

Dulles Starts 4th Year as Secretary of State in Center of Controversy

Foreign Policy Attacks Claimed Bothering Official

Washington—(U.P.)—John Foster Dulles observed his third anniversary as secretary of state today in the center of a growing political controversy over the Eisenhower administration's foreign policy.

Dulles, who will be 68 next month, knows enough of the political facts of life not to be caught unaware by his position on the hot seat. But the intensity of current attacks on him is bothering the secretary a bit.

Some Democrats, including Adlai E. Stevenson, have called on President Eisenhower to dismiss or discipline Dulles for his recent statements, in a Life magazine interview, that the administration dared to walk three times to "the brink of war" in Asia to deter Communist aggression.

Mr. Eisenhower, far from repudiating Dulles, defended him vigorously at his news conference yesterday and called him "the best secretary of state I have ever known."

Unfortunate Expressions The President said he hadn't read the Life article and didn't know whether it contained any "unfortunate expressions." But he said he has "complete faith in Mr. Dulles" and knows he is "devoted to peace."

But Sens. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) and John Sparkman (D-Ala.) called today for a congressional review of foreign policy. Most of Dulles' troubles can be traced to his particular knack for authoring, directly or indirectly, phrases such as "massive retaliation," "agonizing reappraisal," "brink of war," "unleashing Chiang Kai-shek," etc. These Dulles-initiated slogans have made Democrats and American allies see red.

The surprising thing is that hardly any of Dulles' troubles stem from off-the-cuff remarks. Most have come in speeches or other carefully prepared statements. This unusual twist has prompted one administration official to quip, "When Foster makes a mistake, it's carefully prepared."

Many Supporters Dulles, on the other hand, has many supporters. They are warm in their praise of his "calculated risk" strategy. They subscribe to Dulles' theory that potential aggressors must know in advance that the United States will fight, if necessary, to protect its vital interests and moral principles.

The secretary himself isn't planning any frontal counter-attacks on his attackers. Several weeks ago he appealed for bipartisan support during the 1956 campaign and asked that "politicizing" on foreign policy be avoided.

He simultaneously granted the now famous "brink of war" interview to Life as a way to get back at his attackers. This week he disavowed any intention to take to the political stump. He will leave that job to his supporters.

Ex-Oregonian Pleads Guilty to Extortion Sacramento, Calif.—(U.P.)—William Ellis, formerly of Hillsboro, Ore., today faced a possible sentence of five years in prison and a $5000 fine after pleading guilty yesterday to a charge of attempting to extort $10,000 from a wealthy Sacramento lumberman.

The court set-probation hearing and sentencing for Feb. 2. Ellis also admitted helping to plan a similar extortion attempt against a Portland banker, E. C. Sammons, in 1954.

The bitter puffs up its loose feathers when danger threatens in order to look more formidable.

WHITE HOUSE AIDE—This is the "Blow Your Top" doll that Presidential Secy. James Hagerty used to answer reporter's request for comment on Adlai Stevenson's statement that President Eisenhower should repudiate John Foster Dulles' "brink-of-war" statement. Hagerty squeezed the doll and its head, on a paper shaft, shot into the air.

Area Students Listed in College Who's Who

Ashland—Four Southern Oregon college students from Jackson county were selected recently for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Basic requirements for the honor are junior or senior standing, excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extra curricular activities, citizenship and service to the school and promise of future usefulness to the school.

Those chosen were Isobel Carr, 16 Florence ave., Medford; Ronald Lamb, 1518 West Main st., Medford; Beth Askew, route 1, box 502, Gold Hill, and Richard Dickenson, 726 King st., Medford.

Storms Damage Ore. Caves Parking Area

Storms during December, 1955, caused an estimated $22,000 damage to Oregon Caves National Monument in Josephine county, it was announced today.

Most of the damage was to a parking area near the caves. Slides covered some of the area while other portions of it slid away.

Other damage was to about 700 feet of trail inside the caves and water and electric lines broken by slides.

Authorities Probe Fire Killing Two Children

Battle Ground, Wash.—(U.P.)—Authorities today probed the ruins of a farmhouse two miles east of here for a cause of the fire that took the lives of two small children yesterday.

Dead were Randy Meisner, 5, and Jackie Meisner, 5 months, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Meisner Jr. Mrs. Meisner rescued three other children from the flaming home that was outside the protection of an organized fire department. Equipment from Battle Ground failed to reach the scene in time.

Ike Looks Healthy, Summerfield Posters
Portland—(U.P.)—Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield terms President Eisenhower "the healthiest-looking convalescent I ever saw."
Summerfield arrived here last night to attend tonight's $100-a-plate dinner which will be addressed by the President via closed circuit television. Summerfield parried questions on his choice of a nominee if Mr. Eisenhower does not seek re-election. "I hope he runs," he said.

Dan Thornton To Hold Press Session Here Next Month

Dan Thornton, former Colorado governor, will hold a "meet the press" session at the Jackson hotel Feb. 7, when he will visit Medford to speak at the Jackson County Lincoln club dinner, according to Mrs. Frank Bash, chairman of the county Republican Central committee.

Thornton has confirmed plans for his visit here, Mrs. Bash said. He will be guest at a luncheon of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce at noon Tuesday, Feb. 7. He will arrive here early that morning.

Paper Representatives
The "meet the press" session will be for representatives of all newspapers including high school and college publications. The session will start at 4 p.m., Mrs. Bash said.

The Central executive committee, Mrs. Bash said, has been advised by Representative Harris Ellsworth that the Farmers Home administration will be accepting emergency loan applications for processing in connection with the recent flood. Offices are located in the Manchell building in Grants Pass and in the new post office building in Eugene.

Ellsworth told the committee application blanks for loans may be secured from those offices. He said: "I shall continue to do everything I can to further promote the development of flood protection in the fourth district and trust that you or any other will feel free at all times to write me concerning any problems."

Mrs. Bash said the first edition of the Oregon Republican Yearbook will be on sale at the Lincoln Day banquet.

Central Point Forms Boat Rescue Unit

Central Point—Kneut Werner, Central Point, was elected head of a boat rescue unit which was organized last night in Central Point at a meeting of county civil defense officials and others interested.

Equipment for the 25-man unit, including harpoon guns, cables and cable cars, will be budgeted by the county civil defense. Private boats will be used and 15 trucks are to be assigned for the work.

The unit will be used for general rescue and disaster work, according to Maj. Gen. Joseph Hicks, county civil defense director. It brings to three the number of civil defense units in operation in the county. Other units are in Rogue River and Shady Cove.

Wall Street

New York—(U.P.)—Stocks declined today for the eighth session out of the 14 so far in 1956. Oils and rails were big losers. Losses through the general list ranged to more than two points.

Merchant Patrol Is Discussed at Ashland

Ashland—The Ashland city council was divided Tuesday night on a request for an ordinance licensing private merchant patrols for the city. The question was re-referred to the police committee for study and recommendation.

Request for the ordinance was made by Ray Koch, representing the Forest Green Detective agency of Medford, who said that although it was not necessary an ordinance be enacted, he preferred to come into the city under such provision.

Council members argued the need for a merchant patrol. Councilman Harry Morris said that "if the merchants feel it is necessary we can get another police patrolman."

Mayor Richard Neill said he did not believe the majority of business men want a merchant patrol. Councilman Ken Jones said, however, that he believed an ordinance would be a good thing because it would "give the city some control."

Koch told the council he planned to begin contacting businessmen this week informing them that a merchant patrol will be available.

Back Stairs: Idea for Building Again

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
Washington—(U.P.)—Backstairs at the White House: Some lower echelon officials have been kicking around an old idea—putting up a new office building to bring all of the White House offices under one roof.

This idea crops up periodically, but usually dies in fancy under the stern stare of Congress. Current discussions have a two-fold long range aim—getting "business" as such away from the White House proper, and getting such scattered branches of the executive offices as the Bureau of Budget and the Council of Economic Advisers under one roof or in a central building.

This would give the presidential family greater privacy, according to the plan now. The plan, incidentally, has not reached the White House staff level. One highly unlikely idea being batted around is for the presidential family to have either a separate residence away from the White House or an apartment.
