

Brooklyn Law Partners Questioned in Ambulance Chasing Ring, Involving Police, Firemen

New York — (AP) — Police questioned the partners of a Brooklyn law firm today in an ambulance chasing ring allegedly involving police, firemen, doctors, lawyers and insurance agents. Twenty-nine policemen, four of them members of the Kings county district attorney's own rackets squad, were subpoenaed Wednesday by the Kings County Rackets Grand Jury. Naval Intelligence and the FBI were also reported to be interested in the city-wide inquiry. District Attorney Edward S. Silver of Kings county said the law firm of Fallick and Connolly, of Brooklyn, has been under investigation for three months for its handling of 362 negligence cases last year and its receipt of more than 100 negligence retainers in the first two months of this year. Silver identified the partners of the law firm subpoenaed for questioning as Joseph Fallick, 30, who served six years in the Police Department before admission to the bar three years ago, and John J. Connolly, 42, who is also a lieutenant fireman with Hook and Ladder Co. 110, Brooklyn.
