SLIPPED DISCS

Many persons ask about slipped discs—especially in the lower region of the back. As I have said before, when a person has a severe lower backache, especially when he has to limp or use a cane, and when perhaps he walks over to one side, the chances are that he has a displaced disc and not an ordinary backache due to arthritis of the spine. What often makes the diagnosis hard is that a man who has some arthritis of the spine has also a displaced disc.

Many persons say to me, "I have been advised to have an operation, but I hesitate to go ahead because my neighbor had one, and he didn't get any better." His trouble may have been that the diagnosis was wrong, and he really did not have a displaced disc. It is extremely important that before an operation is performed, a good diagnosis be made by an expert. What is unfortunate is that this diagnosis is sometimes so difficult that even experts can be wrong.

For instance: I was just reading an article by W. E. Stern, of Portland, Ore., who reported the results obtained by 175 patients who were operated on for pain which looked like that due to a displaced disc. At operation on 163 the displaced disc was found, but in 12 it was not found. Dr. Stern then went back over the records to see if he could find what was peculiar about the stories and findings of the patients who had the symptoms and pre-operative findings of a disc; but no disc at operation.

Some Signs of Injury

As he said, most of the patients suffered from back pain, pain in a thigh and leg, and limitation of movement of the back. They felt pain when the doctor raised the thigh on one side with the leg extended (straight) at the knee, and they had some signs of injury to a nerve as shown by a numb place on one leg. In all but one of the cases an x-ray study of the spinal canal was made after the injection of some material. There were a few cases in which the x-ray man thought he saw trouble and yet it was not found at operation. In other cases the x-ray man could not see anything wrong, and a displaced disc was found at operation.

In some cases the diagnosis was fairly definite from the history of sudden severe stabbing pain that ran down the back of the thigh. This came perhaps with the lifting of a trunk in the attic. I have seen persons who suffered from much sudden pain in one thigh and leg, and who became so weak that they fell to the floor. Occasionally, the patient comes in in a wheel chair or on crutches, and then one can be pretty sure that something is seriously wrong. The other day, going down the hall in my office building, I saw a woman ahead of me walking bent 'way over to one side. She was obviously in great pain, and leaning heavily on her husband's shoulder. She pretty certainly had a displaced disc.

Would Want Thorough Test

As I have said before, if I had such symptoms I would want to have a thorough examination by an expert neurologist; I would like to talk to an expert on arthritis, and I would probably ask an able x-ray man to inject air or something into my spinal column to see if he could demonstrate a disc projecting backward and pressing on some of

Russian Leaders Set Britain Visit Date

London—(U.P.)—Britain has proposed April 15 as the date for the Soviet leaders' London visit which will include a meeting with Queen Elizabeth, it was learned Saturday.

The British program provides for an eight-day visit of Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Fifty officers of Scotland Yard will form a day and night guard for the visitors, who also will bring their own bodyguard of 20 Russian secret policemen, the sources disclosed.

The date of the Soviet visit has been advanced to enable the Kremlin leaders to be back in Moscow in time for the May Day celebration.

Shooting Occurred in the Office of Luico Flowers, a part owner of the F. & B. Department store which caters to Negro trade, about 7:30 p.m.

Land said only Flowers and another person, he refused to identify, were in the office where Brewer was shot to death. The solicitor said Flowers was being held for "investigation and questioning" but no charges had been placed against him.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their false teeth dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your false teeth. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.
