

Family Arrives After Stay on Island of Guam

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Day and their two small children, Carol, 2, and Stephen, 6 months, arrived in Medford Thursday after an extended stay on the island of Guam. Mr. Day, a petty officer second class, was assigned there on Navy duty.

Mrs. Day is the former Joy Geren and she and her family are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Murphy and family, Alson and Bud Geren, Judy and Ida May Murphy. They will also visit Mr. Day's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Day and his brother, Noble, 3895 Colver road, Phoenix.

When the Day's household goods arrive from Guam, they plan to buy a home in the valley and will live here.

The Murphys motored to San Francisco and met the returning family at Ft. Mason. The Days made the trip from Guam on the Aultman.

Trumans Cause Sensation In Rome, Traveler Says

(Editor's note: In this article Mrs. I. E. Schuler, Medford resident spending a year in Europe and now in Rome, writes of the visit of the Truman's, of the Episcopal church which she attends there, and of the elections being held in Rome today.)

Ex-President and Mrs. Truman are causing a sensation during their visit in Rome. A headline in one of the papers was, "The glory that is Truman dims the grandeur that was Rome."

Henry Luce attempted to show them the Colosseum, but the mob following and swarming and cheering was so great that they couldn't hear him. Every time it is rumored they are entering or leaving some place, hundreds gather to see them and to take pictures.

Sunday morning, therefore, it must have been a relief to be invited to the Episcopal church and to sit in quiet, unmolested and unstared at. It was not until the rector welcomed as usual the visitors in Rome and "especially our distinguished guests, ex-president and Mrs. Truman," that I realized I was sitting exactly two rows behind them. At the end of the service the congregation waited until they left. At the coffee hour afterwards many people spoke of how tired they both looked. Being a celebrity is grilling in Rome. Mr. Luce was noticeably unhappy.

Church Beautiful
The Episcopal Protestant church in Rome is, because of its artistic excellence, a national monument in Italy. It is often referred to as a gem among churches. It is certainly a thing of beauty and a joy to see, unique in its simple grandeur. It is stone and marble, gothic in style. The chancel, which is oval, is decorated in mosaics by Byrne Jones. As you enter from the vestibule there seems to be almost a glow, which is warm and pleasing.

Americans, living and working in Rome, built the church 75 years ago. Previously to that of necessity they had to worship outside the walls and much pressure was brought to bear before St. Paul's within the walls became a reality.

Although Episcopalian in form, it is the traditional church for all Protestant-Americans and besides a large regular congregation, many tourists come to the Sunday services. The rector, Canon Shreve of California, a friendly and to earth man, sets a standard for hospitality and cordiality, which is reflected in his congregation and their slogan, "A home away from home," seems to have real meaning.

The custom of singing the last stanza of America, with the flag unfurled in front of the altar, is appreciated in a foreign country, and the words assume vast importance. It is definitely noticeable that everyone sings with more gusto and enthusiasm than at home.

The church serves the Americans in many ways. Boy and Girl scouts meet there. Young people from the American schools hold weekly parties in the reception room, Alcoholics Anonymous holds meetings there, artists display paintings and musicians give concerts. And everyone is made welcome.

Many Posters
Rome is flourishing in a sea of political posters. The elections are the 28th of this month and the 15 political parties are vying with one another in displaying the greatest number of slogans and pictures. "Vote Communista," "Don't vote for the party of this brute," (with big picture of Stalin); "Vote Christian Democrat," "Vote for Monarchy," "Now is the time for socialism," etc., etc.

Signs are plastered all over beautiful buildings as high as can be reached, hanging across streets, floating from windows,

Coming Events Announced for Job's Daughters

A number of coming events are on the calendar for Bethel 55, Job's Daughters.

Installation of a new guardian council will be held at a meeting June 12. Mrs. C. D. Elhart, a past grand guardian for Oregon, will be installing officer.

A meeting of all guardians of the Bethel is set for June 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Harold Gordon, 418 South Oakdale avenue. The meeting is described as important.

A swimming party and picnic are planned for Saturday, June 9, at Lithia park. Herbert Sampert and Lem Manning will be chefs for the picnic.

A number of visitors attended the last meeting of the Bethel. These included Mrs. John Sanders, Seattle, grand guide of the Washington Bethel and a past guardian of Bethel 40, Seattle; Mrs. Sanders, a past associate guardian of Bethel 40; Mrs. Evelyn Sult, guardian of Bethel 37, Bandon, Ore., and grand fourth messenger of Oregon; Allan Rogers, associate guardian of Bethel 56, Shady Cove.

Mrs. Paul Selby, guardian of Bethel 55, is also grand librarian of the Oregon Bethel, and her daughter, Margaret, is grand Bethel marshal.

Mrs. Barton LaFon and Miss Sheila Spence were past queens present and Mrs. Wendell Spence, a past guardian, attended.

During the meeting initiation was held and taken into membership were the Misses Paula Jeanne Scott, Vicki LaFon, Pamela Colleen White, Donna Jean Dell and Alice Moir.

Yesterday the Bethel observed and on newly constructed billboards. Suddenly, from above, as you walk along a shower of pamphlets may flutter down on your head or thrown at you from a car window.

"From what I can learn, it is a contest really, between the Communists and the Christian Democrats."

Rebekahs Receive Invitations From Jacksonville Unit

Olive Rebekah lodge members are invited to attend a Friendship night observance June 4 at the Jacksonville Rebekah lodge and Mrs. E. D. Dameron has been appointed to arrange a skit for the event. The appointment and announcement were made at a meeting of the group last week.

Plans also are being made for an official visit of the Rebekah assembly president, Mrs. Roy H. Gibbs of Oceanside, who is to be here July 13.

Mrs. George V. Naderman, Salem, was a visitor. She is a guest at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Riley Appelgate.

A report was made on a recent Friendship night observance at Grants Pass attended by members of the local lodge.

Refreshments were served at the recent meeting by Mrs. E. W. Pease, Mrs. Agnes Furch and Mrs. W. L. Walden. About 40 persons attended.

Meeting Announced By Harmony Club

Next meeting of Townsend Harmony Club No. 1 will be June 6 at 12:30 p.m. at Carpenters' hall, 1231 West Main street. A covered dish luncheon will be served, and visitors are welcome to attend.

At last Wednesday's meeting, Mrs. Marie Peterson was a guest. Mrs. Josephine Whaley, Central Point, read the weekly news from Washington, D. C. Following the business session, several rugs were on display for those interested.

Entertainment consisted of recitations given by several of the group. C. E. Naffziger presided.

Prunes and raisins bulge with minerals, vitamins and concentrated food values which are especially important in the diet of pre-school children. Since youngsters' appetites are often very small, highly nutritious foods should be stressed.

ed "go to church Sunday," and members attended St. Mark's Episcopal church in a body.

Roses were used to decorate the hall and refreshment table.
