Gloria Swanson's Heart Stands Still When Italian Director Walks on Set

By GLORIA SWANSON
Written For United Press
Rome —(U.P.)— "Shoe Shine," "Bicycle Thief," "Umberto D.," which just won the New York Film Critics Award for the best foreign film, bring to mind the name of Vittorio De Sica, Italy's great neo-realistic director.

glaring contrast he is to most actors. His generosity to the person who is playing in a scene with him should be a lesson to those less talented.

before the scene is over, only the back of an ear or head of the other person is visible to the audience.

So, is it any wonder that my heart stood still when Vittorio De Sica walked on the set in his Roman costume looking very handsome as the philosopher Seneca, the character he plays in the movie "My Son Nero"?

Greatness does not have to stoop to playing tricks but unfortunately many actors do not realize this. All performers, whether on stage or in the movies, know these really non-professional tricks although a real pro never uses them.

Another trick, even worse and actors have been known to kill for this is when an actor draws attention to himself when he should be quietly listening so that the audience as well can be watching the person the scene rightfully belongs to.

Not Hero Worshipper
I am not a hero worshipper, but I have reverence for talent or people who do a good job, if it is only digging a ditch. Here is a craftsman in the art of directing and acting — and a very genuine person.

Attacks Against Eden Taper Off; Support Gained
London —(U.P.)—The slashing attacks against Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden tapered off sharply today and some penitent newspapers joined R. A. Butler, the No. 2 Conservative, in pledging support.

Several times in our scenes, De Sica moved forward fearing I might be playing away from the camera too much or that he had cast a shadow on my face. Often he apologized for something that was obviously my fault. A more generous actor I have never worked with.

As he held my hand in his, we both sputtered words of admiration, each in his own language. He may have understood what I was saying, but I definitely did not understand him. But the kind expression in his eyes and his genuine grin started my heart pumping again at its normal rate of 63.

Grace Kelly Off To Hollywood for Picture Making
Chicago —(U.P.)—Grace Kelly headed for Hollywood and her last full time fling at movie-making today.

Acting is a give and take proposition, or should be, because if an actor hogs the scene, he could so easily ruin it. Unhappily, there are those who think that if they are not constantly "doing something," even if it is only making faces, that the whole scene will collapse. This technique I personally call Milton Burlesque.

French Reds Work For Popular Front
Paris —(U.P.)— The powerful Communist party worked Saturday to create "popular front" committees in the nation's factories to boost its Trojan horse drive for participation in the French government.

Politicians 'Frightened'
Reports that Eden was on the way out and that Butler would succeed him reached their zenith this week end. They apparently frightened the party press and "nameless" politicians into believing they had gone too far and too fast.

Prince To Be Boss
The handsome Prince will be boss in his own palace, she said. And she indicated she will let her royal husband and his subjects decide whether she should continue as a movie queen.

Portland Principal Hanged in Effigy

Beaver Marsh License Revocation Proposed

Meteor Society Names Bend Editor

Liquor Still Found By Police at Banks
Banks, Ore. —(U.P.)— A small moonshine operation was turned up yesterday.

Religious Ceremony
There was growing speculation that "it was all settled" that the Prince and the movie queen will be married in a religious ceremony in her home town of Philadelphia in June after she finishes part of her film commitments.

Meteor Society Names Bend Editor
Brogan served as an assistant to Dr. Pruett for nearly 20 years. He will supervise meteoric astronomy studies and research in Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho and northern California.
