Miss Kelly Appears Upset As Rendezvous Approaches

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Correspondent

Aboard S. S. Constitution. At Sea — (U.P.) — The bride meets the Rock today.

This party-made liner bearing Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier III of Monaco scheduled its first European stop today at Algiers, Spain, across the bay from the towering Rock of Gibraltar.

If all goes according to plan, the Constitution will then rendezvous with the Monaco royal yacht on Thursday and the blonde American movie actress will step into her prince's arms.

Miss Kelly appeared upset Monday night for the first time since the Constitution left New York. She bristled when someone told her that her father had told reporters they had had a 10-minute heart-to-heart talk.

"What my father and I said is strictly between us," she said. Apparently she had asked members of the wedding party, including her family, not to talk with reporters on shipboard. She was disturbed that stories had appeared in print quoting members of her family.

Her father, John B. Kelly, Sr., said he only told her "what any father would say" and was sorry his remarks to reporters upset her. "I guess she's a lot smarter than all of us," he said.

Wears New Outfit
Miss Kelly displayed to the envious shipboard crowd still another outfit for a party in the suite of the Constitution's captain, Ernest H. Nelson.

She had on a long black evening dress with a white mink stole. She has not worn the same thing twice yet.

After dinner in the main dining room Miss Kelly and 12 members of the wedding party went to the captain's suite at 7 p.m. Everybody wore pink hats but the guest of honor. She appeared somewhat subdued.

Miss Kelly has worn a series of dazzling outfits, from sleek evening gowns to the skirt and blouse she wore on deck Sunday with a red sweater and matching kerchief.

Plays Charades
Sunday night she wore a white lace short evening dress for dinner and an evening spent playing charades in a private entertainment room with about 15 of her friends in the wedding party.

The chef caused considerable stir in the dining room at dinner when the waiter brought in a special dessert for the Kelly table. It was a huge cake iced in white with the crest of Monaco on top. Persons at other tables stood up to stare and finally gathered around while Grace cut it.

Throughout Sunday Grace acted more like a woman in love than an aloof movie actress. She was calm and unruffled as usual, but she brightened when she
