

Administration Quits Attempts To Recover Money From House

Washington — U.S. Administration leaders abandoned today attempts to recover from the House any of the $1,000,000,000 the representatives cut from President Eisenhower's foreign military aid program.

They pinned their hopes instead on convincing the Senate that more money was needed to bolster the West's defenses against Communism than the $2,000,000,000 the House agreed to Thursday. The money is part of the $4,900,000,000 overall foreign aid program requested by Mr. Eisenhower. The House Foreign Affairs Committee has also cut $100,000,000 in economic aid from the program.

Proposal Considered
Top proposal under consideration was an amendment by Rep. Edna F. Kelly (D-N.Y.) to cut off all U.S. aid to Marshal Tito and his Communist government.

Other amendments before the House would cut U.S. aid to India and Egypt and set up a special House-Senate committee to reevaluate the entire foreign aid program.

Mrs. Kelly said she had not yet decided whether to offer another amendment cutting off all

U.S. aid to any nation trading "strategic" materials with Iron Curtain countries. The House Foreign Affairs Committee adopted and then rejected a similar amendment when it was considering the bill.

Personal Triumph
In a dramatic vote Thursday, the House rejected 192 to 112 a proposal to restore $500,000,000 of the $1,000,000,000 cut by the committee from the military funds in the bill.

The action was a personal triumph for committee Chairman James P. Richards (D-S.C.). He bucked President Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, the joint chiefs of staff and the House Democratic and Republican leadership to convince the House that the administration had asked for "too much" money.

When an American flag is displayed in the body of a church, the flag should be at the right of the members of the congregation as they face the clergyman at the altar.

The U.S. consumes more pulp and paper than the rest of the world combined.
