

All 16 High School Teams Play Today in A-1 Tourney

Eugene — (U.P.) — All 16 teams of the class A-1 high school basketball tourney go into action today but half of them went into the tourney's third day with nothing better to hope for than a fifth place finish.

First round play came to a close last night after two Tuesday night games and six games yesterday had divided the field in half, the winners looking for a title shot and the losers relegated to a consolation bracket.

Eugene Wins

Eugene and Franklin, two favorites, were both hard pressed to force their way past the first round. Eugene barely edged by Pendleton, 51-49, and South Salem threatened Franklin all the way before the Quakers managed to pull out with a 65-62 decision.

Milwaukie got by North Salem in the fifth game of the tourney and the first one that produced anything like an easy victory.

The Mustangs finished up with a 58-47 win, after holding a 33-10 halftime margin.

Eddie Grossenbacher, pint-sized Milwaukie floorman, led the game's scoring with 20.

Medford turned in the second widest margin of any team in first round play with its 58-49 win over Beaverton. The Tornado held a 32-27 halftime advantage and stayed out of trouble from there on in. Dick Copple, younger brother of the Tornado's all-star of a year ago, Larry Copple, dumped in 19 for Medford.

Marshfield joined the other winners in the quarter-final bracket with a 48-43 win over Mac-Hi but the entire margin of victory came in the closing 45 seconds of play.

Barry Bullard hit a charity toss, Hardy Spurgeon a two-pointer and Roger Johnson a pair from the gift stripe to provide the difference in the waning moments. Johnson came home with 20 to lead the Pirates and George Lieuallan paced Mac-Hi with 13.

Corvallis Loses

Jefferson, trailing at the half, staged off a desperate fourth period rally to down Corvallis 50-48 in the final game of first round action last night.

John Graham made two free throws to put Corvallis to within two points and had another chance with 16 seconds left but missed the first try and Jerry Anderson of Jeff grabbed the rebound.

Lincoln and Klamath Falls, who won Tuesday night, open the championship bracket play today, meeting at 3 p.m. Eugene and Franklin follow at 4:15.

Milwaukie and Medford collide at 7:30 tonight with Marshfield and Jefferson writing the finish to the third day of action.

Aeronautical Museum Will House Gigantic Collection

Washington — (U.P.) — The biggest aeronautical collection in the world—from ancient Chinese kites to the first jet to break the sound barrier—will be housed in a gigantic museum here.

It will be under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution and probably will be called the National Air Museum. Congress first authorized construction of the building to house the collection in 1943, but funds have not yet been provided.

However, the Institution is pushing harder than ever to get Congress to appropriate the long-delayed money. As it stands now, the Smithsonian is so short of space it has crammed some of its aviation exhibits into an old tin shed nearby. Some of these have never been uncrammed.

Planes Await Admission

Hundreds of planes, most of them "famous firsts," are awaiting admission in the proposed air museum. The Air Force has some 200 planes in storage, and many more are scattered in hangars all over the country.

The big problem facing architects is that such a superstructure would dwarf all surrounding monuments and buildings, including the capitol. The building would be nearly 800 feet high and about 480 by 1,000 feet.

Some planners think the site should be in an outlying area where it could not overpower architecturally whatever is near it. Others feel that a "strong national desire" dictates having the building close to other important museums of Washington. Whatever the decision is, the site is sure to be a big tourist attraction.

Large crowds now see many of the "famous firsts" in aviation history at the present Smithsonian exhibit. The Wright Brothers' Kitty Hawk plane and Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" hang from the ceiling, supported by steel girders. Lindbergh's silver monoplane has been seen by more people than any other plane in history.

Da Vinci Crafts

In addition to ancient Chinese and European kites, the institution has models of crafts by the 16th century jack-of-all-trades, Leonardo da Vinci. These exhibits will all be transferred once the contemplated air museum is completed.

The air museum will want only significant crafts that have made aviation history. Each plane will have to pass through "rigid standards of importance" before becoming part of the collection.

The exhibit will include some lighter-than-air balloons, Wiley Post's globe-circling "Winnie Mae" and some World War I and II planes, including Billy Mitchell's famous Spad.

The first jet to break the sound barrier, the Bell XI, and rocket "firsts" are expected to be in the incomparable collection.

Yankees' Hank Bauer Strikes Out

Lakeland, Fla. — (U.P.) — Hommerin' Hank Bauer, one of the Yankees' top players in last season's World Series, is having a tough time getting his eye on the ball this spring.

Bauer, who struck out twice against Boston on Tuesday, whiffed three more times in Wednesday's 2-0 loss to the Red Sox.

The Detroit Tigers, who lost to St. Louis, 7-4, Wednesday, meet the Yankees here today.

Costello, first Irish Prime Minister to visit the United States, received a warm welcome from President Eisenhower and other high ranking U.S. officials when he arrived yesterday for a three-day visit in Washington.

After a White House lunch, he discussed Ireland's role as a newly elected member of the United Nations with acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.

Investigate Death Of Pretty Co-Ed

Alva, Okla. — (U.P.) — A preliminary autopsy report showed today that an attractive 22-year-old coed was burned alive in her automobile, apparently after a savage sex attack.

County Atty. H. D. Potts said further chemical tests would be needed to confirm that the cremated victim, Mrs. Mildred Ann Reynolds, was raped. But surface appearances indicated she was.

Mrs. Reynolds, married only nine months, was the wife of R. D. Reynolds, a high school basketball coach at nearby Avard, Okla. She was attending Northwestern State College and was driving home Tuesday when attacked.

Investigators said someone crowded Mrs. Reynolds' automobile off a country road and caused it to smash into a tree. Plaster casts were made of the second vehicle's tire tracks.

Tall, dry grass was smashed flat near where her car was found, indicating a fierce struggle took place. One of her shoes, stained with blood, lay nearby. Mrs. Reynolds' fire-blackened body was in the automobile. Investigators said a highly flammable liquid had been splashed over the car, which was then set on fire.

SUSPECT — FBI agents in New York arrested Arthur Paisner, 33 (above), of the Bronx while he was a patient in the hospital. They charged him with staging one-man $188,000 holdup at Port Chester, N. Y., March 2. According to the FBI, Paisner kidnaped a woman bank teller and forced her to drive him around for 10 hours before entering the bank.

Airplanes Used To Distribute Mouse Bait

Ithaca, N.Y. — (U.P.) — The war against mice in New York state apple orchards has taken to the air.

Cornell University conservation department experts have tested the plan of distributing mouse bait by the use of airplanes and thus cut growers' labor and machine costs.

A 2,000-acre farm can be "bait-bombed" by plane in less than a day. Distributing the bait by hand would require about two weeks.
