Tuesday Opening Night For Footlighter Comedy

"Good Housekeeping," a comedy first produced on Broadway in 1949 starring Helen Hayes, will be presented this week by the Footlighters, civic theater group. Opening night is set for Tuesday, May 8 and the play will run for five nights, closing Saturday, May 12. Curtain time daily will be 8:30 p.m. Tickets are now on sale at Purucker's Piano house and Swem's Book and Gift shop. They also will be available at the theater box office at the fairgrounds before each performance.

This is the first play to be given in the Footlighters little theater at the fairgrounds since the building was moved to make way for the proposed civic auditorium. Formerly on a top floor, it now is a one-story building and easily accessible to theater patrons. Remodeling has been in the process for several months and though not entirely completed is adequate for both the players and the audience. A comfortable lobby has been included and a lounge where refreshments can be served between acts has been installed.

The theater will seat about 160 persons. "Good Housekeeping," was written by William McCleary and centers around what happens in a normal American family when mother, armed with a big psychology book sets out to get everybody happy. The answer is pandemonium.

Playing the part of the imaginative and well-meaning mother and wife is Mrs. Frankie Burton, veteran little-theater performer, who in addition to appearing in many past plays done by Footlighters is also known to television audiences as moderator for Jackson County Public Health association shows. In the role of the dignified husband and father, and president of a university, is Frank Buchter, known throughout the valley for his many performances in little theater work.

A conceited, arrogant political boss, who can pick the leading party's candidate for governor, is Isaac McCarley, announcer for radio station KMED. This is McCarley's first appearance with the Footlighters, but he has appeared with the Oregon Shakespearean festival company in past years.

Four other young people will be seen in their first roles with the local group. They are Shirley Buckingham and Elizabeth Betschart, who can pick the daughters, and Clyde Wheaton and Carl McQuigg, their two lovers.

Ruth Kilbourn, with the Footlighters several years ago and who has returned again to the valley, will be seen in the role of the dignified maid.

Directing the play is Rudy Vest. Although a student at Southern Oregon college.

Director Vest has had several years of experience in drama both as an amateur and as a professional.

Stage manager is Nick Parker, and Kathy Davies has charge of properties. Bernard Roberts is
