A Cordial Invitation!

We, here at Medford Furniture, want to express our thanks to YOU for your continued patronage and friendly support during the past nine months. Without your encouragement this opening of our new store would not be possible.

For the past 29 years this building has housed Medford's leading furniture stores. Now, thanks to Mr. Will Hansen, owner of the building, and the many workers who have been busy throughout the winter, we can now offer you a bigger, finer, more attractive and convenient store than ever before.

Our way of saying "thanks a million" for your patience during the past several months, while we have been operating at 220 North Bartlett in restricted quarters, is to offer the biggest opening ever — finest merchandise displays, the opportunity to win valuable prizes, interesting demonstrations, fresh new entertainment direct from Hollywood! Come in tomorrow—all week—you'll be welcomed!

Ruling Sought on Norblad's Refund On Race Switch

Salem — (U.P.) — Rep. Walter Norblad's right to file for reelection to his seat in Congress has been challenged on legal grounds by State Rep. Richard E. Groener, Milwaukie Democrat.

Groener asked Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton to rule on the legality of Norblad's receiving a $100 refund when he switched from the governor's race to the congressional race.

Norblad paid the $100 when he filed for governor Feb. 28. On March 6, he received a refund when he withdrew and then paid the $100 on his representative filing.

Groener asked Thornton to rule on whether the secretary of state has the right to grant refunds or to transfer a fee from one filing to another.

Although they were not mentioned by Groener, William Healy of Salem and Nicholas Granet of Portland could also be affected by the attorney general's decision.

Healy switched from U.S. representative to secretary of state and Granet switched from Democratic state-at-large convention delegate from the third congressional district.

Prices on Potatoes May Be Low Again

Washington — (U.P.) — The Agriculture Department warned producers of late season potatoes yesterday that prices may be low again this year unless they reduce acreage by an additional 5 per cent.

Late potatoes are grown in Maine, Idaho and 27 other states.

The department recently suggested an 8 per cent reduction in late potato acreage this year. Farmers indicated in a survey early this month, however, that they planned a cutback of only 2.8 per cent from 1955 levels. The survey indicated a "substantial" surplus over the 275,000,000 bushels needed to meet the demand for late potatoes, the department said.

Production over the 275,000,000 bushels figure "generally results in difficult marketing conditions and unsatisfactory farm prices," officials said.

60 Cases of Flu Reported Last Week

More cases of influenza were reported in Jackson county during the week ending March 31 than any other communicable disease, according to Dr. A. Erin Merkel, public health physician.

Medford reported 44 influenza cases; Shady Cove 10; Jacksonville 2, and Ashland 4.

Other communicable diseases reported during that week were tuberculosis, Medford 1, Jacksonville 1; pneumonia, Ashland 4, Medford 3, Talent 1, Camp White 1, Central Point 1; strep throat, Medford 2, Eagle Point 1; chicken pox, Rogue River 3, Ashland 2, Medford 1; measles, Medford 9, Shady Cove 2, Applegate 2; mumps, Medford 3, Rogue River 1; pink eye, Medford 4; Ashland 1, Gold Hill 1; and scarlet fever, Medford 3 and Phoenix 1.

Bomb Threat Forces Delay by Airliner

Los Angeles — (U.P.) — A TWA airliner scheduled to leave for New York City was searched last night for an explosive after a mysterious woman caller told officials several hundred miles away that "a bomb is on flight 46."

The phone call was received by Southwest Airways in San Francisco. The woman hung up after she blurted out the warning. Airport authorities notified TWA here as it had the only scheduled flight 46.

Search of the plane failed to produce an explosive and the airliner was allowed to leave for New York on schedule. TWA officials here said the call apparently was made by a prankster.

Junction City Man Killed in Collision

Eugene — (U.P.) — George Manley Housh, 52-year-old Junction City mechanic, was killed instantly today when his small foreign-built car collided head-on with a vehicle driven by Dennis A. Ryan, 49, of Sunnyside, Wash.

State police cited Ryan for passing with insufficient clearance. Officers said he was passing two other cars on Highway 99 just south of Goshen, Ore., when the collision occurred.

Kenneth McCabe, a passenger in the Housh car, was hospitalized with face cuts and Ryan's wife and daughter were hospitalized at Eugene for treatment of bruises and shock. Ryan was not hospitalized.
