West Coast Plans Non-Stop Flights

Portland —(U.P.)— An official of West Coast Airlines said today his company is hopeful of early action by the Civil Aeronautics Board on an application to start non-stop flights from Portland to North Bend-Coos Bay.

Kurt Dills, manager in Portland for the airline, said that in its application for permission to start the service, West Coast brought out that the two southern Oregon coastal cities have long been one of the heaviest traffic points of any local service airline for many years.

Search for Killer Starts Near Riot In Chicago Theater

Chicago —(U.P.)— The nationwide search for the shotgun killer of three persons set off a near-riot in a jammed movie theater here.

About 3,000 persons jammed the street outside the Granada Theater on the North Side when they heard that police had trapped killer Lawrence Neumann inside.

Two women fainted in the crush. The crowd got out of control and 15 squads of police already on the scene had to radio for reinforcements.

The police were waiting their chance to nab a member of the audience who matched Neumann's description.

Wrong Man

But when they caught up with him, it turned out the man was not Neumann. A search that has spread beyond the city limits to include much of the nation resumed.

Neumann, 28, walked into a North Side jazz spot early Friday with a shotgun and cut down bartender Max Epstein, 54, dice girl Lois Gates, 27, and newsvendor John Keller, 49.

He apparently was seeking revenge for a beating inflicted on him by Epstein's brother, exprizefighter Mickey Epstein, coowner of the Miracle Bar where the shootings occurred. Epstein saved his life by dropping to the floor. The blast intended for him caught Mrs. Gates.

Neumann, a handsome ex-convict, escaped the scene of the slaughter without leaving a trace.

Around Hollywood

Hollywood —(U.P.)—The usual wail of movie stars returning from Africa movie locations is how dangerous and miserable it all was but Donna Reed calmly says it was so "heavenly" she wants to build a home there.

Aline Mosby

Janet Leigh, Deborah Kerr and even that intrepid explorer, Humphrey Bogart, came home from the dark continent with tales of Mau Maus, tarantulas and crocodiles. The idea of fragile Donna tramping through the wilds in a pith helmet had her press agents dreaming up stories about perilous adventures.

Like Honolulu

But Donna shrugged she doesn't know what all the fuss was about—she thought Africa was "a lot like Honolulu."

"Africa is a great place for a honeymoon," Donna declares.

"The only thing that's against it is it's so far away. But when the jet airliners operate regularly, I predict it will be a terrific tourist attraction."

Donna and her husband, producer Tony Owen, found one resort, Malindi, on the east coast of Africa, that was "the most beautiful place we've ever seen." They weren't bothered by bugs and the tab was only $10 a day for room and board. The only disadvantage was the natives woke them up at 6 every morning for tea.

Cheap Living

"Nearby was a blue lagoon and we picked out a spot for a house," Donna went on. "My husband was never so healthy and happy in his life. Of course, the way they work there it would take forever to build a house—but it wouldn't cost much."

Tony and Donna visited Africa to make a picture for their independent company. Donna has joined the many stars who now beat high taxes by producing their own pictures—Bill Holden, Jeff Chandler, Robert Mitchum, Marilyn Monroe and many more.

Washington—(U.P.)—The Agriculture Department estimated today that the 1955 wheat crop will total 922,000 bushels.

The Medical Roundup

THE BIG AND LITTLE HIVES

Many people ask me what to do about hives. My impression is that the little hives, especially in children, are often due to the eating of some food, perhaps chocolate, or some fruit juice, or milk, or eggs. Often the mother could find out the cause just by keeping a little diary, in which she would make note of the unusual foods eaten before a crop of hives appeared on the child's skin.

Walter Alvarez

In my experience, the big hives seen on the skin of adults are generally due to strong emotion, and usually to some unhappy problem. Often when I see a woman scratching a lot of big hives, I ask, "What can't you make up your mind about?" and she answers, "Could it be that?" Then I say, "Yes, it probably is that."

Perhaps then I find that the woman cannot make up her mind to divorce an unloved husband to marry a man she has met and loved. I remember a man covered from head to foot with huge hives. They had come out on him after he had given up a good position with a company to take one that promised to be better in another company. When he found that he was going to get cheated out of the position of sales' manager, which he had been promised, he went to pieces nervously and got the hives.

In another case, a woman who had expected to marry a man, suddenly realized that he was trying to back out. In another case, a woman who had just married a physician who, she had been led to believe, was well-to-do, found out that he was so psychotic that he had no practice. He admitted he had married her in order to live off of her small salary as a school teacher., No wonder she broke out with the big hives!

CHILDREN WHO ARE NEVER CORRECTED

A thoughful woman writes that recently friends came for a visit with their children who had been brought up according to modern psychiatric theory. The parents had so feared to hurt the children's ego that they had never disciplined them or, perhaps, even asked them to behave better. As a result, perhaps, the hostess found the children most unpleasant. One little girl snatched at the refreshments being served to grownups. She seemed never to have heard of waiting until others were served. The two boys rough-housed so much that they tipped over a beautiful lamp and smashed it. The parents thought nothing of this. One of the boys, aged 12, took pleasure in stepping on the white pumps of one of the guests, annoying her greatly. One of the girls spilled milk on the beautiful carpet.

The adult guests were distressed because the children kept mauling a little dog. They screamed at the tops of their voices. Naturally, the guests left as soon as they could, to get away from the children.

To me, it seems inconceivable that such parents would not sense how much disliked their children were, and would not realize that, when they grew up, they would not be included in groups of children who had been carefully trained and who had learned the art of being thoughtful of the comfort of others.
