

Political Breaks Lift Hopes Of Republicans 'for Senate Control

Washington — (U.P.) — Political breaks in Washington and Kentucky lifted Republican hopes today for winning their uphill struggle to regain control of the Senate.

From Washington came the announcement that Republican Gov. Arthur B. Langlie had yielded to party pressure to run for the seat now held by Democratic Sen. Warren G. Magnuson. Langlie confirmed that the White House had urged him to make the race.

Although the GOP leadership was anxious to get Langlie into the Senate race, he still was rated as something of an underdog against Magnuson, who has served 12 years in the Senate and eight in the House.

The Kentucky break for the GOP was created by the death Tuesday of Sen. Alben W. Barkley. Republican leaders were reported ready to press John Sherman Cooper, former senator and now ambassador to India, to run for the four-year unexpired term.

To Attend Funeral
Other political news:
The two active candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination, Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), interrupted their campaigning today to attend the funeral of Sen. Alben Barkley, (D-Ky.), at Paducah, Ky.

Stevenson, at a news conference in San Francisco Wednesday, accused President Eisenhower of placing "politics over principle" in his recent veto of the Democratic farm bill.

Kefauver, campaigning in northwest Florida, told a rally that a "false story is being circulated" in that state, alleging that he favors use of federal troops to force racial integration. Kefauver said such an idea was "unthinkable . . . the worst thing we could do."

Cooper was elected twice by Kentucky voters to two-year vacancies in the Senate, but failed to win reelection each time. He was defeated most recently by Barkley in 1954.

Elect Two Senators
Kentucky will elect two senators next November because the term of Senate Democratic Whip Earle C. Clements also expires.

Although Kentucky is normally a Democratic state, the GOP is hopeful about its chances there this year because of a deep Democratic party rift between supporters of Clements and Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

Cooper declined to run for Clements' seat, and Thurston B. Morton, former House member, resigned as assistant secretary of state to seek the GOP nomination.

Since the deadline for entering the Kentucky primary has passed, nominees for the Barkley seat will be chosen by state Republican and Democratic committees. Meanwhile, Chandler will appoint a Democratic senator to serve until November.

Returns From India
Almost coincidental with Barkley's death, Cooper returned from India Wednesday for testimony before congressional committees and for a visit to Kentucky.

Whatever the outcome of the 1956 presidential race, Republicans have long conceded that they face an uphill battle to win back the Senate this year. Before Barkley's death, the lineup was 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans.

Although 35 senators will be elected in November, most of the 18 Democratic seats at stake are in the South or normally Democratic border states. And the Republicans have only a shaky hold on some of the 17 seats they are trying to keep.

Republicans have believed that their best chances of replacing Democrats are in Nevada, Oregon, New York, Kentucky and Washington.

Insecticides May Cause Human Illness

Portland — (U.P.) — The State Board of Health today issued a warning that powerful organic phosphorus insecticides expected to be widely used in the state this year can cause death or serious illness to humans if swallowed, inhaled or splashed on the skin.

Although the most toxic of the new compounds will be available only to farmers and commercial insect control firms, the department said that virtually all insecticides should be considered potentially dangerous to humans.

Town Fathers Discuss Lack of Candidates

Eureka, N. C. — (U.P.) — The town fathers met in a country store Wednesday night to talk over a local problem: No candidates in next Tuesday's city election.

Mayor L. R. Jones, stepping down after 22 years, said "No-body ever really wants a town office—there isn't any pay."
