

Indonesia Warns U.S. Must Emphasize Economic Assistance

Washington — (U.P.) — Indonesian President Sukarno warned today that the United States must put more emphasis on economic and political assistance for free nations or face "bitterness, disillusionment, and strained relations."

In a ringing speech before a joint session of Congress, the 53-year-old Asian statesman said bluntly that "Military aid is no substitute for Asian stability" for it makes nations more "dependent upon America" and reduces their values at "partners in the universal struggle for liberty."

Can't Buy Freedom

"We will accept with the greatest appreciation any assistance that may come to us from whatever quarter it may come," he declared. "But we are determined that no material advantage will buy from us any part of our hard won freedom."

Sukarno pleaded with the cheering congressmen to understand that Indonesia and other Asian peoples are struggling to win their freedom and to overthrow colonialism much as the United States did 180 years ago.

Nationalism . . . is the main-spring of our efforts," he said. "Fail to understand it and no amount of thinking, no torrent of words, and no Niagara of dollars will produce anything but bitterness and disillusionment."

Neutral in Struggle

Indonesia, the world's third largest republic, has been a neutral in the East-West struggle. At times, some experts have expressed fear that it might swing toward Communism. But Sukarno emphatically denied this.

"Have no doubts about Democracy in Indonesia, Mr. Speaker," he said. "Even in the most difficult years immediately after the recognition of sovereignty, we were able to guard the unity of our country . . ."

FIGHTING DEPORTATION

—Los Angeles born Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino, 39, Japanese propagandist of World War II known as Tokyo Rose, appears pensive as she arrives in San Francisco where she will reside while she fights the Government's effort to deport her. She has already served six years of a 10-year sentence in a Federal prison. The Government wants to deport her as an "undesirable" resident.

Legislation Urged To Stamp Out Illicit Baby Black Market

Washington — (U.P.) — Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), today called for federal legislation to stamp out the "intolerable" business of selling babies.

Wiley said testimony at a sometimes stormy hearing on baby black marketing Wednesday proved that the problem "can't be licked" without federal, as well as state and local, action.

The Senate's Judiciary subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency heard testimony that fees ranging from $1000 to $3200 were collected for placing illegitimate children for adoption with couples in other states.

Girls Said Coerced

Dr. Martha Elliot, chief of the federal Children's Bureau, said some unwed girls have been "coerced into giving up their babies merely to supply more children for the black market."

Wiley, who presided at part of the hearing, said sale of babies "is often mixed up with criminal activities."

He urged state and private welfare agencies to give the subcommittee their views on legislation to crack down on baby black marketing.

A pending "crack down" bill was criticized at the hearing as going too far. It would regulate interstate adoptions and make it a crime for anyone but a licensed agency to collect any money for handling them.

Highlights of Wednesday's testimony were:

Gale L. Marcus, Chicago lawyer, refused to tell what fees he collected in adoption cases, even under threat of a contempt citation.

Subcommittee counsel Ernest L. Mitter charged that Marcus was part of a "commercial" interstate adoption group and that William V. Manella, "muscle man" and "racketeer," solicited mothers of babies for him.

J. Thomas Watson, Lakeland, Fla., justice of the peace, said Manella had demanded a baby born to a Chicago girl at Lakeland, representing himself as a friend of her family.

Mitter said the subcommittee has tried unsuccessfully to locate Manella for questioning.

Geological Survey Seeks Money for New Building

Washington — The Geological Survey - mapper, mineral finder and water measurer to the United States — is seeking a new home.

A request for construction of a $22,260,000 building to house the Survey is before the Public Works Committee of House and Senate.

If approved, it will allow amalgamation of survey functions now scattered in 16 buildings, some housing four or five men in offices designed for one.

Founded in 1879 by combining four surveying parties at work in the West, the Geological Survey today is a $50,000,000 a year agency employing some 8,000 persons, 2,300 of them in Washington. Others work throughout the 48 states, the territories and in foreign countries. The director is Dr. Thomas B. Nolan. He succeeded Dr. William E. Wrather, a National Geographic Society trustee, who retired in January.

Mapping Continues

Perhaps best known among the Survey's activities is topographic mapping. Last year it distributed 3,210,000 maps from an inventory of 25,000,000. Each year it publishes about 1,600 new maps. The program advances a prime aim of the Survey — the first complete mapping of the entire United States.

Seventy-three per cent of the country has now been mapped by the Survey, 40 per cent to modern standards and requirements.

The Survey's geologic division investigates the basic physical structure of the country. It finds and appraises minerals and mineral fuels, with emphasis these days on uranium. Survey scientists have developed many new techniques in this field. Some are so efficient they lead to disappointment. The method of locating zinc ore deposits through tiny traces in soil or water has lured Survey workers up long stream beds where they found only pieces of discarded scrap metal.
