Festival Receives First Big Order

Ashland—The Oregon Shakespearean Festival received the first big order—a 50-seat block—for the coming season last week, according to William Patton, festival general manager.

The order came from Lane W. Barton, bishop of the missionary district of eastern Oregon and a long-standing festival fan. The seats will be for the clergymen in his district for a performance of "Romeo and Juliet."

Bishop Barton has been holding theatre parties at the festival for several years. Last August he brought more than 60 members of the clergy to a performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

"Last year's party proved so popular that it looks as though we will have quite a turnout this summer," said the Bishop in his letter. "I doubt that 50 seats will be enough, but it will do for a starter."

Last August Bishop Barton spent the first week of the festival season in Ashland to attend the opening of all the plays, and gave a brief talk to the audience as a part of the opening night ceremonies.
