Idaho Woman Joined With Son in Portland After 32-Year Search

Portland — (U.P.) — An Idaho woman was in Portland today, reunited with a son she had been searching for 32 years.

Mrs. Mary Workman Christensen, of American Falls, Ida., arrived here last Friday after a chance visit to a Portland home by two missionaries had led to the 62-year-old mother's learning the identity of one of two missing sons.

The story-book climax to the 32-year search began to unfold last February when the missionary ladies visited the home of Mrs. Gilbert Darling here. Second Link Comes

Mrs. Darling happened to mention that her husband had long been anxious to learn the identity of his real parents. He had been adopted from a Boise children's home while very young.

The second link in the chain came when the missionaries later called on another Portland resident, Mrs. John L. Cook. She mentioned she had lived in Idaho and by chance they mentioned Mrs. Darling and her husband's hope to some day find his mother.

To Mrs. Cook the talk was not idle chatter. The mention of Mrs. Mary Workman, now Mrs. Workman Christensen, was a close friend of Mrs. Cook's and had visited in Portland only a few weeks previously.

The missionary ladies and Mrs. Cook broke the news to Mrs. Darling. She, wanting to be sure before she told her husband, wrote Mrs. Christensen immediately.

Wheels in Motion

A few days later she had her answer. She handed the letter to her husband and the wheels were in motion for the reunion.

Mrs. Christensen said that she and her first husband were poor and lived on a small ranch near Rockland, Ida. They decided to separate in 1924 and the six children were placed in a children's home. After she remarried she went to reclaim the children and found only two there. Two had been adopted, another was being tried out by a family and her first husband had taken one.

The finding of her son here left her with only one missing child, Joseph Oliver, "Little Joey," was three at the time he left the home. She believes he was adopted by a well-to-do couple in Twin Falls, Ida. He would be about 35 years old now.

Veterinarian Confers On Turkey Handling

Salem — (U.P.) — State Veterinarian Dr. K. J. Peterson flew to San Francisco last night for conferences on handling of turkey flocks in which psittacosis has been diagnosed.

So far, the disease has been reported in two Oregon flocks and one California flock.

Dr. A. G. Beagle, federal veterinarian at Portland, will also attend the conferences.

The policy meet was called by Dr. C. D. Van Houweling, director of livestock regulatory programs for the agricultural research service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Dr. Van Houweling has been taking part in a series of regional meetings in the west on foreign animal disease problems.

Foam Rubber Mattress Sent To Prince Rainier

London — (U.P.) — A double-bed size foam rubber mattress was enroute to Monaco today as a wedding present to Prince Rainier III and actress Grace Kelly.

The mattress, a gift from a Lawrence, Mass., manufacturer, passed through London airport en route to Monte Carlo. It was addressed simply to "Prince Rainier and his princess, Monaco."
