Cleveland Ripped By Strong Winds; Five Listed Dead

Two Boys Die When Cafe Is Levelled

Cleveland, O. — (U.P.) — The Cleveland police department listed six dead last night, including two boys trapped in a levelled tavern, in the wake of a severe thunderstorm which sent near tornado winds through the city's west side.

One man was killed in a hit skip traffic accident during the storm.

No report has been made on the number of injured, but west side hospitals were jammed with residents seeking treatment.

Trapped in Cafe

The two boys, and another person, were trapped in the Scenery cafe which collapsed at the height of the storm. Seven other patrons were in the cafe but police managed to drag them from the debris and rushed them to hospitals. No report on their condition has been released.

Another casualty, a 28-year-old man, was also listed to the tavern collapse. Two men died when they touched live wires.

The two dead boys were aged seven and five and were brothers.

The storm hit the west side about 9:30 last night. The weather bureau at Cleveland-Hopkins airport plotted its course as three miles north of the airport, through the west side residential district.

The winds at the airport were clocked at 70 miles per hour, but the weather bureau said they were much stronger in the main path of the storm.

Police and fire crews worked desperately to clear live wires from the streets. One suburb reported its gas mains had burst in several locations, and trees lying across almost every main thoroughfare blocked rescue operations.

Arraignment Set For Billy Nunn

Billy Junior Nunn will be arraigned in circuit court at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday on a grand jury indictment charging him with first degree murder in connection with the April 19 sex slaying of Alvin William Eacret, 14, Klamath Falls.

Judge H. K. Hanna Saturday morning appointed Sam Harbison of Crum and Harbison law firm to represent Nunn, a 28-year-old Klamath Falls millworker.

Nunn was arrested in Alturas, Calif., May 2 in connection with the Eacret boy's death and wrote a confession to the crime the following day. The murder victim's body was found April 29 at Tub Springs park by two teen-age girls.

The grand jury returned the first degree murder indictment against Nunn late Friday afternoon.

Stevenson's Plane To Refuel Here Today

Portland — (U.P.) — Adlai Stevenson's Oregon headquarters announced here Saturday that the Democratic presidential hopeful will make his first stop in Oregon today when his chartered plane lands at Medford at 3:30 p.m. for refueling.

No public appearances are scheduled in Medford and the Stevenson party will take off immediately for Portland with an estimated arrival time of 4:30 p.m. His first appearance here will be at a coffee-dessert hour at Jefferson high school beginning at 7 p.m.

The visit will be Stevenson's final bid for write-in votes in the Oregon primary election next Friday.

Search Continues For Missing Plane In SW Washington

Vancouver, Wash. — (U.P.) Search for a missing private plane with four Southern Californians aboard centered in southwestern Washington Saturday after a fisherman reported seeing a smoking plane north of Ridgefield, Wash.

Ray Murray of Vancouver told search officials that he spotted a small plane belching smoke between 6 and 7 a.m. Friday at the junction of the Lewis river and Lake Merwin, about 40 miles northeast of Ridgefield. Additional planes

Maj. Al Larson of the Civil Air Patrol here immediately sent additional search planes and a helicopter to the area. Larson said he also was checking to determine if any other small planes were in the area at the time.

Murray said he did not see the plane close enough to determine whether it was the red and white Cessna 170 which was reported missing Friday on a flight from Renton, Wash., to Eugene, Ore.

Eight planes based at Pearson Field here were covering an area south to Salem in the search for A. D. Posten, pilot of the missing Cessna 170; his wife, Dorothy, both of Redondo Beach, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leep of La Mirada, Calif.

Polling Place Change Announced by Clerk

The Jackson county clerk has announced another polling place change for the May 18 primary election.

Voters in precinct 66, Jacksonville South, will vote at the Odd Fellows hall rather than the city hall. Other polling places are the same as printed in the Friday, May 11, issue of the Mail Tribune.

A complete list of polling places in the county will be printed again Thursday.

Agreement Reached On Access Road Funds

Washington — (U.P.) — House and Senate conferees Friday reached agreement on a $2,000,000 access road construction fund for 18 O and C counties in western Oregon.

The fund was contained in a bureau of land management supplemental appropriations bill for the current fiscal year.

Atom-Powered Sub Nautilus Heads to Sea With Newsmen

A board the Nautilus — (U.P.) The atom-powered submarine Nautilus headed from her Groton, Conn., base into deep water last night to show a party of newsmen what she can do.

After being put through the paces which make her one of the deadliest war vessels in service — and the harbinger of a new era of atomic power for both military and civilian use — she went to New York to open observance of Armed Forces week.

The Nautilus was scheduled to arrive off the southern tip of Manhattan, in New York harbor, shortly after noon Sunday. She will cruise slowly up the Hudson river to give viewers on both shores a chance to glimpse

Spirited Write-in Campaign Is Among Primary Highlights

Portland — (U.P.) — A spirited Democratic presidential write-in campaign and a battle for the Republican senatorial nomination highlight the Oregon May 18 primary election.

Out to capture Oregon's 16 delegates to the Democratic nominating convention are presidential hopefuls Adlai Stevenson and Estes Kefauver. That both think it important to win the Oregon delegation is attested by the fact that while neither is on the ballot each has made whirlwind appearances in the state and each plans to spend three days next week touring the state in vigorous campaigns for write-in votes.

In Oregon, nomination convention delegates are pledged to support the presidential candidate winning the largest number of votes in the primary. Write-in votes are counted. Ike Assured Delegates

President Eisenhower is assured Oregon's 18 GOP delegates. He is opposed for the Republican presidential nomination.

The only other contest which has aroused much interest is the Republican senatorial nomination race between Douglas McKay, resigned as Interior secretary to make the race, and Philip Hitchcock, former state senator and prominent church layman.

McKay entered the contest with the blessing of President Eisenhower and has the backing of most of the state's influential GOP leaders. But Hitchcock has campaigned strenuously and some party politicians feel he has picked up considerable strength, especially among the church and working people.

Both candidates have pitched their appeals to the voters on the theme that Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse must be beaten in November. The only difference arising between them is which has the better chance of succeeding against Morse.

Others in Race Elmer Deetz, a Canby dairyman, and George Altvater, Portland city employee, also are on the GOP senatorial ballot, but they have done little campaigning in their first attempts to gain national office.

Morse, the Republican's No. 1 target in November, has only token opposition on the Democratic ticket from Woodrow Wilson Smith, a 44-year-old Hood River mechanic who is largely unknown outside his home town. Smith's main efforts have been directed toward having Morse's name removed from the Democratic ballot. Smith claimed the senator was not a true Democrat. The courts overruled him.

It will be Morse's first attempt to hold his seat as a Democrat. He was elected six years ago as a Republican. In 1952, he left the GOP to become an independent and later switched his registration to Democrat.

In the congressional contest, Reps. Harris Ellsworth and Sam Coon are unopposed on the GOP ballot and Rep. Edith Green has no opposition on the Democratic ticket. Rep. Walter Norblad is opposed by R. F. Cook, a Silverton turkey rancher. Running for the Democratic nomination in Norblad's district are Jason Lee, Salem attorney, and Don Metheny, Brooks farmer. In Coon's district, Al Ullman, who was defeated two years ago by Coon, and A. E. Glidwell of Hermiston are competing for the Democratic nomination.

Phil Roth, Peter Welch and A. W. Lafferty, all Portland attorneys, and Elizabeth Carson Sailor, a Portland real estate woman, seek the GOP nomination to oppose Mrs. Green in the fall. Competing for the Democratic nomination in Ellsworth's district are Charles O. Porter and David Shaw, both attorneys and both defeated previously by Ellsworth.

Gov. Elmo Smith is opposed for the GOP gubernatorial nomination by Earl Dickson, an Albany grocer. Robert Holmes, Astoria radio station manager, is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Oregonians also will pick full slates of candidates for other state offices and the Legislature.

Enforcing Law Best Cure for Shortage, Porter Declares

"Knocking out the transit lumber shippers is not the way to correct the box car shortage," Charles O. Porter, Eugene attorney and Democratic candidate for Congress, said Saturday night before a small crowd at the Medford Labor temple.

"Enforcing the law is the best solution," he declared. Congressman Harris Ellsworth's bill on this subject, according to Porter, works on "this same false premise."

Porter criticized the Interstate Commerce commission for its order in April forbidding lumber shipments except on firm orders.

"The Commission should have considered that they were issuing a death sentence to a proved method of lumber distribution, a method that accounted for approximately $162 million of income to Oregon last year," he said.

Anticipated freight car shortages this summer and fall must be provided for by the Southern Pacific, Porter declared, citing federal law to that effect.

"The ICC has the duty to order the Southern Pacific to furnish the reasonably anticipated car supply, even if it means working week ends and building more cars and borrowing cars from other railroads. This duty was established by law in 1920 and has been re-affirmed time and again in the courts," he stated.

Porter also spoke on the Al Sarena mining controversy and declared that Douglas McKay is "off base" on mining laws and facts.

He further stated that public loss of money in the Al Sarena case is important, but he said the wrong attitude of McKay, Ellsworth and other public officers is more important.

He said "McKay has been morally indifferent to losing timber in the Rogue River National forest and does not feel responsibility for our national forests or any part of our public domain."

McKay Says Business Kept Power Price Low

Eugene — (U.P.) — Douglas McKay, told a gathering of Republican women here Friday that low power rates in the Columbia river power system had been maintained by good business methods in the Eisenhower administration.

The former Interior Secretary now a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator said basic rates of the Bonneville Power Administration had not been raised since they were established in 1939. He said the former Democratic administration had announced a rate increase for December, 1954, but the Republicans had been able to hold the line.

McKay predicted that rates would not have to be raised for at least another year, despite higher construction costs.

Sidney Hatkins Is Restored to Payroll

Washington — (U.P.) — Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles Saturday personally restored Sidney Hatkin, suspended Air Force statistician, to the government payroll—but in a "non-sensitive position."

Hatkin, suspended 14 months as a security risk, recently revealed that a Russian embassy clerk tried to hire him to dig up secret military information.

Eden's Government Admits Details of Missing Frogman

Russia Reveals Note Exchange on Incident

London — (U.P.) — The embarrassed government of Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden admitted Saturday that it told Russia details of the hush-hush case of the missing Navy frogman on the very day it refused to discuss the matter in Parliament.

Russia's revelation of a secret exchange of notes over the disappearance of Commander Lionel (Buster) Crabb near the Soviet cruiser Orzhonikidze in Portsmouth Harbor April 19 was a "bitter shock" to Eden, sources said. The Socialist opposition was sure to try to capitalize on it.

Laborite leaders demanded that the government fire some officials and make "big changes" at the Admiralty.

The Foreign Office obviously was taken by surprise by the radio Moscow report and a Soviet reply of May 4 and a British reply of May 9 regarding the incident, it was 14 hours before the Foreign Office, with Eden's permission, admitted that the Moscow radio was accurate.

Laborites rose to the political bait. On May 9, while Britain told Russia about the frogman's disappearance and "presumed" death, Eden told Commons he could not discuss the case "in the public interest."

When Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskell charged that the 46-year-old Crabb was engaged in espionage, Eden refused to confirm or deny. He did not tell Parliament that Russia had officially protested or that Britain had told the Kremlin Crabb apparently was swimming near the cruiser.

U.S. Agrees to Jet Shipment by French

Paris — (U.P.) — The United States has agreed to the immediate shipment by France of 12 more Mystere IV jet fighter planes to Israel, the French Foreign office announced last night.

A communique issued by the Ministry said Washington had approved the immediate delivery of the planes which are manufactured in France for NATO forces under American offshore contracts.

France said she also has asked Britain for approval of the shipment.

France recently shipped 12 of the jet fighters to Israel. The Mystere IV planes are among the world's top-performance jet fighters and are believed capable of matching the Soviet-built MIG fighters the Communist nations have supplied Egypt recently.

Israel also is seeking U.S. F-86 jet fighter planes from the United States and Canada.

Sports Bulletins

Sacramento, Calif. — (U.P.) — The Sacramento Solons missed an opportunity to take over first place in the Pacific Coast League last night when they dropped a 7-2 decision to the San Diego Padres.

Seattle — (U.P.) — A flawless ninth inning relief job by Larry Jansen enabled the Seattle Rainiers to edge Portland 2-1 last night and square the Pacific Coast League series at a game apiece.

Vancouver, B.C. — (U.P.) — Bob Harrison gave the Vancouver Mounties an even split in the Saturday Pacific Coast League twin-bill at Capilano stadium by pitching them to a 9 to 2 victory over Hollywood last night.

Mrs. Cleo Maletis, Portland Housewife, Is Selected as 'Mrs. America of 1956'

Ellinor Villoge, Fla. — (U.P.) — Mrs. Cleo Maletis, a 31-year-old brown-haired homemaker expert from Portland, Ore., was picked last night as "Mrs. America of 1956."

Mrs. Maletis, representing her state in competition against 49 homemakers from 47 other states and the District of Columbia, broke into tears when the announcement came that she had been picked the winner.

When she regained her composure she said "I never could have won the contest if I didn't have the wonderful family of

Ike's Health In 'Good' Condition

ROSIE LEARNS THE HARD WAY — Mail Tribune Staff Writer Rosie Boley journeyed to the National Guard range last week to write a story about the police firearms training school. (Her story appears on Page 12 today). Solicitous officers saw to it that she got the full treatment—not only the facts and figures, but the experience of firing. She is shown above firing the .12 gauge riot gun, which has a kick like a mule, and which gave her a black-and-blue shoulder. Providing moral (and physical) support is Officer Berle Stevens. Looking on skeptically is Medford Police Chief Charles Champlin. The photo was taken by Medford Police Officer Raymond Seely without Miss Boley's knowledge.

Tornadoes Kill Four, Hurt 80 in Michigan

Flint, Mich. — (U.P.) — Twin tornadoes ripped into Michigan's mid-section last night, killing at least four persons and injuring close to 80.

One twister hit the southeast edge of Flint, Michigan's second largest city which was rocked by a devastating tornado which killed 116 persons June 8, 1953.

The other struck near Ithaca, about 60 miles northwest of here in Gratiot county.

There was a report of another twister at Haslett, 60 miles southeast of here. But state police who investigated found no damage other than that caused by high winds which whipped over most of lower Michigan.

Violent thunderstorms sent wind and rain whipping down on scores of communities shortly after dusk and there were several unconfirmed tornado reports.

The tornado hit at the southeast edge of Flint in a thickly populated residential section along U.S. highway 10. The area contained several hundred homes and two trailer camps. St. Joseph's hospital reported treating 27 injured and Hurley hospital said 35 injured were treated there. None of the injured was in critical condition, the hospitals said.

Another four persons were reported injured in the Ithaca area.

The others injured here were treated at an emergency center set up at the east side school near the damage area.

Commandoes Raid Algerian City

Constantine, Algeria — (U.P.) — Suicide Commandoes of the rebel "Army of Allah" raided Constantine Saturday in the rebellion's first large-scale guerrilla strike against a major city.

The rebel raiders slipped through strong French defense into the Eastern Algerian capital.

The daring attack came as French authorities reported at least 150 rebels killed in scattered clashes across the Northwest African territory in the past 24 hours.

Rebel suicide squads struck in broad daylight against Constantine, capital of the department of the same name and Algeria's biggest inland city. The raid touched off widespread panic in the city whose normal population of 118,000 has been swelled by European and Moslem refugees from outlying terrorist-ridden areas.

Medford Girl Suffers Burns Here Saturday

Marna Lou Warren, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Warren of 346 South Holly st., was taken to Community hospital Saturday afternoon after suffering second degree burns, hospital attendants reported Saturday.

She was burned at home when she got too close to an electric heater and her dress caught fire, it was reported. Her condition was reported as "fair" Saturday night, hospital attendants said.

Detailed Medical Report Following Two-Day Physical

'No Symptoms' of Weakness, Doctors Say

Washington — (U.P.) — President Eisenhower's doctors reported Saturday that he is in "good" physical condition and that his heart shows "no symptoms or findings" of weakness or "insufficiency."

The White House made public a detailed medical report on the results of an extensive physical examination which Mr. Eisenhower underwent during the past two days at the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center. Report Issued

The report was issued an hour after the President, all smiles and in good spirits, left the hospital and went to the Burning Tree club for an afternoon of golf.

The report cited a number of technical details on the condition of Mr. Eisenhower's heart, "all of which is very good." White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said.

"His general condition continues good," the report said. "He is physically active and mentally alert. His appearance, appetite and digestion are excellent."

"Injury Well Healed" The "head-to-toe" physical examination was the first for the President since he announced Feb. 29 that he would seek a second term. It was his second major physical this year following his heart attack last Sept. 24.

As for the condition of his heart, the medical report said the myocardial infarction injury to the heart of last September was "well healed as evidence by X-ray and cardiographic findings."

"The electrocardiogram showed residual changes consistent with the healed infarction," the report continued. "There were no symptoms or finding of myocardial insufficiency muscle weakness or coronary insufficiency angina."

The report was signed by Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, personal physician to the President, and Maj. Gen. D. Heaton, Walter Reed commanding general.

Firemen Call on 952 Homes in Inspection

Medford firemen called at 952 city homes during the four days of their home inspection program last week, according to Fire Marshal Truman Nelson.

They actually inspected 499 homes. In 413 cases residents were not in, and in 40 cases firemen were refused admittance. In 170 of those inspected, no hazards were noted. A total of 517 recommendations for the elimination of fire hazards were made in the other residences.

The home inspection plan is a free service conducted annually by the Medford fire department in an attempt to cut down the danger of home fires by pointing out hazards. This year homes on east-west streets were inspected, and next year homes on north-south streets will be visited.

The project was conducted using three fire trucks, one from each station, to make the calls. A fireman stood by each radio-equipped vehicle in case it was needed to answer an alarm.

Light Installation To Start This Week

City crews will start installing traffic signals this week at Main and Hawthorne sts. and at the school crossing on Stewart and Holly sts. Vern Thorpe, director of public works, has announced.

Work will also begin next week on modification of the traffic signal at Main st. and Crater Lake ave., Thorpe said. Plans and specifications for the projects were authorized last fall by the city council.
