

Comment On This and That

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Feature Writer

Washington—(U.P.)—The Miss America people are getting smart. They have appointed a former Miss America to some sort of job.

This young lady would be Bebe Shopp. She was and is a dolly. And now she is with portfolio as New England director for the Miss America business.

She ought to do a good job because she knows and has all the angles.

First time I ever saw this lovely blonde from right outside Minneapolis she was fresh off the farm and had displayed a rare musical talent. The kid could play the vibraharp, which is next of kin to the xylophone, which has to be hammered properly if you want the right music to come out.

Won Beauty Contest
Bebe could hammer all right, as witness the fact that she wound up Miss America in 1948.

All of which brings us up to the very present and one Norman Reed, who handles the annual contest for Miss Washington.

Norman toils for radio station WWDC. His long-standing rule is that the contestants can never, ever be embellished with any phony padding—like er, ah . . . falsies.

That's the rule in the big time at Atlantic City, too. But Norman is fussing over something that the makers of bathing suits are offering to lady bathers everywhere—built-in falsies. And he wonders if the new padding might not get into the Atlantic City beauty pageant.

I can tell him he need never fret. Right there in the dressing room at Convention hall sits a registered nurse. Her job is to see to it that each contestant puts into a bathing suit only that with which nature endowed her.

A Perfect 36
But getting back to Bebe. She embarrassed the pageant committee and her father when she got to France, as part of her tour as Miss America, and sounded off on "falsies."

Lovely Bebe, herself a perfect 36, had told reporters over there, in effect, that she had never heard of the things. And what were they?

People were shocked. The vibraharp almost went out of business and Bebe came home, but not before she sounded off on the same subject a few more times.

Bebe, still lovely, now is 26 years old. She is Mrs. Bayard D. Warming, of Arlington, Mass. I missed Bebe last year. She sent a wire saying that she was busy having a baby.

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Correspondent

Hollywood—(U.P.)—One thing missing from the movies are those sweet, innocent heroines with long hair and soulful eyes—instead of so many sexy Marilyn Monroes.

The lady who made that statement today looked out of soulful eyes herself and patted hair that once was red and long. Now it's chic, short and graying. And Mae Marsh, that wistful ingenue of such great films as "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance," is now a bit player in modern movies.

Today's actresses, she thinks, are either pixieish like Leslie Caron, sexy like M. Monroe or sophisticated like Grace Kelly.

Miss Saint Mentioned
She says the only star in Hollywood today who is like Miss Marsh and Lillian and Dorothy Gish in their heyday, the early 1900s, is Eva Marie Saint.

"Possibly there aren't parts written like that any more, but the actresses aren't like that, either. Isn't it funny how they all try to be like Marilyn Monroe?" she smiled as we sat in her nearby Hermosa Beach home.

"I think there will be a return to the innocent-heroine type. But it will take a long time to get back from this sexy business. Eva Marie Saint really is the first of that type since Janet Gaynor."

Too many Marylins have hurt young girls of America, she added.

Innocent Type Needed
"It would help the children a great deal if the sweet innocent type would return," she said.

"It's pathetic today how they all get bosom conscious, even my 12-year-old granddaughter. Young people think sex appeal is all they need to attract a man."

When Miss Marsh was a big star, her director, D. W. Griffith, "wouldn't let us be sophisticated."

"We were told to be reserved, ladylike, kind, gentle and polite and never to raise our voices," she said.

Miss Marsh still is married to her first husband who was a publicist for one of her films. They have three children and six grandchildren.

Measles Postpones Korea Orphans' Trip

Tokyo—(U.P.)—Sixteen tiny Korean orphans were quarantined today for measles, delaying a journey to their new parents in Hawaii and America for at least three weeks.

Two physicians diagnosed that a little girl, who lay listlessly in her crib at a downtown Tokyo hotel, had measles and that possibly two other children also were coming down with the disease.

One of the children quarantined was bright-eyed Lee En Ai, 3½, who was adopted by Hollywood cowboy movie star Roy Rogers and his wife, Dale Evans.

The children were born to Korean mothers and GI fathers who abandoned them.

They arrived in Tokyo from Seoul Monday and were scheduled to leave tonight for home.

Dr. Robert Pierce, President of the adoption sponsoring World Vision Organization, is looking for a hospital to house his small charges until they can leave Japan.
