

Traveler Speaks Saturday For Sorority Convention

Mrs. E. B. Aldrich, Pendleton, banquet speaker for a state convention of Delta Kappa Gamma sorority in Medford Saturday night, warned her audience of 150 educators from all over Oregon that America's influence abroad is declining. Mrs. Aldrich, who has traveled extensively in recent years, said that the United States, while the fountain-head of democracy in the world, often misunderstands the needs and problems of other nations striving for a democratic government. She quoted a state department official who said in Pendleton recently that "thoughtless statements" by Americans often ruin the effects of our good deeds.

Mrs. Aldrich urged her listeners to work towards the goal of a true bi-partisan foreign policy for this nation.

Mrs. Aldrich said that in much of Asia, Africa and South America, where more than a billion people are living under "intolerable conditions" citizens are striving for independence, rights for everyone regardless of race, creed or color, for economic progress and for peaceful living conditions. She reminded her listeners that these are the exact same goals for which Americans have always striven, pointed out that the American Revolution was the modern world's first successful revolt of a colony against an imperial power and then quoted Prime Minister U. Nu of Burma who said in Philadelphia last year "The ideals of the American Revolution are more explosive than B52's or even atom bombs; in all parts of the world where man lives under tyranny, or under foreign domination, or in feudal bondage, those who dream and plot and fight for freedom do so in the name of the eternal principles for which your Revolution was fought."

Mrs. Aldrich reminded her listeners of the tremendous influence they wield as teachers and said they must be watchful of the ideas they inculcate in the youth of the land.

During the banquet program the sorority initiated Mrs. Elizabeth Roe-Cloud, Portland, widow of the late Dr. Henry Roe-Cloud, as an honorary member of Alpha Rho state chapter. Mrs. Roe-Cloud, an Indian, was given the honor because of the outstanding work she has carried on to educate the American Indian. Dr. and Mrs. Roe-Cloud's four daughters are all college women, two having graduated from Vassar, one from Wellesly and one from the University of Kansas. Mrs. Roe-Cloud is now project director of the American Indian Community Development of the Field Foundation.

Dinner music was provided by Bernard Windt, director of music for the Oregon Shakespearean festival, Ashland. Mrs. Windt and their son, Peter. The three played a program of Elizabethan and folk music on ancient recorders, the lute and viol. Mr. Windt gave explanatory comment.

Mrs. Dorothy Elliott, Portland, president of the state chapter, presided for the evening and introduced state officers in attendance. Mrs. Bertha Haskins of the hostess chapter was banquet chairman.
