Washington — (U.P.)—The State Department has announced that the United States and Canada have agreed to launch a study regarding the use of water flowing across the international boundary.

The study will deal with such problems as Canada's suggestion that it divert surplus water now flowing from Canada into the Columbia river basin in this country.

The inquiry, first suggested at the recent meeting between President Eisenhower and Canadian Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, could lead to a revision of the 1909 treaty which now governs international water use.

The State Department announced plans for the study while former Idaho Gov. Len B. Jordan, chief American representative in the International Joint Commission, was testifying before a Senate subcommittee on negotiations involving the Columbia.

Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.), subcommittee chairman, said the U. S.-Canadian study was in line with a recommendation he made to take the problem away from Jordan and the joint commission.

Neuberger has accused Jordan of dragging his feet on negotiations for Libby dam in Montana.

The State Department announcement mentioned three streams as being involved in the discussions—the Columbia, the Yukon and the St. Johns. It said there are "complicated legal, economic and engineering problems" involved in the international development of the streams, and pointed out there have been no diplomatic discussions on them since 1909.

Lake of Woods Resort Opens; 2 Roads Clear

Lake of Woods resort was opened last week and two routes are open, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Neeley, operators of the resort announced today.

The resort can be reached through Dead Indian rd., reported to be in the best condition ever, and the Klamath Falls route.

The section of road on the Dead Indian route in Jackson county is in excellent shape because of work done by the county road crews both last fall and this spring, according to Neeley. The remainder of the road in Klamath county, though not so good, is in fine condition, the resort owner explained.

Fishing season will open July 1 and the lake now is being stocked with 50,000 legal length rainbow trout and 300,000 fingerlings.

The resort coffee shop and store are stocked and furnished cabins are available. Picnic grounds are also available and row and outboard motor boats are for rent.

Exceptionally warm weather recently has melted snows at the lake and swimming has been good, Neeley said. Private roads to summer homes also are open.

Fish lake roads are open from Deadwood junction on the Dead Indian highway and also from Butte Falls junction. The road on into Lake of the Woods from the Butte Falls route still is closed due to drifts of snow reported to be three to four feet high, Neeley said.

Lawrence Appointed To Youth Camp Group

Mark Lawrence, who is with the bureau of land management office here, has been appointed county chairman of this year's youth camp committee, according to officers of the northwest section of the American Society of Range Management.

Lawrence will work with a committee to arrange sponsors and help select boys to attend the Youth Range camp August 6-11 on the bird range south of Burns.

Four boys between 14 and 18 years of age will be chosen from Jackson county, Lawrence said. They will be selected through plant identification contest, on the basis of leadership, good citizenship and love of the outdoors.

Local organizations and individuals will be solicited by the county committee to provide $25 scholarships to cover transportation and camp costs for boys attending the camp.

Gloria Swanson Amused by Old American Records at Party for Franco's Daughter

By GLORIA SWANSON
Written for United Press

Madrid — (U.P.)—The Spanish women, beautifully gowned, were mostly young matrons because the party was given for Franco's daughter, the Marquesa de Villavieja.

Daughter, like mother, is very chic. I first met Senora Franco two years ago. She was exquisite in chalk white with an emerald scarf that was part of the gown. The grains against her black hair was stunning.

It was amusing to hear and dance to a great many American records—some very old, indeed. Imagine these tunes in a Spanish home: "St. Louis Blues" and "Moon Over Miami."

The Spaniards' manners, no matter what else or age, are extremely gracious. A woman will always rise when receiving an introduction to another woman. I have always done this just for an older woman but here, and in Italy, it is the custom to rise for all ages except the young unmarried.

Good Lesson
Well do I remember when my daughter, Michelle, aged 15, complained that she felt silly because she was the only girl in her group that rose when an older woman entered the room. I emphatically impressed on her that she would have to continue to feel silly or I would disown her, that there was nothing wrong in paying this gesture of respect.

The removing of the right glove for an introduction in Italy and Spain I don't understand. A man removing his glove makes sense because it no doubt is a hangover from the days when men wore gauntlets which were possibly soiled from the horses' reins.

There are so many contradictions about wearing gloves. When meeting the pope you are not allowed to have one on your right hand. Yet for English royalty it is a "must."

Big Tease
What fun Noel Coward had teasing me about the length of my white kid gloves just before I was to be presented to Alfonso, king of Spain. He teased me that they were one inch too short. I think a gracious introduction is so much nicer than our usual catch-as-catch-can mumbo jumbo. But, hurrah for our side when it comes to the good manners of being punctual. And shame on the Italians and Spaniards for thinking nothing about being an hour late.
