

University Mothers Ask Contributions For Scholarships

Mrs. L. G. Frink and other officers of the Southern Oregon branch, University of Oregon Mothers' club, today urged parents of university students to contribute to the club's scholarship fund. The local branch, of which Mrs. Frink is president, has collected $50 for the scholarship fund, but is anxious to increase the amount before it is presented during the annual Mothers' weekend festivities at the university next week end.

It is pointed out that many parents could not attend the fund-raising party given recently by the Southern Oregon mothers due to a conflict of events, and it is hoped these will contribute to the fund this week.

Contributions may be sent to Mrs. John Pond, 702 Kenyon street.

This past year 24 freshmen were given scholarships from the club, these ranging from $100 to $300.

A large group of university mothers plans to attend the Mothers' week end events.

Included are Mrs. Frink, Mrs. Pond, Mrs. W. H. Lydiard, Mrs. George Holzgang, Mrs. W. H. Reichstein, Mrs. J. W. Barnard and Mrs. Allan Perry.

Footlighter Play Opens Tonight

"Good Housekeeping", Footlighters 3-act comedy by William McCleery, opens tonight at the Fairgrounds theater for a five-night run. Curtain time is 8:30 o'clock each evening, and director Rudy Vest reminds theater goers that performances the first two or three nights should prove as entertaining as on the final nights of the show, when very often the theater is filled to capacity. The theater seats 160, and Director Vest expects attendance to be good, since this is the first Footlighter production in more than a year.

"Good Housekeeping," the story of a normal American family capable of achieving happiness despite the pressures of modern existence, is alive with good dialogue and funny situations, he states. The play, first produced in the East several years ago, and starring Helen Hayes, broke box office records on the "straw hat" circuit.

Four Medford Senior High school students, Misses Sue Boardman, Nancy Adams, Dana Ragsdale, and Linda Durkee, participate in one of the funniest scenes in the play, when they appear as cheer leaders.

Other members of the cast include Frankie Burton and Frank Buchter in the roles of the parents; Shirley Buckingham and Elizabeth Betschart as their daughters; Clyde Wheaton and Carl McQuigg, their boy friends; Isaac McCarley as the arrogant politician; and Ruth Kilbourn as the maid.
