

Six Dutch Immigrant Couples Married in Canadian Ceremony

Largest One-Family Wedding in Modern History of Nation

Blenheim, Ont. — (U.P.) — Six Dutch immigrant couples were married Saturday at Blenheim in the biggest one-family wedding ceremony in modern Canadian history.

The Roman Catholic nuptial mass began at 10 a.m. when tall, beaming Leo Dorssers led four of his daughters up the aisle of St. Mary's church.

Already waiting there were two of his sons also being married to fellow Dutch-Canadians.

The white-painted church in this quiet town was crammed to the doors with hundreds of guests of the seven families involved in the mass marriage. There also were uninvited spectators and a swarm of newsmen and photographers.

4 Daughters, 2 Sons

The big magnet was the Dorssers family. The four daughters and two sons of papa Dorssers were married in one big ceremony because he said, "it's cheaper by the dozen, or so they say."

The marriage service, accompanied by a full chorus, was the longest in the records of the church. There were six answers to each question which the officiating priest, Father Willibrord, ordinarily gives only to the bride and one bridegroom at a time. Father Willibrord was assisted by two other priests.

At the last minute the families decided to make it a double ring ceremony.

The six brides were radiant and smiling in identical long white wedding dresses.

With the six couples were six best men, four bridesmaids and three flower girls, besides pretty seven-year-old Wilma Timmermans.

Wilma had feared before the wedding that she would forget to get the right wedding rings to the right couples at the right time. She carried all 12 of them on a silk cushion. But she managed fine.

The Dorssers family came to Canada from Helden, Holland two years ago, leaving behind three married daughters. Another daughter is married to John Timmermans of Blenheim. Following today's weddings there still will be three boys and two girls on the 11-acre family farm.

na, Dora and Christina Dorssers and Anne Heuvelmanns and Jo-an Menheers all will wear identical full-length wedding gowns.

The grooms, Andrew and Cornelius Dorssers, William Venderberg, Bernard Luiking, Jack Van Hare and Gerard Willemssen, bought new dark blue suits for the wedding.

The nuptial Mass will be conducted by three priests. Then the newlyweds and at least 200 guests from the seven families involved will pack into a local hall for country and modern dancing and a whopping big wedding breakfast.

West Coast Airlines Takes Project Options

West Coast Airlines announced Saturday it will exercise its option to purchase at least four of America's first twin propjet transports, the Fairchild F-27, and requested an option on four more of the high-wing tri-cycle-gear "Friendships."

West Coast would become the first of the nation's local service airlines to fly the 40-passenger turboprop transport which Fairchild will manufacture under license from Royal Netherlands Aircraft factories, Fokker, Amsterdam, company officials explained.
