Safecrackers Take $3500

From Portland University

Portland — (U.P.) — Safecrackers sometime Thursday night "peeled" an ancient walk-in vault on the University of Portland campus and made off with some $3500.

Leo Walsh, treasurer of the school, told police that about $700 of the money was school funds and the balance was being held for students.

As We Live

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PH.D.

Deflate Husband's Ego
By Laughing At Him

When a person likes to show off by making himself out to be superior, it is best to deflate his ego.

Dr. Hurlock

(Q) We have been married two years, have a small baby, and are very happy.
My only real problem is the way my husband acts when his mother is around. My mother-in-law is a very nice person and has been very good to all of her married children.
Last Sunday, my husband invited her down for the evening.
He fixed supper for all of us, a thing he has never done before. He started to insult my cooking and tried to make me out to be dumb in front of his mother. It was all done in a joking way but his mother and I didn't see the joke. His mother said he was showing off. My sister-in-law told me her husband acts the same way in front of his mother. I would like to know what to say about this to my husband to get him over this habit. It has happened before but only when his mother is with us.

E. J.

(A) As long as you obviously have your mother-in-law on your side, it should not be hard to break your husband of the habit of inflating his ego at your expense, and that is what he is doing. Talk over the matter with your mother-in-law in private and get her cooperation and support.

The best way to fight fire, as the old saying goes, is with fire.
This means you should give your husband a taste of his own medicine. Let him see how he feels when you ridicule him in front of his mother or someone he wants to impress.

Line of Attack
He obviously knows you are proud of your cooking and household skills. That is why he is picking on them and teasing you about them. By now, you surely know what he is proud of and what he thinks he can do well.
That is where your line of attack should be. When he starts to talk about your cooking or your 'stupidity' in front of his mother, tell her you have a good story about your husband she would enjoy. Then tell her about some of the things he has done, such as fixing a lunch, and how slow, inefficient, and messy he was about it. Be sure this is done in a joking way and that your mother-in-law laughs with you.

Mussolini's Letter
To Churchill Bared

Milan, Italy — (U.P.) — Dictator Benito Mussolini wrote to Winston Churchill nearly 11 years ago offering "documents" that would help the then British prime minister, fight Communism, it was reported today.

The letter never reached Churchill; a German officer to whom it was entrusted was imprisoned before he could deliver it.

The Italian magazine "Epoca" published what it said was a photostatic copy of the letter, written on Mussolini's personal stationery.

The German officer, identified as Franz Spoegler, said he received the letter April 24, 1945, from the Italian dictator personally. He said he was put in a prison camp at Rimini before he could deliver it.

Young Bandit Settles
For Dollar and Buns

Bridgeport, Conn. — (U.P.) — A young bandit entered a bakery and told the clerk, Mrs. John Mihaley:

"I have a knife here in my pocket. Give me all of the money you have and you won't get hurt."

Mrs. Mihaley pleaded that if she did, she would lose her job.
She told him she had a son about his age and delivered a 10-minute sermon about the foolishness of his act.

"All right, lady," said the fidgety young man, "just give me a dollar and some sugar buns."

She did and he left.

Nationalist Chinese
Welcome Veto Caster

Taipei, Formosa — (U.P.) — T. F.
Tsiang received a hero's welcome here today for casting the Nationalist Chinese veto which kept Outer Mongolia out of the United Nations.

He told newsmen on his arrival at the airport here that the veto, the first ever cast by Nationalist China, had a small but not insignificant effect on the future status of the world body.

Tsiang said Red China "definitely" would not be admitted to the United Nations this year.

He said every member of the U.N. outside the Communist bloc wanted to admit Japan but he would not predict the outcome.
