Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
 United Press Correspondent

Hollywood—(U.P.)—Mary Pickford, America's Sweetheart, said today she's so upset over Hollywood's failure to build a film museum that she's leaving her art and movie treasures to three other cities.

The petite actress in silent films was a girl with long golden curls. But in real life Miss Pickford is a determined woman and one of the few Hollywoodites with community spirit.

Last year bonds were sold to build a museum in the old Warner Bros. studio where tourists could see movie props and mementos and watch movies being made. Money was raised to paint Hollywood Boulevard's sidewalks pink and install fancy street lights. But the drive for the museum fizzled.

Studio Heads Blamed
 "I do not hesitate to say the heads of the studios are to blame," Miss Pickford said as she sat in the library of her home. "They did not cooperate. They were negligent and short-sighted. The museum would earn good will. It also would earn money for the motion picture relief fund. Millions of tourists drive down Hollywood Boulevard every year and are depressed. There's nothing for them to see."

Miss Pickford said unless Hollywood gets on the ball she will change her will and leave her fortune in art objects and all the films she made for Biograph to existing museums. Which three cities will get her belongings still is undecided.

Windfall Promised
 But they'll get a windfall.

Husband Owes Loyalty To His Present Wife
 When a man is divorced from his wife and remarried, he owes his first loyalty to his second wife.

(Q) "I married a divorced man two years ago and we have been very happy except for one thing, his first wife's constant calling on him for help and advice. She is living alone, has a job, and does not want alimony from my husband. There were no children so she wanted to be independent. But, she is always calling up my husband to ask his advice about this or that matter. Then she asks him to come to her apartment to help her with different business matters, such as her income tax and her investments. She has some money left by her parents and he used to help her with her investments when they were married. I resent the way she calls on my husband and the way he goes to see her at her apartment. He says I am just jealous. Am I?" — B.N.

(A) You probably are jealous of your husband's first wife and the fact that he still is interested enough in her to want to go see her and help out when she calls on him for help. It certainly suggests that there is still a pretty strong tie between them.

If you want to avoid possible trouble for yourself, I suggest you ask your husband to cut off his relationship with his first wife. You do not say why they were divorced or who was responsible for the divorce, but, as he is now married to you, he owes you his first consideration.

As a businesswoman, she can go to a lawyer for professional advice or to a bank. It looks as if she is using business as an excuse to get your husband to come to see her. She may be trying to win him back in this way and that is why you should try to break off the relationship as soon as possible if you want your marriage to last.

Memorial To Ardent Fisherman Erected

Honor, Mich.—(U.P.)—A large rock memorial to Ralph R. Kimball, an "ardent fisherman," has been placed on the bank of the Platte river near here by Drs. Charles L. Patton and Christopher Parnall.

The unusual memorial is located near a spot where the three men went trout fishing together for many years.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—(U.P.)—After 12-year-old Petra Voight found a wrist watch in front of a department store, her father telephoned police to report the find. Detective Thomas P. McGavin was taking the report from Voight when he walked Robert Berger of Rockford to report he had lost a watch—the one the girl found.

Cow Produces 4,429 Quarts of Milk in Year

Pittsburgh—(U.P.)—A Guernsey cow, owned by the Harold I. Meanor farm in the Allegheny County community of Clinton, has produced 4,429 quarts of milk in a year, the American Guernsey Cattle club reported.

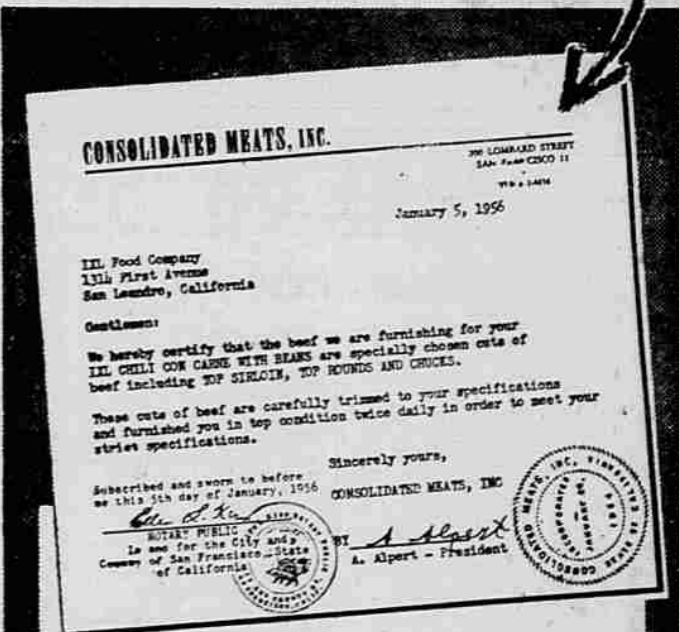

On twice-a-day milking, Halmar's Royal Hope completed an official advance registry record of 9,087 pounds of milk and 434 pounds of fat.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—(U.P.)—They had to give Recruit Elmer Kooienga of Zeeland an extra sheet of paper to list his brothers and sisters when he joined the National Guard here. The medical history form has four spaces for listing brothers and sisters; Kooienga has 20.
