Swedish Prince Denies Intention To Wed Margaret

Stockholm, Sweden — (U.P.) — Prince Bertil of Sweden formally denied today that he intends to marry Princess Margaret, his royal guest at the Olympic equestrian games.

Less than a day after the 44-year-old prince escorted the 25-year-old British princess from the airport he made it known there is no truth in the rumors of a romance between them.

Son of King Gustaf

Bertil is the bachelor son of Sweden's King Gustaf VI Adolf and second in line to the Swedish throne.

Princess Margaret, third in line to the British throne, flew here Monday to join Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh who conclude a state visit to Sweden and stayed over officially to watch the Olympic games.

Bertil met the Princess at the airport when she arrived with other members of the British nobility.

The rumors linking the prince and princess had been heard for more than a year and late in May one of the Stockholm afternoon newspapers said, "dare we hope" that there is a romance between them.

Comment Refused

Buckingham Palace had refused to comment on the rumors but today Bertil said no.

His denial doubtless was issued with full concurrence of the British royal family which has been more and more outspoken in promptly slapping down the recurrent rumors of romance between Margaret and her various escorts.

But unlike earliest denials issued through press secretaries, the latest came from the lips of the handsome, outspoken prince.
