

Senile Father's Money
Need's Court Decision

With advancing age, people frequently become extravagant with the use of their money.

(O) "My father, who is in his late 70s, has always been a successful businessman and has saved a considerable amount of money, more than enough to live very comfortably for the rest of his life. As a younger man, he was very careful of his money, though never actually tight. He was very generous with all his family. However, in the past few years, he has worried me by his extravagance. He buys expensive clothes, tips much too generously, gives bigger contributions to charity than he can actually afford, and is coming to be an easy target for some of the people he goes around with who have less than he. My husband and I are worried by this because, if it keeps on, we wonder if there will be enough left to take care of him should he have a long illness. When we talk to him about his extravagance, he gets angry and tells us he made the money and he will spend it as he wishes. Is there anything we can do to check this extravagance?"

(A) If you have noticed other signs of senility, or mental failure, in your father you could get his doctor to report to the court that he is mentally unfit to handle his money and the court would then appoint you or the bank as your father's guardian. This would merely protect his financial status but arrangements could be made for him to use a certain amount of his money as he wished. He would merely not be allowed to draw out of the bank any amounts he wished and use the money in an extravagant way.

Doesn't Realize Foolishness
Your father doubtless does not appreciate how foolish he is acting with his money and is getting pleasure from spending what he hesitated to spend when he was younger. But, because he is mentally not as alert as he was when he was younger, he does not realize he can overspend and run himself into debt or become dependent.

The less you say to your father about his extravagant spending, the better. He may misinterpret your concern to mean that you are worried about whether there will be any left for you to inherit when he is not here. And, this may annoy him to the point where he becomes even more extravagant. Let the bank and the court handle the problem so you will not arouse your father's anger. Non-Communists Win
Italy Union Election

Rome — (U.P.) — Non-Communist labor unions inflicted a crushing defeat on the Communists in shop steward elections in the Fiat auto shop and aviation empire in Turin, official results disclosed today.

The results were announced as Italian Communist party boss Palmiro Togliatti and French Communist boss Maurice Thorez prepared to meet in Rome to study the upheavals in their parties that followed Moscow's denunciation of Josef Stalin.

Togliatti already had called a nationwide party meeting for next week in an effort to restore order in Italian Red ranks confused by the down-with-Stalin program. Other prominent members of the Italian party still were denouncing the Moscow action.

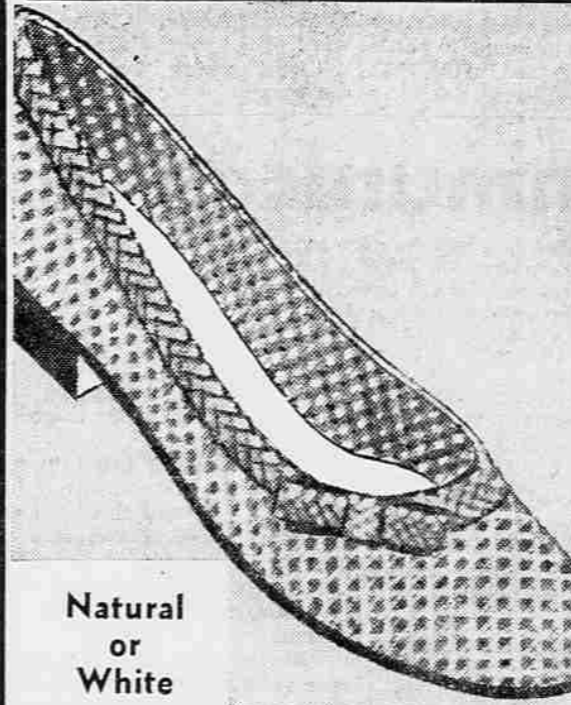

The anti-Communist victory at Turin was believed to reflect the disgruntlement of Italian workers over the Moscow anti-Stalin campaign. Official results showed the democratic unionists won three-fourths of the shop stewards' posts—a substantial increase over last year when they grabbed control from the Reds for the first time since the war.
