Demo Leader Say Odds Against Deep South Rebellion This Year

By WILLIAM M. BATES
United Press Correspondent
Washington — U.P.— Democratic leaders said today odds are against a Dixie rebellion this year despite rumblings of discontent from some southern elements of the party.

New Water Main Construction Set To Start Tuesday

City crews were to start construction of a 12-inch water main on Eighth st., from Orange to Oakdale sts. today, according to Robert Lee, assistant water superintendent.

The main will serve as a feeder main and interconnect with the feeder main from Oakdale to Jeannette sts., he said. The first section of the project, from Orange to Jeannette sts., was completed two years ago, he said. This section will be completed in about three weeks, Lee added.

City crews completed construction Friday of a 12 inch water main on Barnett rd. from Bear Creek to Black Oak st. and construction of a 10 inch water main from Black Oak st. to Murphy st., Lee said.

The operation also included installation of seven fire hydrants, he said. Though the main is completed, Lee explained, it hasn't been sterilized. He said sterilization will occur this week and the main will be ready for service connection by next week.

Persons on Barnett rd., who want service from this main, Lee said, should come into the water department and make arrangements for service connection.

SEEING DOUBLE COMMON
Bay City, Mich.—U.P.—Seeing double will be a common phenomenon in Bay City Saturday. Over 150 sets of twins will be on hand for the 10th annual convention of the Michigan State Twins association.

a state-by-state survey of the South disclosed a strong tendency to party regularity at this stage of the game.

But they admitted that capture of the presidential nomination at the Chicago convention in August by an all-out "liberal" or civil rights advocate could spell trouble. They said the platform poses less of a problem.

Third Party Difficult
"History has proved that it is extremely difficult—if not impossible—to establish a third party when you are the minority party seeking to become the majority party," one Democratic strategist said.

As of now, South Carolina is the only southern state where the regular Democratic party organization has taken a step that might point toward a bolt in the November election.

The state convention, which met earlier this year to pick its national convention delegation, agreed to assemble again after the Chicago convention in August to decide if the party nominees and platform are acceptable.

Just what the South Carolinians would—or could do—if the answer is negative is not clear.

It has been suggested that they might pledge their presidential electors to a "favorite son" presidential candidate in the long-shot chance that the election of the president would be thrown into the House of Representatives.

This would occur in the event no presidential candidate received a majority of the electoral votes. The House would then proceed to name the president from the three candidates receiving the most electoral votes.

Deep South Carried
This has happened only twice in American history. The House in 1800 elected Thomas Jefferson over Aaron Burr when they had tied in electoral votes. In 1824, John Quincy Adams was chosen over Andrew Jackson.

Sen. J. Strom Thurmon (D-S.C.) who headed the States' Rights Democratic ticket in 1948, has said that he does not presently advocate a move toward independent presidential electors. But he said it might later "become necessary to nominate a third candidate or set up a third set of electors."

The States' Rights movement in 1948—sometimes called the "Dixiecrat" ticket—carried the Deep South states of South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The lateness of the Democratic convention this year may work against the possibility of a third party movement. There will be less time between the convention and the election to get an organization in motion than there was in 1948.

Government May Refuse Clemency

Washington — U.P.—The Supreme Court has ruled 5-4 that the government may refuse clemency in a deportation case on the basis of confidential information.

The case was brought to the high court by Cecil Reginald Jay, 65, a native of England who had lived in the United States since 1921 without becoming a citizen. He was ordered deported on grounds that he had been a member of the Communist Party between 1935 and 1940.

Jay, a former employee of the Seattle Housing Authority, asked to have the deportation order suspended, claiming that he had not been a communist since 1940 and had thereafter been a person of good moral character.

Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justices Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas and Felix Frankfurter dissented.

Bend Youth Feared Drowned in River

Bend —U.P.— A 17-year-old Bend youth, Ronald Olmstead, was feared drowned Sunday while fishing in the Metolius river near Wizard falls.

Olmstead was fishing with his brother and stepfather when the brother, fishing across the stream, heard a splash. He then saw what he believed was Ronald's body being carried through the rapids. The older youth earlier was standing on a rock.

AT IKE'S SIDE—Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower leaves the White House by limousine to be with the President who was taken to Walter Reed Hospital by Army ambulance after suffering a stomach disorder. White House Press Secy. James Hagerly called it a "precautionary measure."

FLIER REALLY FLIES
Grand Rapids, Mich.—U.P.— Bernard Flier, 20, was out $100 and serving a five-day jail sentence today for trying to be a flier instead of a driver. Police said they chased the fleeing flier at speeds up to 100 miles an hour and had to fire two shots before he stopped his car.
