

British Press Cries 'Cat Over Dulles' 'Brink of War' Interview

Possible Role As Presidential Candidate Seen

London — (U.P.) — The London Daily Mirror, Britain's largest circulation newspaper, said today that presidential ambitions may have led Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to grant Life magazine the "brink of war" interview.

The report in Life said the United States was prepared to begin all-out war if the Korean truce talks failed, that Dulles sought Anglo-American intervention in Indochina and that the United States was prepared to go to war if necessary in the Formosa crisis early in 1955.

The Daily Mirror suggestion appeared among a general outcry in the British press against the statements attributed to Dulles. One newspaper referred to a "dance of death" up to the edge of war and back.

Officials indicated they were equally disturbed but refused on-the-record comment at the moment. Many observers said the statements embarrassed Prime Minister Anthony Eden at a time when he was under fire from several quarters.

The reasons behind the Life report and especially the timing of its publication became overnight the biggest diplomatic question in Britain. It appeared Labor members of Parliament would ask angry questions in Parliament about Eden's role in the Dulles decisions.

The Daily Mirror, which has a circulation of 4,500,000 and often acts as unofficial voice of the Labor Party, led off its editorial by asking, "Why has Mr. Dulles... suddenly thrust himself forward as a 'tough guy' in Far East policies?"

"This question was being discussed by diplomats in London last night," the Mirror said. "... The diplomats came to the conclusion that Mr. Dulles feels himself a possible candidate in the American presidential election campaign this year."

Some officials privately speculated that Dulles intended to serve notice to the Communists that the "Geneva spirit" or lack of it meant no weakening of America's position.

The authoritative London Times said Dulles' words "may thus have a beneficial and cautionary effect in Moscow, in inducing the Soviet government to use its influence to restrain the Chinese from an aggressive policy."

"The remarks may be read in Peking as a more direct statement that the United States government would be prepared to sanction bombing of the Chinese mainland... if pushed too far," the Times said.

But the Times said Dulles "seemed to be speaking as much for internal as for external reasons. He had his eye partly, no doubt, on the American elections."

Harter, Richey To Speak at SAF Meet

Lee Harter, state forester from Salem, and Larry Richey, forester from Redding, Calif., will speak at a meeting of the Siskiyou chapter of Society of American Foresters at 7:30 p.m. today at the Jackson hotel.

Subjects of the talks will be forest conservation as applied to Southern Oregon and Northern California. About 60 men are expected to attend the dinner. A social hour will start about 7 p.m.

Foresters from Jackson and Josephine counties and northern California are expected to attend. Ted Maul, chapter chairman, and state district warden of the forestry department, is in charge of arrangements.

Soviet Press Accuses Dulles of Distorting History in Statements on Threat of War

Moscow — (U.P.) — The Soviet press today accused Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of distorting history in his interview in Life magazine in an effort to maintain permanent international tensions.

A long Tass News Agency dispatch from the New York distributed to the Soviet press said it was "obvious from the text" that Dulles used the interview in order to preach the "discredited policy of 'position of strength' of bristling atomic weapons."

The Tass dispatch took up Dulles' main three points one by one—that the United States was prepared to go to war if the Korean truce negotiations failed; that Dulles sought Anglo-American intervention in Indochina and that the United States was ready to go to war if necessary during last year's Formosa crisis.

First, it said, "The United States agreed to a truce in Korea only after its intervention against the Korean people suffered a decisive collapse."

Second, "In order to realize the groundlessness of Dulles' claim he prevented war in Southeast Asia, it is sufficient to recall that the United States refused to sign the Geneva agreement on Indochina and now hampers implementation of the agreement."

Third, "The facts indicate that in all three cases, if as Dulles said the world was the result of American policy of position of strength as result of crude interference in the affairs of other states."

Local Chamber To Organize Committee On Water Resources

A new standing committee on water resources will be set up within the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, it was decided yesterday at a meeting of the board of directors.

The committee will be charged with keeping track of new developments in flood control, water usage, water legislation, and other related matters. The committee will report to the board from time to time, and will be of assistance in formulating chamber policy on water resources.

The directors indicated they feel that the entire subject is so important to the future of this area and its people that a full-time standing committee should be named for the purpose.

Chamber President Otto Ewaldsen indicated he will appoint the committee members soon.

Ewaldsen announced several of his committee chairmen for the year, with a few others to be named later. They include, agriculture, Jennings Pierce; budget and finance, Frank Bash; greeters, Russ Jamison; highways, Paul Rynning; roundtable, Ray Johnson with a co-chairman to be announced; new industries, Jack Crawford; legislative, Frank J. Van Dyke; membership, Ken McDonald; tourist and convention, Mrs. Bert Pree, and education, Ron Gande, on a temporary basis.

Ewaldsen said several of the chairmen are reappointed to the jobs they held last year because of a desire for continuity of service and planning. He said the forum committee may be formed from the chairmen of the other committees.

Committee Assignments Letters to all members, asking their preferences in committee assignments, will be sent out soon, the president reported.

The directors authorized the attendance of Chamber Manager Don McNeil, Office Manager Mary Jane Fischer, and two chamber officers at the annual convention of Oregon and Washington chamber executives Feb. 5, 6 and 7 in Portland. The meeting is for a mutual discussion of problems and methods of chamber operation, and retiring President John Pleisch said it is extremely helpful to chamber officers.

In other action, the board approved continuation of a program of securing high school girls to help in the office on a training basis; heard plans for the annual membership dinner to be held at the Jackson hotel at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 19; were told details of a Southern Oregon Chamber workshop to be held here Jan. 20 and 21; approved the annual audit of the chamber's books, and approved a continuation of board meetings on the second and fourth Thursday of each month.

Neuberger Hopeful For Talent Project Funds in New Budget

Washington, D. C.—(Special) Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) says he is "hopeful that the recent flood experience in southern Oregon would overcome the Republican administration's past reluctance to provide adequate funds for the Talent irrigation project," whose reservoir capacity would have contributed to reduction of flood damage.

"When the President's budget message is presented to congress next week, I trust that recognition is given to flood control aspects of the Talent project and that adequate funds are provided to speed construction of this valuable multi-purpose development," Neuberger said.

The Oregon senator pointed out that the administration's budget last year "failed to provide a single penny for Talent construction, but Congress fortunately recognized the value of the project and provided $500,000 to get work under way."

"The larger reservoir provided in the Talent project by raising the height of Emigrant dam would have kept Bear creek within its banks, according to newspaper reports," Senator Neuberger said. "Flood control effects of this reservoir would have been felt throughout the lower Rogue basin. Yet, a year ago the present administration failed to provide any funds for this vital work."

Neuberger pointed out that the enlarged Emigrant dam would increase available flood control storage to a total of 45,000 acre-feet and would "provide considerable protection to the farms, industrial, commercial and residential property subject to floods from Bear creek."

"Adequate funds for Talent project are only a part of what is needed for really adequate flood control in southern Oregon," he said. "I have asked the President to direct the Army engineers to make a detailed study of Oregon flood control needs and hope that the new urgency of these projects will be reflected in the budget requests to be made next week."

Hypnotist Says Subject Believed Truth Being Told Although Story Doesn't Jibe

Chicago — (U.P.) — A hypnotist said yesterday that a young convict thought he was telling the truth when he said he lived through the great Chicago fire, even though his story doesn't jibe with the fact.

The 21-year-old convict, identified only as "George," was put into a deep trance Tuesday and told excitedly how he was watching "the whole Chicago" burning "in 1876."

Story Slumps Further The 1876 date was five years after the real Chicago fire, and the county jail prisoner's story slumped further when he said he had married an Elizabeth Cawski here in 1874.

A search of marriage license records showed no Elizabeth Cawski getting married in 1874. Moreover, there were no very big fires in Chicago in 1876.

But professional hypnotist Edwin Baron, who put George in the trance, said "I don't think he was pulling my leg—he wasn't in condition to."

"He actually was under the belief that he saw the fire," Baron said. "Maybe it was some figure of his imagination, but he wasn't lying."

Baron said he may ask permission from the county jail warden to question George further. In the first interview, he said, he didn't ask George what his name was in his "previous life," when he died, or who his father and mother were.

Baron's experiment was similar to those performed by amateur hypnotist Morey Bernstein, who has written a controversial book about a Pueblo, Colo., housewife who recalled in trances that she lived a previous life in Ireland as "Bridie Murphy."

The Chicago hypnotist said George and other subjects have told him the same sort of thing, "but I'm still very skeptical."

In almost all the cases, he said, he has been able to link the hypnotized person's "previous life" to something that really happened to them in their present stay on earth.

When Baron tries to suggest a certain time in history, the stories get even fancier. A man who is told he is living in Columbus' time immediately finds himself on the "Santa Maria." If the era of Julius Caesar is suggested, the subject imagines himself as an armored legion-naire against a Hollywood-style background, Baron said. "With very good hypnotic subjects," Baron said, "I've drawn a complete blank."
