Washington Gridiron Controversy Hops Into State Political Arena

By B. J. McFARLAND
Seattle —(U.P.)— Football controversies, like footballs, take funny bounces and the gridiron muddle at the University of Washington today bounded right into the political arena.
Rep. John L. O'Brien, speaker of the House of Washington State Legislature, said he felt a legislative investigation should be made into the controversy.
O'Brien was to meet today with members of the executive committee of the Legislative Council, which he heads, to delve into the matter.
"We'll discuss a letter from Rep. Richard Ruoff (R-Seattle) asking for a legislative investigation into the controversy caused by the method in which football coach Johnny Cherberg was fired," O'Brien said.
He said the executive committee of the Legislative Council probably would call in University Vice-President H. P. (Dick) Everest and Athletic Director Harvey Cassill to discuss the situation.
"We need background information and facts on this matter before a full-scale investigation is started," O'Brien said.
Cherberg said he would "welcome a legislative investigation." "I think an executive meeting of the legislative leaders, me, Everest and Cassill is the thing to do," he said. "I'll tell the lawmakers a lot of things they may not know about this situation."

B Hoopmen Contend on Friday Night

St. Mary's of Medford puts its unmarried Jackson County B League record on the block against Butte Falls here Friday night.

Talent will vie at Jacksonville and Rogue River at Prospect also on Friday.

The Medford aggregation is the favorite in its tussle but encountered stiff opposition from the Loggers early in the season and could be in for a worrisome evening again. Talent is expected to roll at Jacksonville although the Redskins have shown indications they'll be tougher for the Bulldogs again.

Whale of Battle
Rogue River and Prospect could have a whale of a battle. Prospect barely nicked the Chiefs in the first half of the season. The Chiefs, who rose to a tie for fourth spot in the circuit on Tuesday, have a chance to knot for third position this week.

St. Mary's could have the services of Tony Miksche again tomorrow. He's missed the past two games because of an ankle sprain. Main hope is that Miksche, regular center, will be ready next week when the Crusaders play at Talent in what could be the conference decider.
Rogue River hopes at Prospect could hinge on how well the gap left by Bilbee Lane has been filled. Lane transferred to Medford high.

Knickerbockers Sink Philadelpha

By UNITED PRESS
The New York Knickerbockers seem intent on giving departing coach Joe Lapchick a good going away present.

Since Lapchick announced on Monday that he is retiring at the end of current National Basketball association season, the Knicks have run off two straight victories and now are only 1½ games back of second-place Boston in the Eastern division.

Ray Felix, long one of Lapchick's favorites, provided the Knicks with their latest victory Wednesday night by sinking two free throws with seven seconds remaining in the second overtime period to sink the Philadelphia Warriors, 105-104.

Elsewhere, the Minneapolis Lakers nipped the Celtics, 107-106, on Vern Mikkelsen's last second basket and the Rochester Royals handed the Syracuse Nationals their ninth straight road loss, 83-77.

Game Agent Tells Changes In Angling Rules on Rogue

Changes in angling laws, which affect the Rogue river watershed (zone 4), have been outlined by Cole M. Rivers, Grants Pass, field agent of the Oregon State Game Commission for the Rogue district.

The Commission adopted the 1956 regulations for the state at their January 27 session. There were no additions or deletions from the tentative regulations published two weeks previously.

Rogue changes were: (1) The new bag-limit of 2 fish per day for steelhead; (2) an earlier opening of August 15 for silvers; (3) a January 15 to February 27 season for steelhead on the Applegate; (4), a January 15 to February 15 season for steelhead on the Rogue below the mouth of the Applegate and (5), an April 28 opening for Willow Creek reservoir.

Steelhead Season
By special motion of the Commission, the new winter steelhead season adopted for the Rogue below the mouth of the Applegate will go into effect immediately following the filing of the new laws with the secretary of state. The Rogue area closed after January 31 as per the 1955 regulations, but the new 1956 regulation will go into effect on Saturday, February 11 at which time the winter season will reopen through, and including, February 15. This will give an additional five days for winter steelhead fishing on the Rogue this year.

The open areas on the Applegate and Illinois Rivers will not close until February 28.

The new synopsis for 1956 will probably be available at license agencies in early March.

The field agent and fish biologist said that the Illinois and Applegate rivers are now low and clear, finally, with only an occasional shot of mud from logging operations. Week ends are best for steelhead fishing, however. Rivers said that the mud in the Applegate is from slate creek down.

Rogue Fives Resume Play Tomorrow
Counting games resume again this week end for high schools of the Rogue League with Phoenix and Crater picked to score sweeps in their respective basketball series.

Phoenix plays at Eagle Point on Friday and Eagle Point goes to Phoenix on Saturday. Crater has engagements with Illinois Valley at Cave Junction on Friday and at Central Point on Saturday night.

The Pirates of Phoenix are leading the circuit without a blemish in six successive games and head their nearest rival by three full games. They are, therefore, in a highly favored position to sweep on to the championship.

Closest Tussle
However, the Eagles, in a game on their own floor, gave Phoenix its closest league fray of the season and will be making the big effort to spoil the spotless record of the Pirates. Phoenix won over EP at Phoenix by a one-sided margin.

Crater's Comets were winners by good spreads in two previous meetings with IV's Cougars, who still are after their first victory of the 1955-1956 campaign.

Eagle Point and Crater have their aims on second place in the loop, if they can't have first. They are now tier at that spot. First and second place teams in the standings will draw first night byes in the District 6 A-2 southern division tournament. That is the only way league action will affect state tournament ambitions of the league members.

Ashland Frosh Defeat Comets
Central Point—Ashland high freshmen took control in the third quarter to trip the Crater frosh basketball team 56 to 47 on Tuesday.

Ashland headed 16 to 12 at the quarter and 32 to 30 at the half then gained 44 to 38 lead in the third stanza.

Mark Fitch of Ashland scored 24 points. Fourteen of these, 10 on free shots, were recorded in the second half. Allen Barnes got 19 for Crater and Patzke 14 for Ashland.

Vikings' Paul Poetsch Can't Play In Tourney
Portland —(U.P.)— Paul Poetsch, fiery guard for Portland State's basketball team, has been ruled ineligible for the district 2 NAIA basketball tournament.

Eldon Fix, district committee chairman, said Poetsch had been ruled out because he played a few minutes for the University of Oregon varsity in December of 1952. Joe Holland, PSC athletic director, said the ruling will be appealed to NAIA headquarters in Kansas City.

LITRELL INKS PACT
Portland —(U.P.)— Jack Littrell shortstop obtained by Portland from Kansas City, has signed a contract for the coming baseball season, General Manager Joe Ziegler said today.

NET CHAMP AT TULANE

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—THIRTEEN

C. Andrade Victor Over Jim Carter

Chicago —(U.P.)— Cisco Andrade beat Jimmy Carter in a lightweight fight and picked up $500 additional for the chore, but neither the winner nor the loser was happy about the outcome today.

"He wants a rematch," Andrade and his manager, Ralph Gambina, snorted. "Let him make the weight and we'll give him a rematch. Even if we got the title, we'll give him a match. But let him make the weight first."

"I thought I got robbed," Carter said softly. "I know I staggered him, and sure, he was throwing those left jabs. But I was blocking half of them or more. I want a rematch with him, and I want a title fight, and the IBC told me I ought to have one."

It was a majority decision for Andrade with Referee Joey White scoring 96-95 and Judge E. Allen Frankel 95-94 for him while Judge Lou Capparelli gave it to Carter, 97-95.

Made Weight
Andrade gained his additional $500, in addition to 25 percent of the net of $2,877 paid by 2,027 fans and $4,000 for television, because Carter did not make the stipulated weight of 137 pounds. Instead the three time champion weighed 140 compared to 136 for Andrade, who gained his 32nd win in 35 pro bouts.

Andrade piled up points throughout the bout with his speedy left jabs and occasional right hands. He also was credited with the only knockdown of the fight, even though Referee White didn't allow it.

That came in the fourth round when Carter, his nose bleeding, staggered Andrade with a sharp right to the jaw. As Andrade reeled toward the ropes, his left hook connected to Carter's chin and the former titleholder went down.

He was found guilty of embezzling $1000 from the Willard hotel and Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg sentenced him to 10 years in the state penitentiary.
