The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

 Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

EISENHOWER'S OPERATION

Doubtless, many laymen today are wondering what terminal ileitis is, why the President had to be operated on, and what is likely to be the outcome. For a few hours, physicians who know about ileitis were wondering why a chronic disease which develops slowly, should so suddenly have produced such violent symptoms. The answer came when Mr. Hagerty intimated that this illness has probably been present in a mild form for several years. It may well have been responsible for some previous acute upsets in the President's digestion. Usually, the disease can be diagnosed by a roentgenologist when he finds in the x-ray films made of the bowel a markedly narrowed segment. Terminal ileitis is usually a chronic disease of persons in their twenties or thirties. As the wall of the last short segment of small bowel (ileum) on the right side of the abdomen near the appendix thickens and stiffens it comes to look something like a short section of an old-fashioned garden hose. With this thickening of the wall of the bowel, the lumen or passage-way becomes more and more narrowed and encroached on until, as in the President's case, the residues of food can hardly get through. Then there is a partial intestinal obstruction and, if the person's life is to be saved, a surgeon must operate. He then can either cut out the diseased segment of bowel, or he can side-track it and leave it in place.

The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, a newspaper editor, a women's page editor and two newspaper writers. These consult with clergymen of all faiths and denominations. All letters are held in complete confidence.

Nancy — I can't welcome his old girl friend.
 Steve — She has married my close friend.
 Nancy — My husband Steve and I have had eight years of happy married life without any serious misunderstanding, but we seem to have one now. I knew before our marriage that Steve had had a rather torrid affair with another girl, but I dismissed that from my mind as finished business belonging to a dead past.

Now I find that Steve expects me to accept her in our social circle and treat her as an old friend. I did not meet her until a few weeks ago when I was introduced to her at the home of a mutual friend, and I became aware of the fact that she was the girl who had been in Steve's life before I got to know him. I sensed on meeting her that there had been something between her and Steve, and when I asked Steve, he readily told me.

He wants me to invite her to our home, and I do not see why I should or why he should want it. Meeting her and finding that my husband wants to include her in our social set has made me feel very unhappy and shaken. Until this development, I had considered my husband not only faithful, but sensitive and considerate. He certainly

Albany Youth, 19, Missing in Mountains

Albany, Ore. — (UP) — A 19-year-old Albany youth has been reported missing on a fishing trip in mountain country about 60 miles east of here.

The missing youth is Larry Bassinger, an Oregon State college sophomore.

Bassinger had gone fishing alone on Snow creek near the South Santiam highway last Friday and had been scheduled to return Sunday night. He was reported missing last night.

Friends reported finding the youth's car along the highway.

Deputy Sheriff Jess Comer spent last night and this morning search the area. State police, deputy sheriffs and volunteers joined in the search today.

Batzer Submits Low Bid on Building Here

Jack Batzer, Box 855, Central Point, was low bidder for construction of the Production Credit Association Building in Medford, according to Architect R. J. Keeney of Medford.

Batzer bid $38,250. Other bidders were Meyers D. Jones, Medford, $38,700; Southern Oregon construction company, Grants Pass, $40,917; and Minishall Construction company, Jacksonville, $39,887.

Portland — (UP) — The American subsidiary of an Italian firm, Legnano Electric Corp. New York, is apparent low bidder on two groups of offers to provide circuit breakers scheduled for installation in the Bonneville power system.

Most dangerous hours to drive a motor vehicle are from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

connect the normal small bowel, a little way above the narrowed segment, to the colon (large bowel) below the obstructed place. When the side-tracked segment of bowel does not have to function, the disease in it tends to quiet down.

Attack Like Poisoning

In many cases, as in that of the President, the patient will have—from time to time—an attack of what looks like acute food-poisoning. With such spells, he may have diarrhea, a little fever, and pain in the right side of the abdomen. In some cases a surgeon operates, expecting to find inflammation in the appendix, when really it is in the bowel a few inches away.

Some readers will now ask, what is the cause of the thickening of the wall of the bowel, and the answer is that no one knows. Some experts suspect a virus but, so far as I know, none has yet been demonstrated. Some men suspect an emotional cause, and I have seen cases in which there certainly had been great emotional strain.

My friend, Dr. Albert Rows, thinks the cause is an allergy, and he has helped some of the patients by removing from their diet some harmful food.

The disease was first described some 20 years ago by my good friend, Dr. Burrill B. Crohn, of New York City. It is often called Crohn's disease. He has written many articles and a book on the subject and has seen hundreds of cases of this fairly rare disease.

No Good Treatment Found

Unfortunately, no good medical treatment has ever been found. The antibiotics have little if any effect, and hence, when obstructive symptoms appear, or the disease begins to pull the patient down, he has to be operated on.

People all over the world are now asking, "Will the President's future health be affected adversely by the loss of a foot or so his small bowel, and the

Morrison Bridge Reopened to Traffic

Portland — (UP) — Multnomah County Roadmaster Paul Northrop said that the Morrison street bridge in Portland was reopened to traffic yesterday.

The bridge across the Willamette river had been closed to traffic, its turn-span left open to boats, since June 1 because of high water which threatened the electrical turn mechanism.

Northrop said successful reopening would depend on river traffic maintaining slow speeds. Swells caused by fast-moving boats, he said, could wash into the electrical apparatus and force closure again.

Of all vegetable seeds offered to buyers, radish seeds lead all other varieties.
