given as a small pill once a day. The big thing is not to take so big a dose as to make the breasts sore or to cause spotting or menstruation again.

to do. Some women stop menstruating suddenly, while others go on irregularly for a year or two. Many physicians refuse to give estrogens, such as stop the flushes, because they remember a paper published years ago which indicated that in mice, enormous doses of estrogen can produce cancer.

Recently, I heard Professor Kimbrough, of the University of Pennsylvania—a very wise man—say that he thinks it best that the estrogen be given as a small pill every day by mouth rather than as an injection once or twice a week.
