

Segregation Leaders Plan To Fight Return Of Autherine Lucy

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—(U.P.)—Segregation leaders today planned organized opposition today to the return to classes of Autherine Lucy, the University of Alabama's first Negro student.

Word was spread inviting all "interested persons" to a mass meeting tonight to form a local White Citizens Council, an organization which has already spread over much of the South.

Seek Lawful Means
The councils, claiming membership of top white leadership in communities already having chapters, have the announced goal of seeking to preserve all forms of racial segregation by lawful means.

Attorney Hugh Locke told a Birmingham, Ala., council at its meeting Thursday night that Miss Lucy "is not in Alabama to get an education—that is real ridiculous. She is a tool of people who want to blacken the white race of the South." Miss Lucy was excluded from class after rioting broke out during her three days on the campus. A federal court hearing set for Feb. 29 is expected to determine whether she will return.

Student Transfers
The 26-year-old woman was disclosed Thursday night to have transferred last Tuesday to the biracial Talladega College at Talladega, Ala., 110 miles east of here to "rest" and keep up with her classwork as an unofficial student.

Arthur D. Gray, president of the integrated liberal arts college said she did not enroll and planned to remain only about 10 days.

The college, never exclusively white, has only six white students among its predominantly Negro student body at present. Gray said white students first enrolled there 50 years ago.

He wrote in acknowledgment, "I have received your most agreeable packet and I am very very gay for it included. Unfortunately we are too much far, and I send to you this small part of my city, but I shall you always remember."
