

French Policemen Polite To American Women Drivers

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Correspondent
Paris —(U.P.)— French policemen are very polite when they arrest American women drivers.

They touch the brims of their jaunty caps in a friendly salute, politely ask for your "permis de conduire" and do not mutter an audible word about "les femmes conducteurs."

As an American femme driver newly initiated into the ways of European roads, I pass along this reassuring news as well as some other comforting travel tips to the thousands of Americans planning to travel by car in foreign countries this summer.

Women are perfectly safe on the highways, even when language is a barrier. Road signs in France and Italy thoughtfully have pictures illustrating each warning, including cars skidding on slick roads and men working.

Few Sports Cars

The highways are not roaring lanes of low-slung foreign sports cars throbbed with 200-horsepower motors. Most of those glamorous automobiles seem to be in the United States. Many times two-cylinder motor scooters passed four-cylinder mid-engine Renaults as we cautiously rounded corners high on cliffs overlooking the Mediterranean.

But we saw only half a dozen racy sports cars in six days travel. Filling station attendants react quickly to pantomime when foreign words fail. My feminine traveling companion repeatedly got the gas tank filled in Italy simply by pointing at the tank with one hand and patting herself on top of the head with the other.

As in most cases of discovered crime, however, it is the little things most likely to trip you up when driving in strange countries.

I honked my horn in Nice, France. I had been circling a block while my friend contacted the American Express Office for railroad tickets to Paris, since there are no more places to park in Nice than in New York. My honking was to attract her street corner attention.

Tourist Ticketed
A white-hatted policeman advanced toward the car as I honked. He leaned down companionably and said "C'est impossible." Then he touched his cap.

Studio Announces Annual Review At Theater Here

Students of Miss Pat's Studio of Dance will be presented in an annual review Friday and Saturday, May 4 and 5 at 8:45 p.m., each day at the Craterian theater. "Mother Goose Rhymes in Rhythm," is theme for the show.

Miss Lisbeth Shileds will serve as mistress of ceremonies; Miss Karen Adele and Miss Carol Jones, are assistant dance instructors to Mrs. Cliff (Miss Pat) Aldrich; Mrs. E. L. Isaacs and Miss Jones, are in charge of the kindergarten work; Miss Glenna Hobbs, is student assistant; properties are being furnished by Mr. Aldrich; costume design and choreography are by Miss Pat.

The various Mother Goose rhymes will be depicted in dance routines and the opening number will be done by the members of Miss Pat's kindergarten.

The new Marilyn Monroe

Everybody knows the fabulous face and figure—but who knows the girl behind them? Here—for the first time—is her real story with her own answers to often-asked questions. And don't miss the glamour photos in full color!

Marilyn answers questions like these:
• Are you and Joe Di Maggio still friends? ("Yes, but I still don't know anything about baseball.")
• How do you feel now about the celebrated nude calendar photograph? ("I'm saving a copy for my grandchildren.")
• Has anyone ever accused you of wearing falsies? ("Those who know me better know better.") brim and smiled. I smiled back and honked some more.

"C'est impossible!" he said more sternly, pointing at the car horn. I got the idea, but too late. A small crowd of grinning Frenchmen gathered while the policeman took my international driver's license and wrote out a long, detailed ticket.

The ticket would arrive by mail, a bystander explained helpfully as the policeman finished his writing and prepared to leave.

I started to suggest he'd be smarter to settle for ready cash, then returned his smile in silence instead and drove off through the satisfied-looking spectators. Everybody seemed pleased with the scene. Only later did I discover from a longtime Nice resident that the fine was the least important part of the arrest. It really was the scene that counted.

"Pour les touristes," the Riviera resident grinned.

Society Open House Honors Professor

Dr. John D. McAulay, retiring president of the board of Southern Oregon Child Guidance Clinic association, and Mrs. McAulay were honored at an open house last Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter, Dr. McAulay, professor at Southern Oregon college, is leaving the college at the end of this school year to live in Australia.

The open house also provided an opportunity for those attending to meet Dr. and Mrs. Harry K. Danielson of Napa, Calif. Dr. Danielson, a psychiatrist, is making preparations to set up a practice in Jackson county. On the committee planning the event were Mrs. Henry Padgham, Mrs. Earl Lawson, Mrs. Dwight Houghton, Mrs. Carl Wimberly Jr., and Mrs. Carpenter.

Pouring were Mrs. Charles Cray, Mrs. Leland A. Mentzer, Mrs. Frank Van Dyke and Mrs. Padgham.

Attending were past and present members of the clinic association board. Dr. McAulay has served two years as chairman of the board.

The county membership drive for the association is still in progress, officers noted. The importance of the membership is two-fold, it is pointed out. They provide money needed for the child guidance work of the association, and at the same time serve as a means of interesting adults in the program of the association and clinic.

Parents Pay Visit To Church School; Social Hour Held

Parents and teachers of children in the Bible school of First Christian church held an evening of fellowship recently at the church. Opening devotions were given by Mrs. Ralph Cook, general superintendent of the Bible school, and she welcomed the parents.

Parents later visited the various departments. The departments and their superintendents are nursery, Mrs. Vernon Hollenback, superintendent and Mrs. Al Hermanson, teacher; kindergarten, Mrs. Herbert Daniels, superintendent, Mrs. Russell Simmons and Mrs. Wiemer Warren, teachers; primary, Mrs. Howard Gault, superintendent, Mrs. Glen Allen, Mrs. Alice Lawrence and Mrs. Herbert Osborn, teachers; juniors, Mrs. Wayne Smith, superintendent, Mr. and Mrs. Stiger and William North, teachers.

Typical class sessions were presented, with explanations of materials and methods used in teaching. Handwork of the children was shown.

Miss Katherine Gott sang several numbers, and the Rev. William C. Piper spoke. Refreshments were served by members of Circle 3 of the Women's Fellowship, with Mrs. Clarence Herzhiser as chairman. Mrs. Fred Daugherty arranged floral decorations.

Similar events are to be held by the church from time to time.

Study Conducted By Psychiatrist For Health Group

Dr. Harry Danielson, visiting psychiatrist from Napa, Calif., conducted a model study group at the First Methodist church Friday evening.

The meeting was sponsored by the family group division of the Jackson County Public Health association. Mrs. Walter Bish is chairman of this group.

Questions which everyone has in connection with the various members of the study group offering comments. Dr. Danielson then evaluated the information and comments from the viewpoint of the psychiatrist.

Members of the model study group were Mrs. Riley Cook, Mrs. C. N. Gail, Mrs. John Schroder, Mrs. Clayton Ruhl and Mrs. Roland Holmes.

Ogden Nash Verse Calls Attention To League Session

An Ogden Nash verse was quoted today by Medford league of Women Voters to point up the value of seeking information on the candidates to be on the primary election, and of voting in that election. The Nash verse reads: "They have such refined and delicate palates, that they can find no one worthy of their ballots. And then when someone terrible gets elected, they say, 'There, that's just what I expected.'"

Voters were also reminded that the public is invited to attend a "Meet Your Candidates" program Friday, May 4, at Hedrick Junior high school. The meeting is set for 8 p.m.
