Ashland Man Given Highest Award For Camp Fire Service

Henry Enders of Ashland was awarded the Luther Halsey Gulick award for outstanding service to Camp Fire Girls at the annual dinner of Rogue council held Monday evening at Hedrick Junior High school. The award, presented by Mrs. Jack Suksdorf, is the highest national symbol of recognition which Camp Fire awards.

Mr. Enders has been an active board member of Camp Fire Girls in this area for approximately 35 years. During that time he has served in many capacities, but especially in finance, camping and as regional representative. He is now a national board member.

Through his personal efforts Mr. Enders has kept Camp Fire active in Ashland for over 30 years, and has been instrumental in enlarging the area to include Talent, Medford and Eagle Point, it is stated.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Thomas McCamant. Dr. Elliott MacCracken, master of ceremonies, introduced John Laden, retiring president, who gave the annual council report. A financial report was given by Mrs. Cleo Vandenberg; camping report by Mr. Enders; Ashland cabin, Ken Jones; hallows-teen project in Medford by Mrs. James Rowan; and Talent report by Mrs. J. F. Christian.

A membership report was made by Mrs. Tom Gerety, executive director and Mrs. R. E. Graber, newly approved field director for Ashland was introduced.

New officers for the coming year were installed. They are: president, Mrs. Suksdorf; secretary, Mrs. Wesley Baker; and treasurer, Mrs. Cleo Vandenberg.

Two members of the newly organized Horizon club in Medford, Sharon Roberts and Oveta Walden, played three accordion numbers. The Horizon girls, including Linda Luman, also served coffee for the dinner.

Dr. MacCracken gave a brief summary of his trip to Europe last summer. He spoke of his pride on seeing not only the United States flag flying but also the State of Oregon flag and of the security it represents when

Festival Company To Play New York; Booked in England

New York — The Producers theatre has imported the Festival company of Stratford, Canada, and Tyrone Guthrie's production of "Tamburlaine the Great" by Christopher Marlowe for a limited engagement of 12 weeks commencing January 19 at the Broadway theatre.

This adaptation by Guthrie and Donald Wolfit of the Marlowe melodrama was seen in London in 1951.

This will be the first professional presentation of the play in the western hemisphere since Marlowe wrote it 360 years ago. The Stratford Shakespearean Festival Foundation of Canada, which Guthrie helped initiate three summers ago, presented the continental premiere in Toronto at the Royal Alexandra theatre on January 4. Following the Canadian engagement, the Producers theatre transported the production to New York.

Anthony Quayle, actor-director of England's Stratford-Upon-Avon Shakespearean company, will head the Festival company of Stratford, Canada, and appear in the title role. "Tamburlaine the Great" requires a company of 92 actors, singers and musicians.

The Shakespeare Festival company of Stratford, Ont., will journey to Britain next summer for several performances near the close of the Edinburgh Festival. Shakespeare's "Henry V" will be presented certainly, and possibly "Sophocles' Oedipus Rex."

The item must be a rarity or have historical value," Bruns explained. "Under this group come objects which may be both useless and ugly. An antique stamp is of no use in mailing a letter, for instance, but it can be worth a fortune if it's the only one of its kind."

Fine Arts Policy Newest Type of Home Insurance

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY, United Press Correspondent, New York—(U.P.)—As each generation goes by, American families become more ardent collectors of ancestral bric-a-brac.

The old family antiques may include a few eyeglasses, like the painting of the late great aunt Agatha. But they also include some works of art, which more and more people are realizing they should protect.

Even aunt Agatha's likeness could turn out to be the work of an early American primitive painter with a value far more than the frame and the canvas.

Because of these objects accumulating in attics and basements American insurance companies provide something called "fine arts insurance." Fifty years ago only museums and art dealers could get such insurance. Now homeowners can take out policies, providing their heirlooms meet certain requirements.

"The standard fire insurance policy does not cover the value of an object beyond its utility," Alfred F. Bruns, vice-president of the Liberty Mutual Insurance company, explained. "A fine arts policy insures antiques and works of art for their actual market value regardless of utility."

Sentimental attachment does not count in antique appraisals. You might tell anybody who would listen that "I wouldn't take $10,000 for this tea pot that belonged to grandma," but if it doesn't appeal to collectors, you'll never be able to insure it for $10,000.

"The item must be a rarity or have historical value," Bruns explained. "Under this group come objects which may be both useless and ugly. An antique stamp is of no use in mailing a letter, for instance, but it can be worth a fortune if it's the only one of its kind."
