

Dance Planned In Shady Cove For Dimes March

Shady Cove—Two civic projects will be conducted within the week at Shady Cove.

The first, a dance Saturday, February 4 at the Shady Cove Veterans of Foreign Wars hall, will benefit the March of Dimes drive and will be sponsored by the Steelhead post, VFW and auxiliary, Leroy Cooper's orchestra will furnish the music.

The project in which residents of the area also are asked to participate will be a visit of the blood bank unit Tuesday, February 7. Mrs. Gene House of the auxiliary reported that a house-to-house campaign will be in effect to sign up donors and stated a goal of 400 has been set. She made the report at a meeting of the auxiliary held January 20.

Mrs. Paul Dupras, a candidate, was initiated.

Reports also made at the meeting concerned community service by Mrs. Dan Krotz; visitations by the group to Camp White domiciliary by Mrs. Jim Cassal and a report on civilian defense by Mrs. Dale Sawyer, who also expressed appreciation to the auxiliary for kindnesses shown her following a recent leg injury.

An article on Hodgkins disease and leukemia in connection with cancer were read by Mrs. Grant Hubbel.

Past Noble Grands Of Gold Hill Meet At Thompson Home

Gold Hill—Amethyst Rebekah Past Noble Grands club met January 26 at the home of Mrs. Paul Thompson. Members voted to buy glasses for the lodge dining room.

Plans will be completed at the next meeting for the Past Noble Grands' annual dinner to be given in March. Election of officers will be held in February. The February meeting will be in the form of a Valentine party at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Martin, with Mrs. John Novak as co-hostess.

Castillo's 'Coronet Line' In Paris Spring Collection

By BARBARA MILLER

United Press Correspondent Paris—(U.P.)—Woman's struggle for womanly curves ran today into the upside down ice cream cone effect of Lanvin-Castillo's "coronet line" which makes bosoms precariously high and almost extinct.

Castillo of Lanvin came forth yesterday with the only "look" worthy of the name of this season. Today, on the third day of the Paris spring dress collections, Jean Desses is presenting a more conservative approach toward the fashionable silhouette for the next six months.

Castillo's coronet line featured a silhouette which flared out from shoulder to hem... the waistline often moved up to where the bust used to be. The bustline... almost non-existent.

Castillo also came up with "canezous"-flared, waist length boleros for daytime dresses. The canezous gave the effect of two ice cream cones nestled one on top of the other.

Underneath the canezous, princess-style dresses flared out in one continuous line broken only by drapes knotted under the bust, or breast-high martingales.

Maternity Look

Castillo's "maternity" look in dance dresses startled even his most fervent admirers. Flounces jutted out from under the bustline, in one and two tiers, in what can only be described as a very pregnant way. The mannequin's forward carriage heightened this impression.

Underlining his shortened bustline, Castillo showed diagonal midriff pockets, and applied fringed ribbons. To heighten his cone silhouette, he placed sequined bows and spanish combs atop the mannequin's chignon.

Tall crowned hats and sloping wavy brims topped the "coronet" by day.

His coats won applause. Flared in a single line by day, they took on foreign glamour at night.

A Favorite

The "burnoose" was a favorite. Of a black satin striped in white, the hooded wrap was lined and edged with white chiffon. Underneath, a white chiffon dress flowed out under the bust in a less exaggerated line.

In a late night show, Maggy Rouff chalked up another defeat for the pro-bosom couturiers.

Her styles brought reminiscent sighs from all former 1920 flappers. In general, this is a bit behind the times but certain details are to be found in many 1956 collections.

Bosomless and waistless, her clothes dropped to the hips and were fixed there with low-slung martingales and buttoned panels.

Many jersey and wool dresses were gathered on bands. This detail fitted dresses under the bosom and at the hips. Jackets were caught low in back.

Dinner Meeting Held by Auxiliary; Contribution Made

Southern Oregon Osteopathic auxiliary held their January dinner meeting at the home of Mrs. G. S. Jennings, Saginaw drive, Monday evening.

This year's officers for the auxiliary are, president, Mrs. C. D. Lemley; vice-president, Mrs. G. S. Jennings; secretary, Mrs. W. W. Howard; and treasurer, Mrs. A. A. Griffin.

A contribution of $225 was sent to the organization's projects, the Osteopathic Progress fund, and the student loan and the scholarship fund.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. W. W. Howard in February.

Concert Pianist Is Initiated by SOC Honorary

Ashland—Gamma chapter of Delta Phi Alpha, campus music honorary, initiated Miss Paulena Carter, well known young concert pianist, as an honorary member, in a special candlelight ceremony conducted Monday at the college.

The first auxiliary meeting was held yesterday. The public is always welcome to attend the Townsend club or auxiliary meetings.

Medford Couples Take Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Graff Jr., Hillside drive, and Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Halboth, 2419 Hillcrest road, returned home this week from a two and one-half weeks trip to California, Arizona and Nevada.

They first visited in Los Angeles and at Palm Springs were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alley of Medford. The group flew in the Alley's plane to Las Vegas and Phoenix and returned to Palm Springs before leaving for home.

A 1,000 pound steer produces about 35 pounds of porterhouse, T-bone and club steak, about 55 pounds of sirloin and 50 pounds of round steak.

Miss Lucy Gardner, Eagle Point high school, and Miss Vicki Robertson, Medford senior high school, were recently selected winners in their schools of a homemaking contest sponsored by General Mills, Inc.

The two girls will compete with others in the state for a $1,500 scholarship and a chance to compete on a national level.

Miss Gardner and Miss Robertson were selected on the basis of written examination given senior girls to test home-making knowledge and attitudes.

Both girls will receive a golden award pin.
