In The Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

Interesting educational note: Mathematics plays a much bigger role in Portland public schools than it does in the country as a whole. In fact, speakers at a recent meeting of the Portland school board submitted figures showing that Portland high school students get nearly twice as much math as the national average.

Seventy-four per cent of them get one full year of algebra and 71 per cent take two years or more of high school mathematics.

WHY is that interesting? Well, our world is changing. There was a time when simple arithmetic (addition, subtraction, multiplication and division) was mathematical equipment enough for the average person. If one ran a store, or a little factory, simple arithmetic enabled him to know how much his customers owed him, how much he owed his creditors, what his inventory amounted to at the end of the year, how much he took in, how much it cost him to do business, and how much he made—or lost—over a given period of time.

That was a time when we were a nation of small shopkeepers and small manufacturers.

THAT DAY is past. We're now up to our ears in big business. Science—including research—and engineering are big factors in modern progress. Pure science and the practical application of pure science by trained engineers call for higher mathematics in a big way.

It isn't just an individual question of making a better living. Our national future is at stake. It takes scientists and engineers to keep up with the modern world. There are disturbing stories to the effect that Russia is training more of them than we are.

The reason that is disturbing is that if Russia trains more and better scientists and engineers than we do Russia will eventually PULL OUT AHEAD OF US. That is why the statement that in the Portland public schools mathematics is playing a bigger role than in the country generally is interesting. If it is true, Portland is to be congratulated.

NOW (shudder!!!) back to politics.

By a vote of 83 to two, the once dignified senate of the United States passes a patchwork election-year farm bill put together by political farmers intent on raising a big crop of votes in the farm states.

It couldn't have been meant seriously as a sincere effort (however misguided) to improve the long-term economic status of the farmer, because if something slips and it becomes a law its effect will be to build up even more staggering surpluses at a time when our agricultural surpluses are already huge and unwieldy. As long as these vast surpluses hang over the markets of the future American agriculture will be in a precarious position.

I suppose the strategy is to bat up a bill that Ike will have to veto. The political farmers will then shrug their shoulders and say: "We tried to do our duty by the farmer, but the President just wouldn't let us. So let him and Benson stew in their own juice."

I CAN'T help wondering if the political farmers haven't misjudged the caliber of the American farmer. In that connection I'd like to quote a Minneapolis business man with whom I was talking awhile back. I asked him how Minnesota farmers feel about Secretary Benson. He answered:

"I think anyone will have to admit that as long as high support subsidies are provided and paid the grain farmers in the Minneapolis area—which includes Minnesota and the Dakotas—will take them and go on growing all the grain they can under the acreage restrictions.

"But there is much admiration for Benson among intelligent farmers in our area. They think he is an honest man who is doing his best to rescue agriculture from the mess in which it finds itself as a result of continuing high subsidies for the so-called basic farm crops long after the war emergency that made them necessary had passed."

Low-Level Highway Appears To Be Safe From Flood Water

Salem—(U.P.)—R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer, said today the water-level Columbia river highway appeared to be safe from flood waters this spring—unless a possible 1956 flood overshadows the record-breaking high water of 1894. In reply to Gov. Elmo Smith's suggestion that all state agencies be alert to potential flood dangers this spring, Baldock said that conditions were such that the 1948 flood can easily be exceeded and possibly the 1894 record equaled.

But barring a catastrophe, Baldock said it looked like U. S. highway 30 would not be washed. In laying the grade line in 1920 along the bank of the Snake river in Malheur county, Baldock said the elevation was placed two feet above 1894 high water.

"I followed the same policy on the new water-level grade along the Columbia river, based on the assumption that where water has risen once it will eventually rise again in the long cycles," Baldock explained.

He said the 1948 Columbia river flood came within about three feet of the 1894 flood.

Americans Funny, London Paper Says

London—(U.P.)—The London Times said today that Adlai Stevenson's defeat by Sen. Estes Kefauver in Minnesota "proves once more that 'The Americans are funny people.'"

The Times said in an editorial that Stevenson is "one of those American leaders whose stock probably stands higher on this side of the Atlantic than it does in his own country."

"His liberal pronouncements, at the time of the last presidential election, found their echo in Europe," the Times said. "More recently he impressed those whom he met on his tour of the world with his balanced and sensible judgment. Nevertheless, it is possible for an American to have all those qualities and lack appeal to his own people."

"That charge has been made from time to time, and for that, among other reasons, his heavy and unexpected defeat in the Minnesota primaries must be taken seriously."

Doctor Indorses Birth Check With Paint Brush

Palmyra, Ind.—(U.P.)—When Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Heuser were expecting their baby, they bet Dr. J. M. Johnson double or nothing it would be a girl.

In eight years of practice, Dr. Johnson has delivered 700 babies, two thirds of them boys.

When their son arrived, the Heusers gave Dr. Johnson a 6-by-3-foot check painted on plywood. It took two men to carry the check to the bank, and Dr. Johnson had to indorse it with a paint brush.
