Former Resident To Be In Cast of Television Show

Dolores Gottfried (Mrs. Don Berg, former Medford actress), will make her first Portland television appearance today on KPTV in "Carolina In The Morning," a play originally written for television in New York City and recently released to the author, Von Staurt.

Following her portrayal of Margot Wendice in "Dial M for Murder" at the Portland Civic theater in May, Mrs. Berg was invited to play the leading role of Linda Seton in Philip Barry's "Holiday" for the Civic Theater's Blue Room. The play will be given "In-the-round" at Gearhart on the Oregon coast in mid-July.

"Holiday" is Mrs. Berg's first experience with arena style staging, although she appeared in Willamette university productions, was a member of the 1953 Shakespeare Festival company in Ashland, and played a leading role of Daisy in the Medford Footlight's production of "Lo and Behold" in 1954.

While living in Medford and Ashland, Mrs. Berg was employed as continuity director at radio station KBOY. She is presently employed in the program and continuity departments of Portland's CBS radio affiliate, KOIN. The Bergs plan to attend the Shakespeare Festival the first week in August.

All-Male Japanese Villagers Plan To Fight Female Invasion

Tokyo—(U.P.)—Residents of a tiny village were up in arms today over plans of a 23-year-old woman alpinist to climb their sacred mountain which has been banned to women for 1300 years.

Villagers at the foot of Mount Omine in Nara prefecture warned they would do everything possible to stop her.

Shu Yamamoto, chairman of the Society for the popularization of Mountain Climbing and Skiing in Tokyo, said he and Miss Toshiko Ishida will leave Tokyo for the village July 1.

"We will try to calm down the feeling of the inhabitants who have decided to resort to picket lines to block any woman attempting to climb the mountain," Yamamoto said.

"But if we fail, we will avoid the usual climbing course of the men and take an unusual route. Upon reaching the top we'll take pictures as proof that women have climbed the forbidden mountain, and thus set a precedent."
