Lumberman Talks For College Club

George Flanagan was guest speaker for the last meeting of Rogue Valley College Women's club, talking about the lumber industry. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. I. D. Canfield, Coleman Creek road.

Mr. Flanagan traced the growth of the valley's lumber industry from 1909 when the Rogue River Timber company was organized and began buying land in the valley. The Elk Lumber company, Mr. Flanagan's firm, was organized in 1910 but operations were slow in developing, he stated. It is only in the last 20 years that the lumber industry has become the important business that it is today in southern Oregon, the speaker stated.

The small mill operators are finding it more and more difficult to compete with the larger operators, and especially with the plywood operations, he stated.

Mr. Flanagan told of new methods being used to protect the trees in our forests and of using portions of the forest trees formerly discarded.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. G. L. Linn, Mrs. J. C. Deaver, Mrs. E. A. Evanson, Mrs. W. F. Tucker and Mrs. Earl Rogers.

The next meeting will be held Saturday, May 5, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Peters, Ashland. This meeting will honor the charter members who organized the club in 1913.

Civil War Widows On VA Pensions

By GERALD BOWKETT United Press Staff Writer

Washington — (U.P.) — The two mighty armies of the Civil War have dwindled from 3,500,000 men to four. But the widows of participants in that conflict still are almost a brigade strong.

Nearly a century after the outbreak of the war, more than 7,000 widows are receiving pensions or compensation payments from the federal government or from 14 southern and border states.

The Veterans Administration showed 4,931 Union widows on its rolls in February. The South, which takes care of its own, could muster 2,188 widows of the men in gray, according to a United Press survey of the 11 states of the old Confederacy plus the border states of Kentucky, Oklahoma, and Missouri.

Payments Vary

Albert Woolson, 109, of Duluth, Minn., is the sole survivor of the 2,900,000 men who fought for the North.

Three old soldiers are left of the estimated 600,000 who answered the South's call to arms. They are John Salling, 109, of Slant, Va.; William Lundy, 107, of Laurel Hill, Fla., and Walter W. Williams, 109, of Franklin, Tex.

Union widows receive monthly checks—either pensions or compensation payments—ranging from $40.64 to $87, depending upon several factors, including whether their husbands had service-connected disabilities.

Amounts paid to the Confederate widows range from $20 a month in Oklahoma—pro-Southern Indian Territory during the war—to a whopping $478 monthly in Missouri which was held in the Union by northern sympathizers. The latter figure, however, is for the care of just one widow, an invalid who requires a home and full-time care.

Mexican War Widows

The average monthly compensation payment is about $85 in the South, according to compilation by the General Relief Committee of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. Nine of the states also provide a funeral grant for Confederate widows.

Survivors of U.S. wars draw pensions long after they have ended.

The last veteran of the American Revolution died in 1869, at the age of 109. The last widow of a Revolutionary War veteran died in 1906 at 92. The last veteran of the War of 1812 died in 1905 and the last dependent in 1946, VA records show.
