Hats for Spring To Be Very Big Designers Say

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY United Press Correspondent New York—(U.P.)—The horseless carriage lasted despite doubters of 50 years, and now the hats that went with the era are back.

Under the brims and blooms that you'll see fluttering in next spring's breezes will be women who wouldn't have left the house in any hat bigger than a pillbox last season.

This week inaugurates officially the spring fashion previews in New York City. More than 100 fashion writers from all parts of the United States are here for six days of steady looking at dresses, coats, suits and hats that make top fashion news from 1935.

Starting from the top, the news they'll see will be big. A man may or may not like the new hat his wife buys for next Easter, but you can bet he'll notice it.

John Fredericks calls his king-sized hats his "horseless carriage collection." Designer Adolf of Emme, who has one spring hat that measures 28 inches across, says they're "1900-ish."

Sally Victor sums it up with breezy directness. "They're big, aren't they?" Mrs. Victor asked. "The cycle has gone as far as it can the other way. They couldn't get smaller."

"We've found how to make big hats that don't overwhelm the woman," Mrs. Victor said. "When hats were really big before they often were grotesque... only women who had a real flair could wear them. These are different."

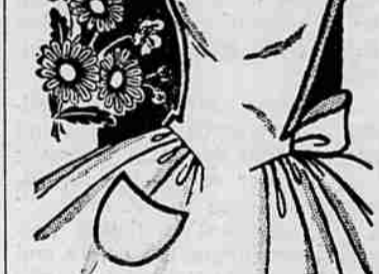

Demonstration Set in Gold Hill

Gold Hill—A demonstration of new methods of artificial respiration will be given at the Gold Hill grade school gymnasium Tuesday, January 10, from 1 to 3 p.m. The demonstration will be sponsored by Gold Hill Health unit and will be given by LeRoy Williams of the Medford Fire department. A previous story of the demonstration erroneously stated it would be held at 3 p.m.

Anyone interested is invited to attend. A meeting of the health unit will be held at the home of Mrs. Jack Cline following the demonstration.

As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.

Daughter Needs To Be Psychologically Weaned When a person sets up another as an ideal, he is heading for trouble.

(Q) "We have one child, a daughter 19. Ever since she was a little girl, she has literally wor-s-hipped her father and is the apple of his eyes. They are very congenial in interests and like to do many things together. In fact, I often feel like the fifth wheel to a wagon when I am with them. Of course I am pleased to have my daughter and her father get along so well, especially when I hear some of my friends talk about the friction between their daughters and husbands."

"However, there is a problem that is getting more serious as my daughter gets older. No boy she has ever dated seems to measure up favorably to her father and, as a result, she soon gets tired of him. I want her to marry and have a home and family. I do not think she is meant to be a business girl, though she has enjoyed her work since she left high school and has a very good job. Can you give me some suggestions on how to cope with this problem?" Mrs. M.P.

(A) It must be your husband rather than you who will have to cope with this problem, though you can help indirectly by giving him suggestions. Your daughter must be "psychologically weaned" from her father so she can see other men as individuals, not inferior reflections of her father.

Ormond Bean To Seek Portland Mayor Post Portland—(U.P.)—City Commissioner Ormond R. Bean yesterday became the first avowed candidate for the post of mayor of Portland.

Although incumbent Mayor Fred L. Peterson has not announced his plans, he is expected to run for reelection.

Mt. Hood Tramway Closed Indefinitely Portland—(U.P.)—The Mt. Hood tramway, world's longest passenger carrying aerial tramway, was closed down indefinitely this past week end due to lack of passengers and the high cost of repairing the aerial cars.

Carl Lundell, secretary of the tramway corporation, said that plans were being made, however, for a new Alpine-type tram to make the 3.1 mile run.

Your husband can impress upon your daughter the fact that no two people are the same, even though they may be equally as good. Then he can start to help her build up standards of what she wants in a future husband. By focusing her attention on her "ideal" rather than on her father, your daughter will begin to free herself of the strong emotional attachment for her father.

In addition, your husband can help her evaluate the men she meets and dates with this idea before her. (Copyright 1935, General Features Corp.)

Jackson Favored as Demo Vice-President

Washington—(U.P.)—Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana has suggested that Washington Sen. Henry M. Jackson should be the Democrats' candidate for the vice-presidency of the United States this year.

Mansfield said he still isn't ready to announce his preference for a Democratic presidential candidate, but he thinks Sen. Jackson is extremely well qualified for the second spot on the ticket.

The Montana senator says Jackson's selection as a vice-presidential candidate would give the Pacific Northwest representation on the Democratic national ballot for the first time in history.
