

Program Announced For Sunday

Gustav Mahler's massive "Symphony No. 3 in D Minor" will be the featured work on the program of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony on its KYJC-CBS Radio broadcast, Sunday, April 15 at 11:30 AM-1:00 PM, PST. Musical Director Dimitri Mitropoulos will return to the Philharmonic for this broadcast to begin the last three weeks of the current season. The Mahler Third Symphony has never been broadcast by the Philharmonic before. Assisting in the performance of this work will be the mezzo-soprano Beatrice Krebs and the Women's Chorus of the Westminster Choir, directed by Dr. John Finley Williams.

Perhaps because Mahler wrote this work in a woodland hut, the symphony has been given many connotations of nature and was originally entitled "A Summer Morning's Dream." The fourth movement of this six-movement symphony is a song for contralto solo and orchestra, the text of which is the "Night Wanderer's Song" from Nietzsche's "Also Sprach Zarathustra." The fifth movement is a setting of a poem from the "Des Knaben Wunderhorn," the famous anthology of German folk poetry. The First, Second, Third and Sixth Movements are purely orchestral.

Maestro Mitropoulos will open the broadcast program with Respighi's transcription of the "Prelude and Fugue in D Major" originally written for organ.

Ella Fitzgerald, Nell Rankin, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, Jim McPartland and his Dixieland band, and popular baritone Steve Lawrence will present "What's New In Music" on KYJC-CBS Radio's "The Woolworth Hour," Sunday, April 15 at 1:00-2:00 PM, PST.

Miss Fitzgerald will perform with a trio some of the jazz songs she has made famous. Miss Rankin will sing the great aria "O Dou Fatale" from Verdi's "Don Carlos" and with the Woolworth orchestra and chorus, the closing hymn.

Jim McPartland, one of the leading exponents of Dixieland jazz, will play two numbers.

Percy Faith will present a vocal version of the No. 1 instrumental favorite of the nation, "Poor People of Paris." He will also conduct the Woolworth orchestra and chorus in other numbers.

Three women will represent Rogue Valley Area Girl Scout council at the first meeting of presidents and professionals in Region 11. It will be held at the Winthrop hotel, Tacoma, April 18-19, and attending from here will be Mrs. Michele Rossi, president of the council; Mrs. T. R. Lytle, first vice-president and Miss Mary Aldrich, executive director.

Mrs. Rossi and Miss Aldrich will participate in a panel discussion on professional-volunteer working relationships scheduled Thursday morning. They will represent the small council and its planning.

"Rare Entertainment" Offered by Ballet Troupe

By FRANCES BULKIN

Entertainment of a caliber rare to the vicinity was offered last night at Ashland when the San Francisco Ballet company appeared in its first of two valley performances. The other will be today at 8:30 p.m., in Hedrick Junior High school. Only one of the ballets, "Con Amore," will be repeated from last night's program. Tickets will be available at the box office.

The typically American dancing was done by young dancers with typically American faces. Choreography by Lew Christensen, the noted ballet director, who accompanies them, is in the modern school.

Those who attend tonight's performance should not go expecting to see the classic ballet of "Swan Lake" or the "Nutcracker Suite," but they should not be disappointed if they go with open minds. For they will see ballet done in what is becoming a traditionally American manner.

Though deftly done it appears light and breezy, as is to be expected in our way of execution. As in any company the principals carry the load. To name favorites is a matter of personal opinion. If there are choices, however, tall, vigorous Sally Bailey, and Conrad Ludlow, who has a quiet understanding and feel of the dance, are first.

Has Finesse
Nancy Johnson, possibly not as spectacular as Miss Bailey, has finesse and artistry. Blond Richard Carter lends a youthful vim, and in Christiane Bering's presentation it appears she already is well on the way to rising heights.

Costuming is bright and cheery, styled with originality and of rich materials. Though the leading dancers may carry the load they could not carry the show were they not supported by a capable corps.

In the corps are Fiona Fuerster, Virginia Johnson, Roderick Drew, Bess Arnold, Constance Coler, Louise Lawler, Suki Schorer, Gloria Cancilla, Julian Herrin, Tilly Abbe and Glen Chadwick.

Many Directors
Leon Kalimos is company manager and personnel is made up of James Graham Lujan, artistic director; Earl Murray, musical director; Gordon Paxman, maitre de ballet; Raylene Pierce, Dorothy Franklin, duo-pianists; Eloise Arnold, wardrobe mistress; Earl McGuire, carpenter and Charles Carman, electrician.

The group arrived here from Eureka, Calif., and is on an 11-performance tour. They will also appear at Eugene and Klamath Falls.

On tonight's program in Medford in addition to "Con Amore," are "Concerte Barocco," with music by J. S. Bach, and "A Masque of Beauty and the Shepherd," music by C. W. von Gluck.

Something lacking last night and which will be again tonight is the "atmosphere" of a real theater. But after-show conversation revealed that these young artists are dedicated to their work, not just to dance, nor even to dance just before more sophisticated audiences who might better understand their artistry, but to take ballet to every vicinity to integrate this new heritage into our way of life. As Anna Pavlova dedicated her life to touring the ends of the earth to introduce ballet (she died unexpectedly of pneumonia while yet on tour) these dancers are pioneering in the reaches of America.
