Bobby Boyd Given Nod Over Mims

Chicago — (U.P.) — Bobby Boyd, a Bible-reading boxer who dons horn-rim spectacles when he puts on the gloves, wants a middleweight title chance, but until it comes along, he said he would fight "anybody the IBC'll give me."

Boyd won his 10th straight fight Wednesday night with a split decision over rough and hairy Mims, Washington, D.C., in the Chicago stadium. But it was an uphill battle after Mims, weighing 156 1/2 to Boyd's 161, counter-punched his way to an early lead.

"He's the toughest guy I ever fought," Boyd breathed in the dressing room. "He could beat Eduardo Lause, George Johnson and Gene Fullmer all in one night."

Boyd, 22 years old compared to Mims' 26, went into the scrap with "peace of mind and relaxed" because he followed his usual custom of reading the Bible for an hour before the bell.

"I do it before every fight," he said. "The same chapter every time, but I won't tell what chapter it is. But that's what I read all the time, at night when I can't get to sleep."

Mims skipped the dressing room literature and shadow-boxed instead to warm up. He started the bout in similar fashion, driving right and left hooks over Boyd's guard to pile up points. But he tired after the fifth round and went to the canvas in the sixth when Boyd landed a right-left combination.

Jersey City Opener Held By Dodgers

Jersey City, N.J. — (U.P.) — Today they were the "Jersey City Dodgers."

Brooklyn beloved "Bums" brought major-league baseball back to this city this afternoon for the first time since 1889, when they played host to the Philadelphia Phillies in a regular National League game before an expected capacity crowd of 25,000 at renovated Roosevelt Stadium.

The "Joisey" fans did up the "opening game" in high-style, complete with parades, speeches, first-ball flipping by Mayor Bernard Berry, and the hoisting of the Dodgers' 1955 world championship flag by Manager Walt Reese.

Today's game is one of seven regular-season games scheduled

Boros, Lewis Will Team For Golf Exhibition Here

World golf champion Julius Boros will be paired with Clayton Lewis when he appears at Rogue Valley Country club for an exhibition on May 3.

That is the report from Jackson County Chamber of Commerce officials who are sponsoring the Boros exhibition and clinic through arrangements with the George S. May company.

Lewis is president of the local country club and is one of the club's leading amateurs. He and Boros will be teamed against George Harrington and Al Williams, the Rogue Valley club, is one of the top amateurs in the Pacific northwest. Williams is the RVCC head professional.

Boros, who plays out of the Mid Pines, N. C., won the World Championship tourney last year at Tam O'Shanter Country club, Chicago. In addition to $50,000 cash as the titlist, he received a contract for a minimum of 55 here this season by the Dodgers in one of baseball's most unusual experiments. The Dodgers will meet each of their National League rivals here once.

Alabama Athletes Revolt Against Dorm Restrictions

Tuscaloosa, Ala. — (U.P.) — A showdown was due today between University of Alabama Athletic Director Hank Crisp and 92 subsidized athletes revolting against strict training regulations.

The athletes gave Crisp until 2 p.m. EST today to meet their demands for less restrictions. They said if he refused, they would not return to their rent-free dormitory, which they left Tuesday night.

The revolt placed the entire sports program in jeopardy. The rebels are members of the football, basketball and track squads and include virtually all athletes on scholarships except members of the baseball squad, which has been on tour.

The players claimed they are being treated "like children" and demanded they be treated like regular students during their winnings of $2,000. In 1951, in addition to rising rapidly among money winners, he won the Massachusetts Open.

SEATTLE NIPS HUSKIES

Seattle — (U.P.) — Cal Bauer singled home the winning run with two out in the seventh inning here yesterday to give Seattle University a 3-2 baseball victory over the University of Washington.
