

Doctors Telephone Exchange To Open

A Doctors Telephone exchange, to secure medical help in emergencies, will be opened Jan. 1 at the Holland hotel by Mrs. Violet Storey and Mrs. Helen Tingleaf.

The agency is for use of patients on a 24-hour basis, with services of all medical doctors made available as quickly as possible. Those who telephone the exchange, 2-6687, will be asked to leave their name, address, telephone number and brief information concerning their ailment.

Members of the medical profession are to keep the exchange informed as to where they may be reached, or who cares for their patients when they are unavailable. A roster of physicians will be provided by the Jackson County Medical society for use in emergencies when no special doctor is requested.

Mrs. Storey is a longtime Medford resident and Mrs. Tingleaf, former resident, recently returned from Los Angeles and Reno, where she worked with similar agencies.

SHADY COVE-TRAIL Long-Time Resident Dies; Flood Damage Is Reported

By EVELYN P. WATSON

Shady Cove-Trail—The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Thelma Reinling of Trail on the passing of her husband, Ralph Reinling, Dec. 23, at his home near Trail where he had been trying to put in his pump which had been damaged by the flood. He suffered a heart attack and was found by Tom Tepper and Johnny Jones, who were helping to clean up the place. He was well known in the communities, having resided at Trail for 13 years, and had operated the R&R Radio and Television shop for the past several years. Funeral services were to be held Thursday in Seattle where the body was forwarded by Conger-Morris. Mrs. Reinling plans to return here soon.

The sympathy of the community is also extended to Mrs. Alma Lindquist on the passing of her husband, Charles Lindquist, in California. The Lindquists own the home next to the Don Harmons in Shady Cove and it was considerably damaged by the flood. Their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Swen Lindquist, Tiller, were contacted and came over and have been cleaning up the wreckage and debris of the flood. Mrs. Lindquist is staying with her son, Carl Lindquist, 54 Cowper ave., Berkeley, for the present.

Several homes which looked as if they would suffer severe damage by flooding unexpectedly escaped damage. The Walter Turner residence (the former Paul Davis home) at Trail did not get water in the house but lacked only about three inches. The Irwin Howes', Paul Davises' and other friends looked after the place for the Turners, who are on a trip. The Ed Leaming residence, which was surrounded by water sitting on low ground next to Indian Creek, suffered damage to the floors from water seeping in from below and the flood waters did not get into the house. The J. D. Wilkinson residence which had been severely flooded in the storm two years ago, was safe from flood waters, though surrounded by water due to the fact that the house had been lifted up and moved onto higher ground after the last big flood when the Wilkinsons lost much furniture and equipment. The Wilkinsons were taken from their place by boat, as was Mrs. Novotny farther down the highway next to the Miles Williams. Friends of the Scottie Parricks looked after their place, which received a good deal of flooding, with the Clyde Staffords of Trail doing a lot of cleaning and the Jim Wilsons across the road putting the Parricks' furniture in their garage for safe keeping.

Other people were not nearly as fortunate, with two Hammond organs being badly damaged in homes flooded, one belonging to the Major Morris and the other to the George Fields. Other buildings receiving severe flooding were the resorts above McLeod which were hardest hit. Eastins', Riffles on the Rogue, California on the Rogue and the homes of Bill Brewster, Wilmer Ragsdale, Fred Morgan, Al Johnson, Ralph Reinling, George Field, Delmar Logan, Major Morris, Charles Lindquist, Earl Warren, Lester Morgan, Phil Motschenbacher, and others. This report is incomplete as a number of homes were most probably damaged of which the correspondent has no knowledge. There were some freak incidents connected with the flood. A pump belonging to Carl Dawson of Trail was deposited by flood waters in the mud of the yard of Major Morris. A section of the white fence of Vera Martin's place was wrapped around some of the buildings of Dick Brewer's Robber's Roost, with Dick's prize rooster being drowned by the flood and hanging in a tree.

On behalf of the people of the communities, a sincere thank you is extended to the American Red Cross and Red Cross workers, Steelhead Post 6881, VFW, and ladies auxiliary, whose members worked unflinchingly during Wednesday night and the next day at the post hall, where housing and food was provided, to the many volunteer workers who assisted in so many ways both during the flood and with the cleaning up, and to the members of other local organizations who helped in so many ways. Also to the people of the communities who opened their homes to those evicted by the flood. If anyone knows of people who were away at the time of the flood and whose homes were damaged by the flood waters, he should either contact the home owners themselves, letting them know about the damage, or the American Red Cross whose temporary headquarters are at the Shady Cove school.

Many church services were cancelled in Shady Cove at the schoolhouse due to damage to the school from the high waters, with no Catholic, Episcopal or Latter Day Saints Christmas services being held at the schoolhouse. The Latter Day Saints, however, did hold Christmas services at the home of Millard Wilde of Elk Creek. Church services as well as the Christmas play were cancelled at the Assembly of God church in Shady Cove due to water in the church. Some damage was also suffered at the Elk-Trail school.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davis of Shady Cove spent the Christmas holidays with their daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Helm of Rogue River. The Helms plan to spend New Year's with Mr. and Mrs. Davis in Shady Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Powell and son, Steven of San Pedro, Calif., and Mrs. Dorothy Martin and son, Grant, Santa Monica, Calif., are spending the Christmas holidays with their parents. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fagalde of Shady Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cooper of Trail have received word that their son, Melvin Cooper, who is stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., has just been released from the hospital there after an operation for an old knee injury.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Wing, Klamath Falls, are spending the Christmas holidays with their daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. A. Cooper of Shady Cove and another daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. Ervin House of Shady Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Abernathy, daughter Shirley, and son, Edgar, with their guests, Aline and Verle Inman, Santa Ana, Calif., spent the Christmas holidays at the home of Mrs. Abernathy's sister and family. Mr. and Mrs. Theron Mason of Shady Cove. The Abernathys are former Shady Cove residents, still owning a house above the Masons which they have rented to the Ray Mullen family.

Clarence Massey of San Francisco flew up to Trail recently to visit his brother and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Massey, and to attend the installation of his brother, Bill Massey, as master of the Masonic lodge in Shady Cove. Other guests of the Masseys have been Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Crumrin of Medford.

Newcomers to Shady Cove are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stewart, formerly of Jacksonville, who are living in one of Walt Mallory's houses. The Stewarts have five children, all attending school with one attending high school in Prospect. Stewart is employed by Ben Nork Logging.

The Christmas program presented by the primary children of the Shady Cove school has been postponed until after Jan. 3, and will be given shortly after that as a New Year's program.

Mrs. Clara White, Ojai Valley, Calif., is spending the Christmas holidays with her daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. Dean Collins of Shady Cove.

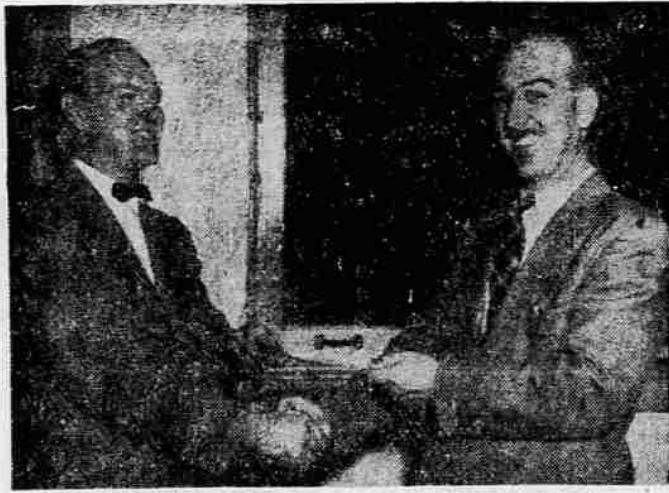

Home for the Christmas holidays from the Prairie Bible institute at Three Hills, Alberta, Canada, are Claudia Ash, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wagler, Jack Carlton, all of Trail, and Joyce Collins, Central Point.

Newcomers to Shady Cove from Redmond, Ore., are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porter, who have bought the Jim Vanderlip residence in Shady Cove after selling their dairy in Redmond. They are particularly enthusiastic about the climate in this area.

Mr. and Mrs. George Baker of Shady Cove are the parents of a baby girl born at Sacred Heart hospital in Medford and weighing 7 pounds 1 ounce. Mrs. Baker is the former Shirley Dawson. The baby, who has been named Deborah Jean, is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dawson, all of Trail.

Week end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clark of Big Butte Creek, Trail, were Mr. and Mrs. Rueben Scott and son, Jim and Jack of Cave Junction (former residents of Shady Cove) and owners of the Shady Cove rabbitry and Clark's cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Hise of Medford.

Bethel U.D., the International Order of Jobs Daughters of Shady Cove, held their first formal initiation the evening of Dec. 15 at the Shady Cove VFW hall with Honored Queen Robertha Dunlap presiding. The initiates were Susie and Sally McKillop. Visitors included Mrs. Beulah Faber, vice grand guardian of the state of Oregon. Mrs. Faber was presented with a diary to keep a record of her travels when she becomes grand guardian. The hall was decorated in the Christmas theme of jingle bells and holly. Those serving refreshments were Mrs. Ray Chubb and daughter, Susan, Mrs. Walter Caddell and daughter, Madeline of Shady Cove and Mrs. Bruce Cappello and daughter, Jeanette of Butte Falls.

RECEIVES GRANT—Lloyd Pennington, right, assistant professor of science at Southern Oregon college in Ashland presents business manager Don Lewis a research grant check from Tektronix foundation for $850. It is the first such grant ever awarded the SOC science department for research.

Scientific Research Grant Awarded To SOC At Ashland

Ashland — Scientific research at Southern Oregon college here has been facilitated by a grant from the Tektronix foundation for $850 for the purchase of a Beckman model spectrophotometer.

Spectrophotometers are analytical instruments which may be used to determine the concentration of certain chemical substances by measuring the absorption of light of various wavelengths by solutions of the subjects. It will enable the absorption of various chemicals by the resins used in research to be measured more accurately and conveniently.

Lloyd D. Pennington, assistant professor of science and chairman of the science department's committee on research, said "the research for which the grant was obtained is a study of the preparation of chelating ion-exchange resins and investigation of their possible applications in analytical chemistry." It will continue studies Pennington has been doing toward his doctoral thesis.

He explained that ion-exchange resins are granular, plastic materials which contain chemically active groups. "These groups," he said, "allow them to absorb chemicals and remove them from solution. Such resins have been available for some time and find application in water softening and purification, decolorizing of sugar, recovery of metals and in other situations."

More Specific Chelating resins are more specific as to what chemicals they will absorb, and are not yet available commercially.

Dr. Elmo Stevenson, president at Southern Oregon college, said the "grant is of special interest in that it is the first one received by the college for scientific research."

Tektronix incorporated is a Portland industry specializing in manufacture of cathode ray oscilloscopes used in television and radio industries.

Portland Symphony Manager Resigns

Portland — (U.P.) — Phil Hart, manager of the Portland symphony for eight seasons, said today he had submitted his resignation to the symphony's board of directors.

Hart said he wanted to devote more time to his business as impresario of legitimate stage and musical productions brought to Portland.

New York Youngster Receives Gift of Saddle Horse as Substitute for Nashua

Greenwich, Conn. — (U.P.) — Twelve-year-old Karen Ann McGuire got her dream horse today as a gift from a group of bankers.

The reddish-blond fifth grader put her arm around the chestnut gelding's neck and kissed him on the nose under the left eye.

She was smiling, but all she could say was, "Ahhhh, Gee!"

Sixteen teen-agers and two adults, friends and neighbors of Karen Ann in nearby Valhalla, N. Y., broke into applause as they sat on a split rail fence at the riding ring of the Round Hill Stables.

Name Picked for Horse

The presentation of the eight-year-old horse, which Karen Ann has named "Hanover's Wishing Star," was made by Donald R. Hassell, an assistant secretary of the Hanover Bank of New York to which the little girl had made a bid of $24.03 for the champion racehorse Nashua.

The bank officers had chipped in to buy the horse for Karen Ann because they were touched by the letter she wrote bidding for the racehorse.

Bankers are supposed to be hard-headed businessmen who say things like "Bah, humbug" to wishes and dreams. But Karen Ann has been wishing for a horse "ever since I could really walk" and today the wish turned into a chestnut gelding.

Karen Ann and her mother came here for the formal presentation of the horse as a gift of more than 100 officers of the Hanover Bank, a staid financial institution down in Manhattan.

the part of New York where all the money is.

Dream Gets Boost Karen Ann, a fifth-grader, is not the type of dreamer who just sits there. She believes in giving a dream a boost. In this case, a letter did the trick. She wrote the bank offering her life savings of $24.03, plus "loving care," as a sealed bid for the champion race horse Nashua, or maybe another horse not quite so famous—or costly.

For four summers, Karen Ann has been riding horses every chance she gets. She loves to draw and mostly she draws horses. Early this month she read that the Hanover Bank, as an executor of the William Woodward Jr. estate, was selling Nashua and the Belair Stud's 61 other horses.

Money From Chores Karen Ann gets a 60-cent weekly allowance for her Saturday chores of scouring two sinks and doing household dusting. Also, she has a little business in the neighborhood of her home in Valhalla, N. Y., of taking care of people's dogs, when the masters go away.

She took her $24.03 from the bank in Valhalla, dug out her best color-pencil drawing of Nashua, and put them in the letter to the bankers, saying she had heard "you are going to sell Nashua and his friends" and that "if you have a horse that no one will buy, I would like to."

Nashua was sold for $1251,200. The other horses went for $615,000. But the bank officials were so touched that they took up a collection and purchased Karen Ann her horse—plus a saddle, bridle, halter, and blanket.
