Infections of the Bladder

Many persons suffer from cystitis (an infection of the bladder). Some who think they have such an infection really have it higher up, in the kidney. A good urologist can soon tell where the infection is and what type of germ is causing the trouble. Sometimes, when an infection in the bladder or the kidney is chronic, it is being kept up by the presence of stones.

When ever a nervous woman comes in says that she great frequency of urination during the day but not at all during the night, I am almost certain that she is facing some problem that she cannot make up her mind about. Usually, a little questioning shows what this is, and when she is ready to make a decision, she immediately is well. If there is frequency of urination by night as well as by day; when there is burning on urination, and when the urine is cloudy, the person may have an infection of the bladder. A physician can tell what the trouble is by putting a few drops of recently passed urine under the microscope. Then he may see many germs and pus cells.

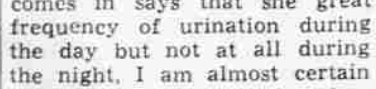

Fortunately, today, we physicians have several good remedies which tend quickly to clear up an infection in the bladder or the kidney. These remedies should be taken under the supervision of a physician, preferably a urologist.

Bell's Palsy

Many persons ask me what Bell's palsy is. It is a weakening of the muscles on one side of the face, due usually to something wrong with the seventh cranial nerve which supplies the muscles. It comes out of the skull through a little conduit near the ear. Oftentimes the person tells of a recent exposure of the side of the face to a cold wind, but in many cases we physicians do not know what the cause was. Sometimes the cause is a little injury due to a tiny stroke up in the brain, and sometimes it is due to something that has gone wrong in the little canal through which the nerve comes out from the brain.

If a person is fortunate, his paralysis will be slight and it will quickly disappear. In some cases in which the nerve is badly injured it will have to grow out again, and this will take many months. Sometimes recovery is never quite complete, so that always a physician can detect the slight weakening of the corner of the mouth. In rare cases the paralysis does not clear up, and then an operation can be performed to lift up the weakened corner of the mouth and to fasten it to the bone just below the eye on that side.

Kefauver's Oregon Backers Plan Fight

Portland — (U.P.) — Officials of the Oregon Kefauver committee said here that Adlai Stevenson isn't going to win the votes of the state delegates to the Democratic convention by default and served notice that they intend to stage an all-out fight to win the primary ballot write-in campaign.

The statement followed closely Stevenson's announcement that he is going to campaign in the state for the 16 convention
