Rhubarb is actually a vegetable of the buckwheat family. We use it happily, however, as a fruit for sauce, for pies, cobblers, jams and marmalades. Good baked, too, like this: Cut 1 pound rhubarb in one-inch pieces. Place in baking dish. Dissolve 1 cup white or brown sugar in 1/4 cup water in a saucepan; add dash of salt; let cool slightly, then pour over rhubarb. Bake in 350 degree oven, about 30 minutes. Fine for breakfast or as dessert with cookies or cup cakes.

Thank You

I wish to thank my former Patrons for their loyalty during my illness the past six months. My illness has resulted in my having to retire. I shall never forget any of you!

I know, and the Beautician's Association agree, I could not have chosen a more capable owner than Mrs. Maxine M. Hammond, who is taking my place. Mrs. Hammond has been a Beautician for 15 years and is well known in Medford. She has had months of advanced training with leading Stylists, such as Comer and Doran, and she has also been an Instructor at the Medford Beauty School.

Mrs. Hammond has a number of Trophies to her credit for her ability in her profession. She is honest and sincere. I know you shall be happy to meet and patronize her.

Thanking you all again
