HEARING AID DISCUSSED
 New York—(U.P.)—If a hearing aid is a necessity, a woman can now wear one as part of her jewelry. A new aid looks like a pair of earrings, but actually conceals a hearing receiver. It is constructed so that what little equipment is needed can be tucked out of sight in even a simple hair-do.

Liquor Control Is Topic for Union Speaker

The Rev. John M. Root spoke regarding liquor control legislation for members of the Women's Christian Temperance union when the group met Thursday at the Girls' Community club. He brought out the fact that in this country there are now 4,589,000 chronic alcoholics and that 705,000 of this number are women.

The liquor interests, he claimed, are making more alcoholics at the rate of 100,000 a year by extensive advertising. He also brought out that public sentiment against the enforcement of the liquor laws is at a low ebb and needs to be aroused. He suggested petitions in churches to prohibit sale of alcoholic beverages in grocery stores.

The local chapter now has 91 members. This includes 12 honorary members.

Mrs. Elmer Gott had charge of a "talent table" made up of home cooked foods sold at the meeting. The group approved the venture, which is a new one to the group, and will offer various items from time to time.

Mrs. Ellmore Gilstrap reported that 14 children attended the December meeting of the Loyal Temperance union, children's division of WCTU. She suggested that more leaders are needed for such groups in this city.

It also was reported that 250 copies of "Alcohol at the Wheel," a booklet, distributed to those who receive driving lessons in classes sponsored at Medford, Phoenix and Jacksonville during 1955. More are requested for this year, it was explained.

The world convention of WCTU will be held in June in Bremen, Germany.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mabel Houck, Mrs. Harry LeClerc, Mrs. Olaf Severson, Mrs. Jennie Hutchinson and Mrs. Inez Sawyer.

Mrs. Robert Brewer and Mrs. G. O. Sanden sang two duets, accompanied by Mrs. Geraldine Mitchell.

Former Officer Of Zonta Club Is Visitor Here

Miss Hazel Cook, Portland, a member of the international resolutions committee of Zonta International and former governor of District VIII, spoke briefly at the business luncheon meeting of Medford Zonta club at the Jackson hotel Thursday.

Miss Cook explained that the resolutions committee has a very important part in Zonta International for the group formulates policies for all clubs. She said that they could not consider the policies in respect to the U.S. alone as clubs in other countries also would be affected. Miss Cook listed a few of the topics now under study such as civil defense, geriatrics in respect to women, and health and safety of children. Miss Cook also said the committee is considering a policy which Zonta International may take in respect to comic books.

Mrs. Oletha Olson, club member, reported on the distribution of the gifts of food and clothing which were given to a needy family at Christmas.

Shrubs, Sprays Topics for Club, Assist at Camp

Medford Garden club women heard talks concerning landscaping and insecticides when they met January 5. Lewis Blyth's subject was "Low Growing Shrubs for Landscaping," and Don Barry, assistant county agent talked on "Effects of Spray Insecticides on Plants and People."

Dried flower arrangements were exhibited by Mrs. R. G. Beach and Mrs. Charles C. Stearns.

Tea chairmen were Mrs. W. H. Dyer and her committee, Mrs. Evelyn Tice, Mrs. Floyd Murray and Mrs. Clara Franklin. Pouring were Mrs. Clare Austin and Mrs. E. L. Crain.

Prizes were won by Mrs. N. F. Crowell and Mrs. A. O. Floyd. Guests were Mrs. Ray Hendricks, Mrs. C. C. Chamberlain and Mrs. Amy Burgess.

Among 1955 projects of the club was that done by a group of members at Camp White just previous to the holidays. They assisted the Camp White Garden club in decorating domiciliary halls with swags and wreaths. They also entertained with colored slides and served refreshments in the holiday theme.

Civil Defense Is Topic For Nurses

"We must be concerned with facing realism and measuring fear," Mrs. Nova Young, consultant nurse, medical department, Oregon Civil Defense agency, said when she spoke Wednesday in Medford to members of the local chapter of Oregon State Nurses association.

Schools of nursing now are including disaster nursing in their basic curriculum, she explained. Mrs. Young, who completed a course in November offered by the federal civil defense agency for nurses actively engaged in civil defense, emphasized that all departments are providing a reserve at the present time.

"In civil defense a disaster is referred to as when it happens rather than if it should happen." She also stated that we are all concerned with civil defense on these bases, self-preservation, evacuation, care of others and reestablishment."

Mrs. Genevieve Tachella, president of OSNA, spoke to the nurses on state level activities. Special mention was made of a forum on heart disease to be sponsored by Portland private duty section of OSNA in Portland March 22. Nurses from throughout the state will attend.

A refresher course also, for general duty nurses is being sponsored by that state section and will be conducted in various areas throughout the state.

Miss Sally Kuppilo, a newcomer to this area from Syracuse, N.Y., re-emphasized the subject of civil defense training now being conducted in nursing schools. She is a recent graduate of Syracuse university and described briefly the course presented in her class as a part of their regular training.

During a business meeting the same evening Mrs. Sue Monteth, local chapter president, introduced committee chairmen for 1956. They are Sister Sara, public relations; Mrs. Martha Donahue, membership; Miss Lou Eaton, legislation; Mrs. Mildred Richmond, budget; Miss Dorothy Collard, program; Mrs. DeLoris Rajohn, scholarship; Mrs. Juanita Anderson, nursing careers; Mrs. Belle Jones, goodwill; Miss Gertrude Molloy, civil defense, and Mrs. Ruth Amer, telephone.

New section chairmen are Mrs. Lois Beach, general duty; and Miss Ada Martin, office nurse.

Co-chairmen for a baked food sale are Mrs. Stella Demo and Miss Marie Barrett.

Hostesses for the evening were nurses from Sacred Heart hospital. They included the Mesdames Martha Murphy, Phyllis Schroeder, Ann Brooks, Lucille Emmerson, Patricia Lane, Lillian Christian, Ann Bergstrom, G. Dispenziere and Rara Rucker.

Fashion Authority To Visit Medford

Valley women will have an opportunity to preview early spring and summer fashions of the well-known Nelly Don line of frocks Thursday, January 18 at Adrienne's shop, and to meet Miss Beulah Spilsbury, assistant to designer Nelly Don, who will be at the store.

All women interested are invited to meet the designer and to view the apparel which will be informally modeled about the store during the day.

Miss Spilsbury has had many years experience and training in the fashion world. She has been with the Donnelly firm for 25 years and before that was graduated from Columbia university, New York, studied at Parsons School of Design, Paris, and was design director for Temple university in Philadelphia and New York State college.

Adrienne's is the only shop in southern Oregon which carries the well-known line of dresses and is the original handler of the apparel in the area. This is the only visit Miss Spilsbury will make en route from Portland to San Francisco.

Wenonah Members Do Welfare Work

Wenonah club women will conduct a welfare work meeting all day Thursday, January 19 in their hall. A full attendance will be needed for the work, officers pointed out.

Members met last Thursday and Friday to tie two homemade quilts which they presented to two families at Shady Cove where there is illness in the homes.

Potpourri

These new inventions are wonderful. Next thing on our list of gadgets is going to be one of the tiny transistor radios that can be carried in purse or pocket.

Claude Haggard had one with him at Knife and Fork club Monday night, and demonstrated it for the amusement of diners sitting near him. It has a little ear speaker — looks like one of those hearing-aid devices — and the wearer hooks it on one ear. Mr. H. says he takes it to meetings and if the session gets too utterly dull, he just slips the speaker on his ear and tunes in some music.

"Of course, I get a lot of sympathy from people who think I'm hard-of-hearing," said Mr. Haggard with a big grin. "but I don't mind that."

Had some enterprising salesman been at Monday night's meeting he could probably have sold several of the little radios, since some members we talked with would gladly have tuned the speaker out after the first few minutes of the talk.

Of course, the evening wasn't a total loss. The dinner was good, and we enjoyed talking with our table companions. Potpourri had a "jack-pot week," as far as food went, for Wednesday night we dined at Kim's as a guest of the chef, Lee Sheu. This Cantonese cook, whose culinary training began in his native city as a small boy, is a master with seasoning and sauce and the amount of food consumed by his eight guests was staggering.

Since everyone kept asking Lee Sheu the name of this and that, and his imperfect English was confusing, he summoned Lui Loy Lee who translated. The menu included chicken fried in almond meal; giant black mushrooms cooked in chicken broth and stuffed with a mixture of chopped shrimp and pork; wun tun, which is made from a fine dough, rather like that used for noodles, stuffed with a meat mixture and then fried in deep fat; Chinese greens with beef; almond chow mein; fried shrimp, Kim's foo young and fried rice. There was also a simply heavenly sweet-sour sauce with Chinese onions, pineapple and other tid-bits in it and of course, the meal ended with the traditional fortune cakes, and was complimented by cups and cups of jasmine tea.

If any skeptic doubts that eight people ate as much as this, just ask the Lester or Gene Casses, or State Policeman Bob Wievesiek and his wife, or ask pappy. We might add here that Lee Sheu really plans this special meal for the men—the four wives just sort of tag along.

After dinner Lee Sheu and Lui Loy Lee called our attention to a newly decorated corner of the cafe which contains a statue of Kwan Yuen, Chinese goddess of peace, always shown seated on a lotus pedestal. It was explained that every Chinese home has a statue of Kwan Yuen.

Another new bit of decor is a little mountain-side scene with water trickling through the miniature shrubs and trees. Lee Sheu, interested in guns and hunting, took care to point out the tiny animals which he had added to the mountain scene. Near the scene sits a figurine of Yin Lu Wong, or "the old man" who holds in his hand the Book of Life from which it is said he can predict all births and deaths.

The good food didn't end with Wednesday's dinner, either. Thursday night we attended the UN chapter's potluck dinner at the Harlan Bosworth home. We ate our fill of chicken and rice, a wonderful tossed salad, and a delicious dish of little boiled onions in a thick sauce, with two or maybe three hot rolls. The salad had thin slices of small raw zucchini which was a new salad ingredient for us, and one which we plan to try at home.

About the time the table was practically bare one husband said to the other "What a meal! But I wouldn't want to eat like this every night" whereupon the second husband answered, "I wouldn't either, and besides, my wife wouldn't let me."

We can assure everyone that staff members of United States National bank are very kind indeed. Not one of them called up or wrote a letter after seeing last Sunday's picture page where the cutlines said they worked at the rival bank. Potpourri was covered with shame, for everyone had been exceptionally cooperative and we even shared in the coffee which Eston Humphrey brewed for the occasion.

One line from the play "Cry, the Beloved Country" which we saw Thursday night at First Presbyterian church, will linger in our mind for a long time. This is a play about the deep and bitter struggle now going on in south Africa between the natives and the white men and one of the native ministers says, with emotion and fear, "When they have turned to loving, we will have turned to hating." O.S.

Pretty enough for a party dress is this charming little girl fashion by Joseph Love in Everglaze cotton. The striped cotton pinafore is worn over a solid-colored, full-skirted dress which ties with a big bow in back. The colorful pinafore can be worn separately.

At Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., girls learn the fundamentals of fashion, as well as reading, riting, and arithmetic. This original design by a Stephens student is in green and orange cotton velveteen and harlequin print cotton. It is modeled by its creator, Happi Smith.

New York is the world's largest coffee importing center.

A "Drug Store" May Not Be a Pharmacy!

A prescription department, efficiently organized and carefully operated, is something quite apart from selling all kinds of merchandise. It is a specialty. It is a profession. It requires the talents of Registered Pharmacists.

For years we have maintained a most respected Prescription Department — where we fill prescriptions with the utmost accuracy. Doctors appreciate the care and integrity of this vital department of ours . . . and send their patients' prescriptions to us for filling.

This is something for you to remember.

Two Portlanders Open Studio Here For Dance Pupils

Mrs. John P. Locke, formerly of Portland, has arrived in Medford to make her home and to work with her daughter, Mrs. Marvin Hoppel, (Jackie Locke) in conducting the Jackie Locke School of Dance, 1002 West Fourth street. The school was organized here about six weeks ago.

Mrs. Locke, who has worked with her daughter instructing dancing for the past 19 years, will assist in planning routines for the students and costumes for use in shows and in a June recital.

Students trained by Jackie Locke have been recognized for their entertainment in Portland, Forest Grove and Seaside and have won many awards, it is reported. Many have appeared with the Young Oregonian talent troupe and the teacher has been the instructor for the Young Oregonians.

The new Medford dance studio offers instruction in the latest dance steps and techniques from well-known dance educators of Hollywood, Chicago and New York, it is stated. Miss Locke has studied with many well-known dance instructors. Included are Nick Castle, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer dance director; Dick Nordi, of motion picture ballet; Alexandra Danilova, former prima ballerina of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, who appeared here through Jackson County Civic Music association; Ramon Talavera, a specialist in Afro-Cuban and Bongo drums; Lola Montez, Spanish and castanets.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoppel moved to Medford from Portland when he was transferred here by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.

To join a new ball of wool yarn to your knitting there is an easy trick of joining the ends to eliminate the knot. Unravel about an inch and a half of both ends of the yarn, moisten your forefinger and roll the two ends together in the palm of your hand. This makes a firm joining and does away with the unattractive knot.

Bacon curls make an attractive and tasty food garnish, served hot or cold. To make, pan fry bacon but before it is cooked thoroughly, roll each slice around the lines of a fork and stand on ends to "crisp." Drain on absorbent paper before serving.

FOR CRUNCHY PIZZA

New York—(U.P.)—Attention pizza lovers: Sprinkle the pizza pan with dry corn meal before you place the crust on it. The meal gives the pizza a crunchy texture and also makes it easier to remove from the pan.

Program Topics Discussed by Extension Unit

Program topics for next year were discussed at a meeting of Howard Home Extension unit at the home of Mrs. H. E. Peyton, 1519 Crews road, Thursday. Luncheon was served under the direction of the hostess, Mrs. Peyton, and the luncheon chairman, Mrs. Robert Ottoman.

Mrs. L. R. Bailey, program planning chairman, presented the suggested program topics for next year. Several members expressed a wish that some of the minor projects not requiring a full project day lesson, be presented as half-hour "eye openers" at the beginning of the meetings, in the same manner as the gift wrapping lessons were given this year. A number of possible topics were suggested.

Mrs. Joanne Weatherford, Jackson county home demonstration agent, gave the lesson on "Identification and Care of New Fabrics." She demonstrated proper washing methods for woolen garments, and for the new miracle fabrics nylon, dacron and orlon. There was a thorough discussion of the properties, disadvantages of the many fabrics available on the market today.

Samples of various fabrics were shown, including the new treated cottons, embossed cottons, mixed fabrics and treated woolens, as well as the old "stand-bys" worsted wool, and combed cotton.

Mrs. E. M. Gleason, unit chairman, appointed Mrs. J. S. Lydard and Mrs. J. R. Campbell leaders for a lampshade workshop. Mrs. Gleason announced that the February 9 meeting will be at the home of Mrs. W. W. Robertson, 1517 Wilson place, Medford. The lesson will be "The Art of Pressing."

Two guests, Mrs. D. M. Funk, Medford, and Mrs. Lloyd Hawley, Talent, were present for the meeting, which was attended by 22 regular unit members.

Local Group Issues Donated Articles

An estimated 495 local persons were given 4,413 articles of clothing and other items during the past year by members of the Valley View Seventh-day Adventist church, according to a report by Mrs. Elsie Arnold, home missionary leader.

The organization estimated the cash value of the work at $10,424.72 and 2,583 hours worked into collecting and distributing the items. Donations included bedding, food, towels and cash. Other clothing articles were shipped to Korea.

To give additional flavor to pumpkin, sweet potato or carrot pie, mix in 1/2 teaspoon of grated lemon rind along with the shortening when mixing the pastry.
