The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Walter Alvarez

According to Dr. Morris Samitz, who recently spoke at a symposium on industrial medicine, the so-called industrial dermatitis, or skin trouble due to contact with various chemicals, is very common among workers in clothing and textile industries, where dyes are much used. Skin lesions are found, of course, in chemical factories and rubber factories, and among workers in fur, leather and several types of food. It is found in workers in cement, pottery, paint-making, lithography, furniture-finishing, dish-washing, and cleaning and dyeing. Among chemicals that injure the skin, kerosene and turpentine are bad actors. Many women have trouble because of the new detergents.

The Significance of Sucking and Nursing

In the last 20 years, certain psychiatrists have had a wonderful time spinning all sorts of sexual and other weird theories to explain why infants suckle and nurse. Now comes Dr. W. T. James, of the University of Georgia, to say that sucking is a simple reflex, very strongly developed in all mammalian infant animals. He says that baby puppies will suckle whenever they are with the mother. They will suckle even when their little stomach is filled with milk; they will suckle when the stomach is empty; they will suckle after they have been sucking on a bottle, or after they have been taking food from a dropper; they will continue to suck until they fall asleep; and they will begin again the minute they wake.

From his studies, he is sure that small animals suckle just because they were born with this strong automatic tendency. Among marsupials—animals in which the young are born only partly developed, and then cared for in a pouch within which are milk glands—there is one strong instinct, and that is to find a teat and then cling to it. To ascribe to these almost brainless little bits of flesh all the complicated sexual ideas that psychiatrists now thrive on would seem to be utterly silly.

Dr. James' conclusion is that human infants also suckle because of a simple instinct or sort of reflex. There is no need for dragging in sexual explanations for the process.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

Premature Blast Kills Chicago Man

Chicago—(U.P.) — Authorities Saturday sought a tall man for questioning in the death of Clarence Michael Campbell, 58, whose body was blown in two by premature blast of a dynamite bomb he was delivering.

Police believed the man, who was out walking a dog in the early hours Friday morning, may have been a witness to the blast that killed Campbell.

Campbell apparently sought to duck behind a tree when he saw the stranger approaching, police theorized, and tripped over a wire strung to protect the grass. The jar of his fall apparently touched off the blast.

John Costello Sr. and his son, who were aroused when the blast shattered windows in their home, said they saw the man and his dog near a part of Campbell's body.

The intended bombing was one of a series that has broken out here in recent months. However, this is the first time anyone connected with the blasts has been identified.

Blast Fall-Out May Have Reached Coast

Berkeley, Calif. — (U.P.) — State Health Department observers here reported Saturday radioactive fall-out from the H-bomb blast at Bikini may have reached the continental United States.

The Department said that radioactive readings of air particles, which started on April 23, jumped up to 2½ times the normal background level reading Friday. The Department said there was nothing alarming in the readings because they still were only in the "high range of normal."

If the readings continue in the high normal range for two or three days, the department said, it probably was logical to say that the radioactive dust of the blast had reached the North American continent, travelling at the rate of approximately 40 miles per hour.

British Authorities Search Luxury Liner

Nicosia, Cyprus — (U.P.) —British authorities announced Saturday they boarded and searched the Greek luxury liner Agamemnon Friday in a policy of searching all "suspect" vessels that approach Cyprus.

A British spokesman said that search orders were issued last September. Searching the 5,514 ton Greek luxury liner serves notice the order will be carried out, he said.

The searches apparently are intended to prevent gun running or transporting fugitives of the anti-British Cypriot underground. Nothing was reported found in the two-hour search of the Agamemnon.

Sam Rayburn's Sister Dies in Texas Home

Bonham, Tex. — (U.P.) —Miss Lucinda Rayburn, sister of House Speaker Sam Rayburn and his long-time official hostess in Washington, died late Saturday at her home here.

Miss Rayburn — best known as "Miss Lu" — was in her early 80s. She had undergone an operation six weeks ago, and her condition steadily grew worse.

Historic Material of Civil War Era Found

Springfield, Ill. — (U.P.) — Discovery of historical material dating back to Abraham Lincoln and the Civil War era was reported Sunday.

The collection included about 10,000 pictures, books, scrapbooks, diaries, letters and other material. It was found in the basement of the Centennial building where it had been gathering dust for 20 years.

The discovery was made by a records management firm which had been hired to evaluate old state government records and discarded useless files.

GILLNET FISHING ENDS

Portland—(U.P.) —Gillnet fishing on the Columbia came to a close yesterday with fishermen reporting good catches despite the high water level that hampered fishing at some points. Commercial fishing in the lower Columbia will resume on June 20.

Boulder Creek Has Second Major Fire

Boulder Creek, Calif.— (U.P.) — The second major fire to hit this resort community within a month gutted a motion picture theater late Friday night. Harold L. Hilton, owner of the Burl theater, said the loss would exceed $100,000.

Earlier this month a block of business establishments directly across the street from the theater went up in flames. Damages in that fire were estimated at $200,000.

Paris — (U.P.) — Pan-American World Airways completed Saturday the first commercial flight of the new Douglas DC7C airliner, a 4,800 mile nonstop run from Miami to Paris.
