BREATHING TOO FAST, OR "HYPERVENTILATION"

There are many highly nervous persons who, after some fright or outburst of anger, will start breathing rapidly in a hysterical way. Some will pant like a dog. Often a doctor is summoned in great haste, but usually, by the time he arrives, the patient is quiet, but much frightened by the peculiar symptoms that have come because of the rapid breathing. The family will think the patient had a heart attack, but he did not.

Usually the person feels faint and giddy, and for a few minutes he may be a little fuzzy in his thinking. He may feel unreal, and he may black out. He may feel numbness of the body and much tingling around the mouth, with perhaps a coldness of the hands and of the lips. There may be spasm of the muscles of the hands, with twitching movements, and there may be a sense of tightness in the chest and a desire to yawn. There may be palpitations, a rapid heart beat or skipping beats, and perhaps some transitory pains in the chest. The mouth may get dry, there may be a feeling of a lump in the neck and the abdomen may bloat. The patient may belch and pass much gas from the bowels. He may be anxious, tense and apprehensive. For a while after a spell he may feel tired and weak or exhausted.

Will Often Stop on Order
Some of the symptoms of one of these spells are due to the washing of much carbon dioxide (the gas in soda water) out of the blood. Often, if the physician sharply orders the patient to stop the panting, he will. Then, as the breathing becomes normal the chemical composition of the blood will return to normal, and the symptoms of lack of carbon dioxide will go away. The family must never get frightened at sight of such a spell because it is hysterical in nature; it is not due to any serious disease, and the patient will not die.

If a woman gets these spells often, and wants to help herself, she can either make herself quit or she can keep a paper bag handy and breath in and out of this with the upper end held tightly around her mouth and nose. In this way she will not lose carbon dioxide but will breathe it back again.

In these cases, when the family knows that the spells are nervous in origin and harmless, they will pay little attention to the panting. Usually, then the woman will soon quit because a hysterical spell without an anxious audience is no fun.

The President has been criticized frequently by some quarters of the Democratic party for spending a good bit of his leisure time with some of the wealthiest men in America.

He does not regard this as any cause for criticism or apprehension. He thinks that a man who has reached the top of one

Back Stairs: Ike Puts in Long Hours

By MERRILL SMITH
United Press White House Writer
Washington—(U.P.)—Back stairs at the White House:

The President's so-called vacation in Augusta, Ga., last week was hardly that. He put in long hours in his tiny office on the second floor of the Augusta National Golf club professional shop, working on the speeches he has scheduled for this week.

Before he went to church Sunday morning, he went to his office for another session on the speech he is to deliver tonight to a major Republican meeting here.

Mr. Eisenhower thought for a time of remaining in Augusta until this Tuesday, but he changed his mind on Saturday and decided to fly back Sunday for another talk on the farm bill this morning with Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson.

The chief executive might take another holiday out of Washington in late May. No site definitely selected yet.

Benson is normally a fairly reserved person in his dealings with the press, but reporters of the nation's larger corporations have done so because of achievement and ability.

have never seen him more affable and cooperative than in their session with him in Augusta after he completed his meeting there with the President.

Washington—(U.P.)—President Eisenhower will not hold a news conference this week. Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President would be busy receiving the Spanish foreign minister and holding other conferences later in the week.

DAR Dodges South's Desegregation Issue

Washington—(U.P.)—The Daughters of the American Revolution today backed away from southern members' requests for a resolution opposing the Supreme Court's desegregation ruling.

Mrs. T. B. Throckmorton of Des Moines, Ia., chairman of the resolutions committee, announced the committee unanimously decided the explosive issue is "not DAR business."

"After our experience with Marian Anderson, the committee decided to steer clear of the issue," she said.

The DAR became the center of a national furor in 1939 when it refused to rent Constitution hall for an Easter Sunday concert by the Negro singer. She sang from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

This is the season of the year when a lot of men get to wondering if Vigoro would do the same for hair as it does for grass.

It certainly does except that in the future you're bothered with dandelions instead of dandruff.
