Drycleaners' Institute Makes Survey of Spots

Washington—(U.P.)—Gravy and food stains result in more dry-cleaning bills than any other kind of mishap, a "spot check" by the National Institute of Drycleaners reveals.

The institute took a survey to see what types of spots and stains drycleaners encounter frequently. They found that "there's many a slip between cup and lip," for food and gravy stains led the list.

Next most common were blood-stains, the institute said. Coffee and tea spots were the third group. Alcohol and soft drink stains closely followed.

Cosmetics cause seven per cent of the drycleaning bills—and not all on women's clothes! Children with paste pots and airplane glue account for four per cent—the smallest category listed.

Grade School Athletics Topic For Talk Given by Director

Lee Ragsdale, athletic director of the Medford schools, spoke on grade school athletics for members of Lincoln Parent-Teacher association at a meeting held in the gymnasium January 10. He quoted Dr. Edgar Rector, pediatrician, in stating that it was not a question of whether or not grade school boys should compete, because they were going to compete anyway; the question is under what conditions they will compete.

Dr. Rector was one of the 16 persons who served on the state wide committee for the study of elementary school athletics. Mr. Ragsdale represented the Oregon High School Coaches' association, and Dr. Rector the Oregon Medical association.

Mr. Ragsdale stated that the general plan in the Medford schools is to give all the boys who want a chance to compete in athletics without undue pressure or undesirable influence being exerted on them.

While every child is required to take physical education, the athletic program is purely voluntary, but at the grade school level is not too selective—anyone who wants may be included in the teams. Starting in the fall, a schedule of games is set up between the city schools for football, which are played at senior high school on special fields marked off for the use of the grade schools. Two games are played simultaneously. He stated that approximately 174 turn out for football.

Basketball schedules are also set up between the five city schools, with St. Mary's school playing to fill in the schedule, but not competing for the league championship. Games are set up on a grade level with the sixth graders competing with sixth graders and fifth graders with fifth, he said, and games are rotated between schools. Mr. Ragsdale stated that approximately 130 to 150 turn out for basketball.

Track and baseball comprise the last two athletic series of the year, both with a fairly short season. Boys in track are classified according to age, height and weight, regardless of grade, the speaker said. Track meets are held at the high school field as the weather permits, records are kept, and trophies given. Baseball games are scheduled between the schools as in football and basketball. Approximately 175 turn out for track and 150 for baseball.

Well trained coaches and adult officials supervise all the games; the boys are also protected by their school insurance if they are injured in any of the games. Mr. Ragsdale stated. Schools also give letters for satisfactory participation in each of the various athletics.

As it was Dad's Night for the PTA, Kenneth Bramhall served as president, in place of his wife; Roy Gilbertsen served as secretary.
