

Mounted Posse and Troop Hold Field Day Program

About 75 persons attended a field day last Sunday at Jackson County Mounted Sheriff's posse grounds, sponsored by the Ladies Mounted troop, auxiliary. There were members from posses and auxiliaries from Douglas, Josephine and Jackson counties.

The posse served dinner Saturday evening at the club house and music for dancing was furnished by Vona Parker, J. L. Parker, Ray Ashcraft, Gene Lowe and Lanny Bogenoff.

A number of the group slept out of doors at the grounds and Sunday morning a buckaroo breakfast was served to about 100 guests.

Ronnie Eastgate, Frank Peterson, Carl Westbrood and Dave Askins, students of the Forest Chapman guitar studio, furnished music for the breakfast.

The field day activities began at 1 o'clock in the arena and each event was participated in by both men and women.

The week end activities were held to create a closer relationship between the groups and Grants Pass auxiliary members plan a similar event in the near future.

Prizes Awarded
Prizes were awarded for the various events.

In the matched pairs class Josephine county members were in first place with the award going to Howard Wirtz and Mrs. Sam Ray; Jackson county was second with Gary Gustafson and Mrs. Frank Christian, as the winners and taking third for Josephine county were Sam Ray and Mrs. Ann Duke.

In a stake race Jerry Fullerton and Miss Judy Steele of Douglas county took first; John Shama and Miss Montana Emerson, Jackson county, second; and Gary Brown and Miss Vera Dudley, also of Jackson county, third. ## Nurses Conduct Two Institutes

District 4, Oregon State Nurses' association, held two nursing institutes in May. The first was an institute on "Neurosurgery" and the speaker was Dr. James C. Luce. Following his talk, Mrs. Phyllis Schroeder gave demonstrations of nursing procedures peculiar to this field of nursing.

The second institute was on "Anesthesia" and "Venipuncture," and the speaker was Dr. David C. Boals. Assisting that evening were Mrs. Schroeder, Mrs. Eileen Valentine and Miss Eleanor Bragg.

General chairman for the institutes was Miss Gertrude Molloy and both were held at Sacred Heart hospital. About 35 registered nurses attended each institute and felt them to be most enjoyable and educational.

Books Designed To Help Brides Listed by Library

Books designed to help prospective June brides are available at the Medford Public library.

The latest edition of Emily Post's "Etiquette" describes preparations for the most elaborate as well as the simplest weddings. Another book that dwells on the same subject is "Vogue's Book of Etiquette."

The family with an engagement or wedding to plan might turn to "Successful Entertaining at Home," by Carolyn Coggins. Authoritative information guides in the selection of china, glassware and silver. Amelia Hill's "The Complete Book of Table Setting," provides information on the accepted customs and best practices of table setting, service, etiquette and flower arrangement. Other related books include "Let's Set the Table," by Elizabeth Lounsbury and Charlotte Adam's "Home Entertaining."

For the inevitable flurry of showers, friends might turn to Helen Webster's "Shower Parties for All Occasions," which contains many ideas for honoring the bride-to-be. The "Cokesbury Shower Book," is another source of good ideas.

Prospective service brides will do well to heed the advice offered in "The Army Wife," by Nancy Shea. It offers a readable and informative word picture of Army life from the woman's point of view. For the bride who expects to work after marriage, a recent book called "Housekeeping After Office Hours," by Charlotte Adams, may be useful. Other books the bride might look into, include "Decorating on a Budget," by Elizabeth Ogg; House and Garden's "Complete Guide to Interior Decorating," and the "Good Housekeeping Cook Book," edited by Dorothy B. Marsh.
