Festival Speakers Named; To Review Accomplishments

Two widely known Oregon home economists, Mrs. Azalea Sager and Mrs. Mabel Mack, will be in Jackson county Wednesday, May 2, to speak for the annual Homemakers' festival of the county's 22 home extension units. Mrs. Mack is assistant director of the Oregon Extension service and Mrs. Sager is a former state leader of the Oregon Home Economics Extension service. Both are from Corvallis.

Corvallis — Accomplishments of the year's work will be reviewed and extension leaders honored at homemaker festivals in 31 Oregon counties April 29 to May 5. The festivals are in observance of National Home Demonstration week.

The festival will be held in Central Point Grange hall, and exhibits will be arranged in the Legion hall directly across the street. Registration will be from 9:30 to 10 a.m. with members of the Reese Creek unit in charge.

More than 18,000 Oregon women take part in the adult education program which brings home economics information from Oregon State college through the extension service. The extension service, a cooperative program between federal, state and local governments, is observing its forty-second anniversary, and the home demonstration program, its twenty-fourth.

An "eye opener" talk will be given by Mrs. Mack who will use the festival theme, "Spizzer-inctum," or "Up With the Sun" as her topic. Skits are to be given by the Howard, Rogue-Elk, Willow Springs and Evans Valley units, and music will be provided by the mixed chorus from Crater High school, directed by Norman Carothers.

The festivals will be highlighted by exhibits, displays and programs that show advances in homemaking achieved in the county during the past year. Community service projects, such as civil defense, library facilities, or safety, will be shown at some festivals. Others will illustrate, homemaking skills in sewing, foods and furnishings.

Luncheon will be served from 11:45 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the basement of the Grange hall. The afternoon's program will feature Mrs. Sager in "A Tour of South America" during which she will show pictures. After her retirement from the extension service Mrs. Sager and her husband spent a year traveling in the United States, South America and Europe. Mrs. Sager, who began her extension work as a clothing specialist, started a program of training leaders in subject matter, the practice having become widespread in subsequent years. She was regarded throughout the extension profession as one of the most successful state leaders of home economics.

State leaders in education and extension will speak at the full-day festivals. Last year 116,293 families were contacted by personal visits, telephone and letters through the extension service program. Of these, 46,000 were urban families, 40,465 non-farm and 29,800 rural farm.

Home economics extension work was first introduced in Oregon in 1917 when seven home economists were appointed to serve on an emergency basis during World War I. Today, 32 counties have home extension agents.
